53 ARMY POSTS SLATED FOR AX ARE ANNOUNCED

Hunt Will Become Part of Parkway; Eustis, Lee to Be Discarded.

ORDERS MAY AROUSE STORM OF PROTESTS

Abandoning of "Political Forts" Will Be Made Congress Issue.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

A list of 53 Army posts which are to be disposed of either wholly or in part was made public yesterday by the War Department. How much will be saved to the Government was not estimated, but it was pointed out that the land occupied by the 53 posts is valued at $22,000,000.

Twenty-four posts will be disposed of entirely, while 29 will be disposed of in part. About 5,000 officers and men will have to be transferred to new billets.

Of the posts that are to be abandoned entirely, four are in Virginia. They are Fort Hunt, Fort Eustis, Camp Lee, and a coast defense post on Fisherman's Island, near the entrance to Chesapeake Bay. None of the posts in Maryland are listed for abandonment.

Fort Hunt Can Not Be Sold.

Fort Hunt, built during the Spanish-American War, and located on the Virginia side of the Potomac River, about two miles north of Mount Vernon, can not be sold.

Under terms of the Capper-Cramton act, Fort Hunt, once it is abandoned by the Army, becomes a part of the George Washington Memorial Parkway, which will skirt either bank of the Potomac from Washington to Mount Vernon and Fort Washington.

The Capper-Cramton act also provides that if Fort Washington and Fort Foote on the Maryland side of the river are abandoned, they, too, will become part of the memorial parkway. There is no present intention of abandoning Fort Washington. As for Fort Foote, it is now being leased to the War Department Welfare Association and to the Girl Scouts. The lease, however, is revocable.

Fort Hunt has 197 acres. The eight officers and 57 men stationed there probably will be transferred to Fort Washington, where there are 18 officers and 515 men.

Meade May Get Eustis Force.

Fort Eustis, the largest of the posts listed for disposal yesterday, is located on the Virginia peninsula, and lies between Williamsburg and Newport News. A World War cantonment, it is sprawled over 7,000 acres of land.

Today there are 86 officers and 1,446 enlisted men stationed at Fort Eustis. They probably will be moved to Fort George Meade, Md., a permanent post.

Fort Eustis has been an important citizens military training camp in the Third Corps area, comprising the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania. Fort Meade probably will take over that function, too.

Camp Lee is in a caretaker status, which means that it is being guarded by a half dozen or so soldiers. Fishermans Island, near Cape Charles, is in the same status.

Other Posts Included.

Other large posts which, according to yesterday's announcement, are to be disposed of in the interest of "efficiency and economy," follow:

Fort Brown, Tex., 9 officers and 74 enlisted men; Camp Harry J. Jones, Ariz., 12 officers, 319 men; Fort Lincoln, N. Dak., 16 officers, 319 men; Camp Stephen D. Little, Ariz., 28 officers, 478 men; Miller Field, N. Y., 7 officers, 154 men; Fort Missoula, Mont., 14 officers, 333 men; Fort D. A. Russell, Tex., 35 officers, 563 men, and Chanute Field, Ill., 117 officers, 837 men.

Some of these posts have long and colorful histories, as, for example, Fort Brown, at Brownsville, Tex. It was from here that Gen. Zachary Taylor's cavalry took off to engage in the first real combat of the Mexican War. The fort also was the scene of a less creditable event—the bloody riot in which Negro cavalrymen and white citizens participated during President Roosevelt's administration.

Protests Are Expected.

Publication of the list of doomed forts is expected to be followed by an avalanche of protests from the communities in which they are located. It always has been thus; hence the term "political forts" That

League Votes Geneva As Arms Parley Site

Scheme to Aid European Farmers Approved; Credit Looms.

Geneva, Switzerland, May 20 (A.P.).—A scheme designed to relieve distress of European farmers, involving organization of an international agricultural credit company which would lend money to needy growers and take as security mortgages on their farm property was approved tonight by the Pan-European commission.

Hailed as the "first child" of the commission's labors for the economic reconstruction of Europe, the project received the support of a majority of representatives of European members of the League of Nations, but the voice of Russia was lifted in dissent.

Under the proposal an international credit company would be launched with paid-in capital of $5,000,000 and it would be authorized to borrow $50,000,000 in the open market.

The plan will be embodied in a draft convention to be presented to the council of the League of Nations at its present session for approval

Conference to Be Held in February; Provision of Treaty Aired.

Geneva, Switzerland, May 20 (A.P.).—The League of Nations council today decided that the general disarmament conference next February would be held in Geneva, and then debated provisions of a projected general disarmament treaty.

Today's discussion involved the principle of limiting trained reserves and war materials and arose over the form of questionnaire which individual states would be asked to answer preparatory to next year's conferences. The purpose of these documents would be to disclose the present state of each country's armaments.

Further consideration of the matter was postponed until Friday, after it was learned Italy no longer supported Germany in the matter.

The German view, as outlined by Foreign Minister Julius Curtius, was that the status of war materials on hand and trained reserves should be covered in the questionnaire form. Arthur Henderson, British foreign

BANKERS PRESENTED TRADE REVIVAL PLAN

Julius H. Barnes' Program Touches Business and Foreign Relations.

(Associated Press.)

An eleven-point program for the improvement of Government, business and international relations and trade was submitted yesterday to the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the board of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The association opened its eleventh annual conference.

Mr. Barnes sought to outline teamplay between the Government and industry. He said his recommendations are soundly based for the Government's contribution in the effort to secure stabilization and recovery from this depression.

Briefly his program suggested the following:

"Legislation to lift restrictions which prevent insurance companies from proposing in private contracts security against unemployment.

"Framers of tax laws should seek advice and take recommendations from those skilled on the subject, particularly the capital gains provision.

"An end to senatorial disparagement of men nominated to Government posts by the President.

"Congress should follow the recommendation of President Hoover, organized business and other organizations in respect to joining the World Court.

"Reconsideration of the antitrust laws.

"Resurvey of the banking laws.

"Restudy of railroad regulation to permit the carriers to meet competition of new transportation means.

"Treatment of tariff as an economic and not a political issue.

"Respect for recommendations of responsible administrative officials as to economy in public expenditure.

"Disposal of Muscle Shoals.

"Keep the Government out of business in competition with private industry."

Mr. Barnes said, "I have every confidence that the brains which built America are still alive and that they will find the answer to the situation.

"Nine out of ten of the captains of industry today rose from the ranks," he continued. "They do not forget the problems and anxieties of the men whose strata they have left. They are not changed in nature of habit, of thought or aspiration by the fact that their native ability or fortunate chance has lifted them to higher places in industry."

He asked for a "sober study by all American industries of the problem within their own scope, as they relate to the broader problem, and thta they will try to find the answer and

HOOVER TO BE HOST TO COL. ROOSEVELT

News of Visit Arouses Talk of Vice Presidential Race in 1932.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, governor of Porto Rico, will spend the week-end with President Hoover at the latter's Rapidan camp, it was announced at the White House yesterday.

The announcement had the effect of renewing talk about the possibility of Col. Roosevelt being made the Republican vice presidential nominee in 1932.

Col. Roosevelt, who is on his way from San Juan to New York on personal business, notified the White House that he would stop off in Washington Saturday. As the President will be at his camp that day, arrangements were made to have an automobile transport Col. Roosevelt thither.

The suggestion that Col. Roosevelt be President Hoover's running mate in 1932 was heard for the first time while the President was visiting Porto Rico. When the colonel himself heard it, he was quite surprised.

A month or so later, The Washington Post conducted a poll among delegates and alternates to the Republican convention of 1928. When the returns came in, it was found that Col. Roosevelt was the runner-up in the vice presidential race.

An overwhelming majority—247—said that Vice President Curtis could again get the nomination "if he wants it."

Sixty delegates and alternates suggested Col. Roosevelt for the nomination. This was nearly twice the number of "votes" that any other politician received. Next to Col. Roosevelt came Senator Dwight Morrow, of New Jersey, who was suggested for the vice presidential nomination by 34 delegates and alternates. And next to him was Secretary of War Hurley. Thirteen thought he would be a good man for the job.

The poll and political logic indicate that Vice President Curtis can again be the vice presidential nominee in 1932 "if he wants it." The question of whether he wants it or not remains unanswered. The Vice President says he has not yet made his plans for 1932. If he does not run for a second nomination he will seek to recapture his seat in the Senate.

The big business at Rapidan this week, however, will not be the vice presidential nomination, but the deficit in the Postoffice Department. The President will have as his guests Postmaster General Brown and several of that official's assistants.

The Postoffice Department this year is facing a deficit of $140,000,000. In the end Congress will have to decide how to solve the problem. If it asks Postmaster General Brown for advice he will recommend that the postage for first-class mail be increased from 2 cents to 2½ cents.

CROSBY DENIES GANGSTER FOOTHOLD; 3,304 GUNS SOLD, 3 PERMITS EXIST; MAN IN CAFE SHOOTS LABOR EDITOR

Pistol Traffic Unabated and Acquisition Costs Little Effort.

WRONG NAMES OFTEN GIVEN TO MERCHANTS

Other Weapons Shipped Here Bring Total to 10,000; Remedies Fail.

Only three private citizens are authorized to carry pistols in the District, but thousands of the easily concealed weapons which have been spitting leaden death in the recent outbreak of shootings have been sold to Washington residents in the last sixteen months.

Traffic in pistols is unimpeded and legal acquisition of one is merely a matter of a few dollars and a few moments, and, if concealment is desired, possession of sufficient imagination to give a false name and address to the dealer from which it is purchased.

Though each dealer is required by law to ascertain the name and address of each person buying a pistol in the District and to report each sale to the police within a month, these reports are little more than a joke so far as identifying pistol purchasers.

Reports filed with the Police Department by local dealers show that 3,304 pistols were sold in the calendar year 1930 and the first four months of this year.

Of this total, 2,456 were sold in the last calendar year and 848 in the four months ending with April 30.

Others Are Shipped.

Investigations by police and Federal officials in the past have shown that for every pistol sold by a local dealer to a resident of the National Capital, at least two others are shipped to purchasers here through the mails or by express.

This would bring the number of pistols sold in the National Capital in the last 16 months to approximately 10,000.

There is no law against ownership or possession of a pistol in the District, though there is a law punishing the carrying of concealed weapons whether the weapon be a pistol or other gun or weapon such as knives, blackjacks and others.

Special permission to carry a pistol is authorized, but Frank A. Sebring, clerk of the District Police Court, has issued but three permits this year and does not remember when the total number ever reached as many as a score at one time.

Those who have special permits to carry pistols at this time are Charley Soo and George Wen, Chinese, and Wash B. Williams, a coal merchant.

Issued on Application.

Permits are issued by Mr. Sebring on application with the approval of the presiding judge of the Police Court. Applications must be accompanied by supporting affidavits of three reputable citizens and the posting of a real estate bond of $300, which must be renewed each 30 days. Permits are issued for a three-month

Frank Langdon, 72, Is Hit by Two of Eight Bullets From Two Pistols.

HEAD OF UNION SAVED BY POCKET NOTEBOOK

Intruder Flees After Firing Six Times in Building and Twice in Street.

Internal troubles in a labor union are believed by police to have come to a head in a Washington restaurant yesterday when a roughly clad man whipped out two pistols and sprayed the place with lead, seriously wounding Frank Langdon, 72, assistant to the general secretary of the International Union of Operating Engineers and editor of its trade journal. The man escaped.

Six bullets were fired at three officials of the union, which has figured in the courts here and in Chicago recently, as they sat lunching in the Robin Hood Cafeteria, 945 K street northwest, directly across the street from the headquarters of the organization.

Two of the bullets struck Mr. Langdon, one passing throughh is left eye and another cutting his cheek. Another bullet struck Arthur M. Huddell, of Massachusetts, president of the union, directly over the heart, but a bulky notebook he carried in an inside breast pocket saved his life. His only wound was caused by a pencil, which gouged his flesh with the impact of the slug.

The third member of the luncheon party escaped injury. He is John Possehl, of Cleveland, general secretary of the union, who attempted to battle with his assailant before he was routed by the rain of slugs.

Shortly After Noon.

The three labor officials entered the cafeteria for lunch shortly after noon. They picked a table a short distance from one of the two doors to the basement restaurant and started their meal.

A short time later a man about 50 years old, dressed in blue denim overalls, entered the place, selected some dishes, and then walked over to a table directly behind the one at which the union officials were seated.

Instead of sitting down to lunch he suddenly whipped out a pistol and began firing almost point blank at the men at the next table.

He fired twice with the pistol when it jammed, and with an oath he threw it aside, drew another and kept up the fusilade. In all he shot six times in the cafeteria and took two additional shots at Possehl on the street.

At the first shot Mr. Possehl said he leaped up from the table and picked it up for a shield. The table bears evidence of the man's marksmanship, for it bears a hole directly through the center.

Picked Up Chair.

"The fellow tried to come around beside me as he fired," Mr. Possehl said, "but I edged against the wall. Then I picked up a chair and tried to hit him with it, but he kept firing, and I was forced to run out the front door.

"I thought I would go around to

Police Chief Cites Effort Being Made to Oust Criminals Here.

STATEMENT IS FIRST SINCE TAKING POST

Declares Underworld Had No Part in Most of Year's 27 Murders.

The notorious gangster of organized crime has no foothold in the National Capital, and "Washington can rest assured that no effort is being spared to keep the city clear of the gangster," Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, retired, District Commissioner in charge of police, declared yesterday in his first formal statement since he assumed office more than a year ago.

Gen. Crosby's statement was made at the end of four days of shootings which have claimed nine victims, some of whom have been killed outright and others of whom are in hospitals with varying chances of winning their fights for life.

The importance of the gangster element involved in some of the shootings was derided by the Commissioner, who described Tally Day, one of the men killed, as "a watchman employed to watch cars outside a gambling place in a neighboring State, who was killed as a result of a quarrel with an acquaintance." The shooting yesterday afternoon, he said, grew out of a labor dispute in other cities.

Of the 27 persons murdered since January 1, Gen. Crosby said, only two were innocent citizens shot down by persons engaged in the commission of crimes. One of these, in which Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes was shot in the course of a hold-up of a tea shop, is unsolved. In the other two men have been arrested, indicted and are in jail awaiting trial for the shooting of James H. Lane, street car employe who resisted efforts to rob him of his fare receipts.

Cites Police Dismissal.

Taking up criticism of policemen for alleged connection with unlawful activities, Gen. Crosby said that no effort would be spared to bring such men to justice and cited the dismissal of 63 men from the force for failing to maintain department standards of conduct.

Gen. Crosby concluded a brief analysis of the killings in Washington since January 1, with the statement:

"This brief analysis demonsttrates that these killings are not the result of gang warfare. Washington can rest assured that no effort is being spared to keep the city clear of the gangster. He is not here now."

Commissioner Crosby's statement follows:

"The recent succession of shootings that have occurred in Washington is of great concern to me and to our Police Department, as well as to our citizens.

Succession of Events.

"My investigations and those of the Police Department show that these shootings are in no sense an expression of gang warfare, but are a succession of unrelated events that have occurred over a brief period. One of them, for instance, was a watchman employed to watch cars outside a gambling place in a neighboring State, who was killed as result of a quarrel with an acquaintance. Another grew out of what now appears to be a labor dispute which originated in another city.

"If, as is alleged, a policeman is involved in one of the shootings, the public may be assured that every effort will be made to secure the necessary evidence to secure a conviction. This statement holds true with reference to any member of the police force who may be involved in any manner with law violators or law violations.

"As evidence of the determination of the department to rid itself of such members as have failed to maintain the required standard of service and conduct, 63 have been dismissed from the service in the last two years. It is my personal opinion that we have an efficient and honest police force. Of course, there are exceptions, but I know of no walk in life in which this is not true.

Activity of Police.

For example, the percentage of arrests for murders is an evidence of the activity of the police. All but two of the 27 murder cases occurring

DAY FUNERAL RITES ENLIVENED BY FIGHT

"The Boys," Honoring Gambler, Attack Cameraman; Woman Injured.

"The Boys" who accompanied Talley Day's body to its grave in Cedar Hill Cemetery yesterday showed their respect for the small-time gambler by starting a fight as the body was being lowered in the grave. A group of "the boys" attacked O. B. Troup, a photographer, and destroyed a picture he had made of the burial. An unsuccessful attempt also was made to intimidate a Post photographer in front of the church.

Mrs. L. E. Vining, of Seventeenth street near S street southeast, who was attending another funeral, was slightly cut on the hand by a piece of glass or brass knuckles as she was caught in the midst of the melee.

The mother of Talley Day, Mrs. Annie Day, was restrained from throwing herself into the grave of her son by bystanders. She collapsed as the body was lowered.

The services were held in St. George's Syrian Greek Orthodox Church, 1009 Eighth street northwest, of which the Rev. Job Solloom is pastor. In all, there were about 150 persons in the church, of whom 100 were women. With the exception of a short sermon, all of the services were said in Syrian and Greek.

Benjamin Hoffiz, a chanter in the church and a restaurant owner, delivered a brief sermon. "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth," he said, looking toward "the boys."

If there was any sympathy to be shown at the ceremony it might have been directed to the family of Day, who, fasting for hours, sat alongside his bier, inhaling the pungent odor of incense and watching the dead face of their kin as it was illumined by two flickering tapers.

Day's father, Nicholas, is proprietor

CUNNINGHAM HATED, FEARED MIDDLETON

Police Attempting to Link Patrolman to Slaying Recall Warning.

A hatred and fear of Patrolman Wallace J. Middleton by Jack Cunningham is the link with which police hope to connect the policeman with the slaying of the hi-jacker and police informant.

It was Cunningham who told Shocky Yudelevit, police said yesterday, that Middleton was the man who stole fifteen cases of liquor from Yudelevit's place on I street near Twelfth street on May 8.

The slain hi-jacker, it also was learned, told Lieut. Frank Varney and Detective J. A. Mostyn of the First Precinct last October that Middleton forced him to go on a hi-jacking expedition.

On this occasion, Cunningham brought the policemen to his apartment and showed them a gun which he said he was going to use on Middleton if he "tried anything funny." Cunningham said he was just telling them "in case anything happened."

Relatives of Middleton last night employed Charles E. Ford, attorney, to take the policeman's case.

Mr. Ford, after interviewing his client said: "It will be proved conclusively that Patrolman Middleton had nothing to do with the shooting of Cunningham." Meanwhile, he has advised his client to answer no questions.

Capt. Edward J. Kelly and Detective Sergeant John A. Flaherty last night questioned Mrs. Helen Cunningham, widow of the slain man, regarding Middleton's relationships with her and also to determine whether she knows the identity of the killer.

Capt. Kelly last night denied Cunningham had actually named Middleton as the man who shot him. The

Intimidation Charged By Blackmail Defense

Attorneys Ask Jurors' Dismissal and Accuse Justice Agent of Influencing Witness in Calhoun Case; Mistrial Sought.

The trial of three men and two women on an indictment charging them with conspiring to blackmail Capt. and Mrs. C. C. Calhoun slipped into a critical stage late yesterday, when defense attorneys argued strongly for the withdrawal of a juror and a consequent mistrial on the grounds that a Government witness had been intimidated by a Department of Justice agent.

Justice Jesse Adkins took the request under serious advisement. He asked attorneys for both sides to send to his home, last night, briefs relating to mistrials occasioned by intimidation of a witness. Justice Adkins will rule on the mistrial question this morning, with strong indications pointing to its granting.

The witness, Mrs. Emma Crouse, said that a Department of Justice agent had told her "this case must be won." Further, she said, she had been told that she would get herself in trouble if she didn't testify as she had indicated she might testify before the trial.

Mrs. Crouse was recalled to the stand, and she denied that any portion of her testimony was untrue. She said that she did not remember some of the questions which were in the record as having been answered by her, but she said that she had told the truth in those disputed questions.

A bitter wrangle, in which personalities flew thick and fast, enlivened the trial for two hours. Defense attorneys, strove to prove that Mrs. Crouse's testimony was certain to be influenced by the alleged statements made to her. Assistant United States Attorney Irving Goldstein, at one point shouted: "Mr. Rover knows all about my conduct in this case, and he had told me that he approved everything I did."

"Does he know everything you did?" Charles Arth, defense counsel, asked.

At another point, Mr. Goldstein charged the defense was attempting to force him to take the witness stand "so that he could not argue this case to the jury." Richard L. Merrick, another defense counsel, denied this.

Another exchange between the attorneys was brought up when Mr. Goldstein, commenting on a proposal to "straighten out the record" said "I have nothing to straighten out, but I think some others do." His remarks went out under a barrage of angry voices from opposing lawyers.

Mrs. Crouse testified that on the afternoon when she testified, she was nervous and nauseated. She declared she had been called to the district attorney's office, where she was asked: "What are you trying to do, spin me?" At this point Justice Adkins attempted to question the witness about all her testimony, but upon objection of Mr. Merrick, he desisted.

Mrs. Crouse reiterated several times that regardless of the so-called "intimidating remarks" she had told only the truth on the stand. Here the mention of a "mysterious name" was referred to by Justice Adkins. He implied that this name, "which isn't to be mentioned here," might have had some bearing on testimony. The name was never mentioned in open court.

Mrs. Crouse further said yesterday that she went to Paul Sedgwick's

McNamee's Wife Files Suit; 'Ideal' Marriage Collapses

GRAHAM M'NAMEE

Radio Announcer Does Not Know What Charges Mate Is Making.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Graham McNamee, widely known radio announcer, said today he had been served in a suit for separation by his wife, the former Josephine Garrett.

Mrs. McNamee filed the action several weeks ago, McNamee said. He added that he did not know where his wife was, but that the separation was not by mutual consent.

"I was served about the first of May with papers in a separation suit brought by my wife," he asserted. "I don't know what charges she makes. I have not seen all of the papers."

The papers were filed in Supreme Court and have been sealed, it was learned. Close friends of the announcer did not know of his alleged marital difficulties. It had been reported the McNamees had separated, but the supposition was that Mrs.

Ill Woman's Screams Bring Police to Turkish Embassy

Staff Members, However, Deny Calling Detectives; Blame Neighbors.

Informed by an anonymous telephone call that a woman was screaming at 1706 Massachusetts avenue northwest, which is the Turkish Embassy, headquarters detectives last night sped to that address to be met by members of the embassy staff, who denied they called for police.

A member of the embassy household, who said he was the nephew of the Turkish Ambassador Ahmed Muhtar Bey, said a woman, whose identity he would not reveal, was ill and in a highly nervous condition and that she had made outcries a few minutes previous. Possibly this occasioned some neighbor to communicate with police, he suggested, but he told both the headquarters detectives and reporters who arrived simultaneously, that nothing untoward had occurred.

THE THIRD DEGREE

A return to strong-arm methods is what is needed to cope with Washington's new crop of gun fighters and petty racketeers before the situation is beyond police control.

Force is the weapon that must be brought into use in dealing with criminals, says Frederick A. Fenning, former Police Commissioner of the District of Columbia, who has written for The Post a severe arraignment of pink tea methods. It is a story that those in authority should read. Maryland and District Test Green Harmony Plan at Convention.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 19.—The attempt to eradicate partisan politics and restore internal harmony to the Maryland State and District of Columbia Federation of Labor by a method suggested by William Green, American Federation of Labor president, will meet its crucial test at the Federation's final convention session here tomorrow.

The test will come in the shape of the general meeting's vote of confirmation of the Maryland caucus' nomination of Henry F. Broening, president of the Baltimore Federation of Labor, for president of the State and District of Columbia organization.

The Maryland counties caucus selected Robert Kimble, of the Allegany Trades Council, Cumberland, for treasurer of the Federation and James J. Brehany, of the Cumberland Glass Workers Local Union, No. 69, and John Geist, of the Hagerstown Carpenter's Union Local Union, No. 340, for vice presidents.

Woman Chosen by Baltimore.

Baltimore city caucus selected Miss Anna Neary, of the Bindery Women's Local, No. 123, and Charles Ernest, of the Pressman's Local, No. 31, for vice presidents.

The Washington caucus named Newton A. James, of Firemen and Oilers Local, No. 63, and Richard A. Dickson, of Press Feeders Local, No. 42, for vice presidents, and renamed Frank J. Coleman, of Plate Printers Local, No. 2, for secretary. Mr. James, retiring president of the federation, lives at Hyattsville, Md.

A series of resolutions were reported out by the committe as follows:

"thereby relieving to a large extent the unemployment situation." It was submitted by representatives of the yeast, cereal beverage and soft drink workers of America.

A resolution protesting against the proposed use of convict labor to build the new State prison at Roxbury and instructing the executive board to "demand of Gov. Ritchie and the State board of welfare that practices of this kind be stopped."

Union Meat Buying Asked.

A resolution declaring that Baltimore's meat packing establishments operate under nonunion conditions in competition with Washington's unionized packing plants and urging that trades unionists buy only meat butchered by union men.

Another resolution, a Washington measure, also referred to the committee, urged that practical inspectors be appointed to inspect steam, hot water, vapor and vacuum heating systems in the District of Columbia.

Among the resolutions reported out but held over for consideration today was one calling upon Congress to call a constitutional convention to revise the Constitution with the aim of curing some of the present economic ills. Another, reported unfavorably by the legislative committee, urged that Federal employes be prohibited from doing outside work in their spare time and thereby competing with union labor.

EPISCOPAL DIOCESE TO CONVENE TODAY

Industrial Student Talks at Preliminary Sessions in Charlottesville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 19.—The ultimate solution of the problems of industry, like the problems of war and peace and of family relationships, is to be found in the Christian religion, declared Spencer Miller, jr., student of industrial conditions, speaking tonight at the preliminary session of the 136th annual council of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Virginia. Formal sessions open tomorrow morning in St. Paul's Memorial Church, University of Virginia, and Bishop Henry St. George Tucker will preside.

"The church itself can not stand apart and aloof from the deep currents which are changing the face of our civilization," he said, "nor can it, on the other hand, become involved as a special advocate for either side. The church must continue to witness to the principles of social justice and can lift every question above the level of prejudice and hate by illuminating that situation with the principles of love and human fellowship exemplified by teachings of God."

Discussing the recent Danville strike, Mr. Miller asserted that the South is in the process of an industrial revolution. The symbol of that change, he said, is the textile mill itself. "It foreshadows an important change in the whole life and work of the Southern people; it means a shift in the center of gravity in the American industrial and economic life. There is the whole question of the attitude of employers toward employes; of employes to the public at large. Here are new problems and new relationships. It is the question of an attempt to adapt new and modern ways to an old section of our society. He who even thinks it is easy to strike an even and just balance in the presence of these factors, many of which are so exertmely intangible, is a bold person."

Mr. Miller conceded that there are situations developing in industry which can not be reconciled by any method of interpretation with the principles of justice and human brotherhood.

Facing Sentence, Man Shoots Self

Bondsmen Find Drug Suspect Wounded as Court Holds Up Case.

Norfolk, Va., May 19 (A.P.).—Allie Riportella, a former officer of the Grand Lodge of the Sons of Italy in Virginia, shot himself in the head today at his apartment while Judge Luther B. Way, in Federal District Court, waited to sentence him on a charge of violating the Harrison narcotic act. He was taken to a hospital, where it was said his condition was serious.

Riportella was found by Vincent Feriazzo and Felix Redavid, his bondsmen, when they went to his apartment to learn why he had not appeared in court. There was a revolver by his side, and they also found a note written in Italian.

In the letter, as translated by Feriazzo, Riportella said he was a victim of circumstances and added that he "could not stand the disgrace of a prison term."

POLLARD INSPECTS MT. VERNON TODAY

Governor Will Be Luncheon Guest of Ladies' Group After Annual Tour.

Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia will make his official inspection of the Mount Vernon estate this morning, accompanied by the board of visitors. Under the charter granted the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association, the governor is ex-officio chairman of the board of visitors, and makes the tour during the annual ten-day session of the association. Following, the governor will be guest of the association at a luncheon on the estate.

This afternoon members of the association will journey to Hollin Hall, the estate of Harley Peyton Wilson on the Fort Hunt road, where Mrs. Wilson will present to the association a large map of the Mount Vernon estate drawn by George Washington. The map bears the personal signature of Washington. Hollin Hall is the estate originally owned by a son of George Mason of Gunston Hall, who was author of the Virginia Bill of Rights, which later became a part of the United States Constitution.

During this session of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association a letter from Gen. Washington's address to the General Assembly of Virginia has been presented to the association through Mrs. Benjamin Warren, vice regent for Michigan, as a gift from Mrs. Jonathan Buckley, of New York. The association stated it is particularly fitting that this letter should be reurned to Mount Vernon, as in it Gen. Washington states that he is looking forward to the day when he will be released from his public duties and can return to his beloved home.

A large silk flag also has been presented to the association by Mrs. Thomas P. Denham, vice regent for Florida. The flag is blue and gold, and on the blue ground is reproduced the badge of the association. This is the first association flag and was given by the vice regent in behalf of her State in memory of the former regent, Mrs. Harriet Clayton Coenegys.

Hunger Marchers Protest Idleness

1,500 Jobless Miners Seek Relief From State in West Virginia.

Charleston, W. Va., May 19 (A.P.).—Plans for a "hunger march" of 1,500 miners at Ward and along Kellys Creek to the State capital here to protest against destitution and unemployment were announced today by a delegation of men from that district.

The march will begin tonight, spokesmen for the delegation said. The marchers will camp along the way tonight, planning to reach the capital tomorrow to appear before Gov. Conley and request relief from the State.

The spokesmen said the Kellys Creek Collieries Co. declined to issue "script" for the purchase of groceries at the company store. "Our families are starving," one member of the delegation said. "For fifteen days we have had but one day's work a week and the company store has refused to help us out." The men said 850 families were affected by lack of work.

Frederick Is Host To Cattle Owners

Association of Maryland Holds Annual Meeting and Banquet.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., May 19.—About 100 persons, owners and breeders from every section of Maryland, attended the annual meeting and banquet of the Maryland Holstein-Friesian Association at Francis Scott Key Hotel tonight. J. Homer Remsberg, Middletown, president, presided and was toatsmaster at the banquet.

Addresses were made by Prof. H. H. Wing, Cornell University, president of the National Holstein-Friesian Association; Emory L. Coblentz, State senator; Howard C. Barker, superintendent of advanced registry testing, extension service, University of Maryland, and Walter F. Andrews, Beach City, Ohio. All referred to the growth of the dairy industry, with particular reference to the Holstein breed of cattle.

Reports of county associations were made and prizes aggregating $340—first, $100; second, $90; third, $75; fourth, $45; fifth, $30—were awarded for records the past year in testing, showing at fairs and production.

Drunken Woman Driver Must Scrub.

Chicago, May 19 (A.P.).—Mrs. Mary Ferguson, 35, was sentenced today to scrub the floor of the Town Hall Court for driving while intoxicated. She broke down and wept. "You ought to learn," said Judge Leon Edelman, "that scrubbing floors is more dignified than getting drunk."

MEETING TO DISCUSS GAS RATE PLANNED

Prince Georges Group to Seek Lower Schedule From Company.

A special committee of members of the Prince Georges County Chamber of Commerce will meet this afternoon with George A. G. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co., in an effort to agree on a lower scale of gas rates.

A revised schedule has already been offered to the Public Utilities Committee of the chamber, but the committee hopes that these proposed rates can be lowered. Mr. Wood, when he presented the revised scale, said that while the new rates were not as low as he had thought they would be, he did not think they could be lowered at this time. He agreed to the conference, however, and will consult his principal after the consultation today.

The new rate is $1 for the first 200 feet; $1.75 per thousand for the next 800 feet; next 1,500 feet, $1.40; 90 cents per thousand for more than 2,500 feet. The old rates were: First 200 feet, 35 cents per 100; next 200, 23 cents per 100; next 2,600, $1.75 per 1,000; next 2,000, $1.70 per 1,000; next 5,000, $1.55 per 1,000; over 10,000, $1.35 per thousand.

Under the old rate, 2,500 feet of gas cost $4.38; under the new rate, the same amount will cost only $3.85. In addition, the new rate on amounts over 2,500 feet will reduce the bills of those who use gas for heating.

Mr. Wood estimated that the new schedule would reduce the income of the Washington Suburban Gas Co. from $20,000 to $9,000 per year, on a basis of the same amount of business as last year. He stressed the fact that the Hyattsville company cost $1,090,000 when bought by the interests who own the Washington company.

The average consumption of gas in the area served by the Hyattsville company is 2,300 feet per month. The average gas bill under the old rate was $4.83 per month; under the new rate it will be $4.57. Mr. Wood said that the present average consumption, under either the new or the old rate, was not profitable to the company. The lower rate on quantity, he hopes, will raise the average amount used to a figure which will be profitable.

He spoke in favor of a six-month trial of the new rates, with a possibility of changing them if they were found to be unsatisfactory at the end of this time. He also stated that the proposed rates compared favorably with those in force where a plant served 5,000 meters. There are 3,400 meters on the Hyattsville system, he said.

The committee which will consult with Mr. Wood consists of Caesar L. Aiello, Dr. Robert W. McCullough, Bert H. Wise, M. T. May and A. H. Seidenspinner.

The Prince Georges Board of County Commissioners yesterday visited Hyattsville to personally inspect the three buildings which have been offered to them to house county offices, but no decision has been reached as to which will be rented.

The three buildings are the First National Bank Building, the Hyattsville Building Association structure, and a row of new stores on Rhode Island avenue. The rental of the bank building has not been set, but A. Enos Ray, president of the bank which owns it, has said that the price would be considerably under the limit of $500 per month set by the recent Legislature. The stores would be rented for $470, and the building association quarters for considerably less.

It is thought likely that a suitable building will be chosen in time to house the full-time police substation which is due to be established on June 1.

The Commissioners, at their meeting yesterday, ordered their attorney to write to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad protesting against the removal of the crossing watchman and safety gates at Branchville. The pending change was brought to their attention by J. Frank Gravely and Joseph A. Appleton. The present station agent at this point attends the gates, and abolition of the agent has been approved by the Public Service Commission after a hearing. The gates are to be replaced by an electric warning signal.

A letter from W. W. Portser, division engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was received, asking permission to detour traffic over the Tuxedo bridge while the flooring is being relaid. The commissioners agreed to allow the repairs and the diversion of traffic. The work will take about ten days.

A road examining board reported favorably on the proposal to take over as county roads the old Fort Foote road and the Temple Mill road. Both projects were referred to the chairman of the district road committee. The board was composed of Joseph A. Sheriff, George N. Cox and Clarence A. Phelps.

George Palmer, of Seat Pleasant, appeared to ask $300 for road repairs, but no action was taken on his request. He was to improve Roosevelt avenue from the District Line School to the District line. T. Van Clagett and Charles Hill, town commissioners of Marlboro, protested the general disregard of "No Parking" signs in front of the courthouse.

A letter from C. L. Goodwin, of 216 V street northeast, commending Deputy Sheriff A. C. Thompson for his work in arresting Fred O. Randolph, was received by the board. Randolph was arrested for driving while drunk, and during the trial Thompson recognized him as being wanted for manslaughter and arrested him on this charge.

A number of new applicants for positions on the county police force have filed with the Commissioners. One of them is Jeremiah J. Crowley, of Lanham, who is said to have a good chance of being chief. Other favorites for this post, besides Crowley, are L. Clinton Donaldson, of Laurel; A. W. Hepburn, of Mount Rainier, former lieutenant of the force, and H. G. Machen, of Hyattsville, former sergeant.

Others who have asked appointment to the new force are Preston Street, of Brentwood; Deputy Sheriff A. C. Thompson, of Clinton; R. H. Steele, of Lanham; John A. Cook, of Riverdale; W. H. Crozier, of Suitland; Carl C. Carrick, of Seat Pleasant; John Smith, of Bradbury Heights; William C. Quade, of Cheltenham; Oscar F. Beall, of Marlboro; J. J. Vermeulen, of Brentwood; Arthur M. Brown, of Laurel; Charles A. Smith, of Bradbury Heights; Roy McGee, of Oxon Hill; William J. Pierstein, of Bladensburg; E. L. Campbell, of Capitol Heights, and Leonard George Simpson, of Bladensburg.

These 17, with the 23 applications already filed, make a total of 40 names from which the commissioners will have to choose eleven. In addition to those who have made formal application, there are known to be others desirous of posts who are quietly bringing influence to bear, although they have not yet come out into the open.

Diagnosis of injuries received by Daniel West, 6 years old, when he was struck by an auto in Hyattsville can not be made for some time, according to officials at Sibley Hospital. The child's head was bruised and scraped, and is so swollen that the extent of his injuries can not be determined.

The child is said to have been struck by an auto driven by William Burslem, 19 years old, of Hyattsville, on Oakwood avenue, as he was returning from school. Daniel was walking with his sister, Bertha, 8, when the accident occurred.

Walter Gavins, colored, of Bladensburg, was released yesterday from the Marlboro Jail, where he had been held in connection with the death of Robert Jackson, also colored, of the same town. Police said that Gavins' alibi had been proved correct, and that a later autopsy showed that Jackson died of a broken neck.

The circuit judge yesterday granted a decree of absolute divorce to Elsie Payne, of Cottage City, who had sued Raymond Payne, of Washington, charging desertion and cruelty. Attorney John S. White represented the woman.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

WHAT? NO CONFETTI!

THE New York Board of Trade has condemned the use of ticker tape and confetti in welcoming America's distinguished guests, and voted to urge the substitution of "a more suitable and dignified welcome." This action officially inaugurates the silly season. Any distinguished visitor who got into America without his hair full of waste paper would consider it a personal slight. They love it.

* * * *

Now and then the failure of the natives to remove clinkers, ink bottles and iron bolts from the wastebaskets as they empty them from skyscraper windows may cause momentary resentment on the part of the day's hero, but he prefers the entire contents of the baskets to nothing at all.

* * * *

Not dump ticker tape, confetti and torn paper on a municipal guest of honor? Not engulf him in a sea of office rubbish? Not shower his untutored face with the office sweepings of America's skyscrapers? Don't be ridiculous! Any real hero who didn't get the treatment would sue the United States.

* * * *

And, assuming that some visiting hotsy-totsy expressed a willingness to forgo the office debris bath, how would the Board of Trade break those Broadway office workers of the dumping habit? It's become an instinct. The moment a stenographer hears a drum or a bugle in the street below she instinctively reaches for the waste paper basket. The stuff is out of the window before she realizes it.

* * * *

ELMER TWITCHELL came bouncing into the office today with a story that the meeting at which the use of ticker tape was condemned was not a meeting of the Board of Trade at all. "It was really a meeting of the Protective Association of Street Cleaners, posing as Board of Trade members," declared Mr. Twitchell, greatly excited.

* * * *

"The street cleaners have been trying for years to figure out a way to stop this old custom," said Elmer. "It was finally decided to resort to subterfuge. About 25 of the more substantial looking street sweepers were chosen to hire a hall and pose as the Board of Trade. They wore old-fashioned watch charms and chewed pepper-mint drops to complete the illusion, if any.

* * * *

"It was at first proposed that resolutions be passed doing away with official receptions. In fact, one street cleaner went so far as to make a motion that the mayor's reception committee be towed to sea and dumped outside the ten-mile limit. Another man moved that no distinguished persons be allowed to visit the city.

* * * *

"It was a pretty stormy session, the conservative element finally winning with a resolution merely favoring the abolition of waste paper dumping, as a starter.

* * * *

"Do you know how I discovered it wasn't a meeting of the Board of Trade?"

"No."

"A radio across the way started playing 'Hail the Conquering Hero Comes' and the committee chairman absent-mindedly began sweeping the room with a big broom!"

Sir Thomas Lipton has at last been elected to the Royal Yacht Squadron. This evidently marked the club's retreat from the position that there was no such person.

Walt Whitman finally crashed the Hall of Fame the same day Sir Thomas made the Royal Yacht Squadron, which must go to show that no waiting list is what it used to be.

"Market Shows Some Signs of Support."—headline. If anybody is supporting the stock market at present levels it must be a Singer midget.

It would be ironical if one of these days a motion picture magnate got hit by a stray bullet from a gangman's fight while on his way from a meeting at which he had stoutly defended crime pictures as in no way harmful to anybody.

Fraternal Americans Convene in Winchester

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., May 19.—Membership gains were slight in Virginia last year, the State Council, Order of Fraternal Americans, was told in committee reports at today's annual session here, due largely, it was said, to general business depression. Otherwise the order was reported in good condition, including finances. About 150 representatives of over 100 subordinate councils registered.

State Councilor W. A. Wine, Quicksburg, presided. Nineteen new representatives attending a State Council for the first time were obligated and given degrees. A dozen committees were appointed to pass upon reports. The council voted to meet next year in Alexandria.

MONTGOMERY VOTES VILLA ROMA PERMIT

Roadhouse Gets License, Despite Fight Waged by Citizen Group.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4206.

Villa Roma, roadhouse on Rockville pike, was licensed to operate for another year yesterday by the Montgomery County Commissioners by a vote of 6 to 1. The license carries permission to operate a public dance hall and requires the payment of $1,000 a year license fee to the county.

The application for a renewal of the license by Frank Abbo, proprietor of the establishment, was opposed at a public hearing held in Rockville two weeks ago by the commissioners. Members of the Rockville Pike Citizens' Association opposed the granting of the permit. Several residents who lived closest to the roadhouse, however, told the commissioners that they were not disturbed by the club.

Several additional county organizations filed letters with the commissioners, recommending that the license be renewed after it became known that thre was opposition. Among these were the executive committee of the Rockville Fire Department, the xcutive committee of the Rockville Post of the American Legion, representatives of two Washington American Legion posts, and four members of the executive committee of the Woman's Democratic Cfub of Montgomery County, all of whom said that they had held functions at the Villa Roma and had found it to be operated in an orderly manner.

Carey E. Quinn, executive secretary of the Progressive Democratic party, and Walter W. Dawson, Republican member of the House of Delegates from Montgomery County, appeared as counsel for Mr. Abbo and urged the issuance of the permit.

Lacy Shaw, president of the board of county commissioners, was the only resident. He stated that inasmuch as he had opposed several applications for similar establishments in his own district at Silver Spring, that he did not feel that he could conscientiously vote for the issuance of the permit. He made it plain however that he did not wish to influence the other members of the board.

Attorney Robert B. Peter, jr., representing the Georgetown Gas Co. of Montgomery County and the Maryland Gas Transmission Co. of Baltimore, appeared before the county comissioners yesterday to protect the assessments against these companies.

The commissioners postponed the hearing until next Monday, when they will meet again with Mr. Peter, who in the meantime will prepare more information on the valuation of the gas companies' property. The commissioners also told Attorney Peter that they will

53 ARMY POSTS SLATED FOR AX ARE ANNOUNCED

Hunt Will Become Part of Parkway; Eustis, Lee to Be Discarded.

ORDERS MAY AROUSE STORM OF PROTESTS

Abandoning of "Political Forts" Will Be Made Congress Issue.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

A list of 53 Army posts which are to be disposed of either wholly or in part was made public yesterday by the War Department. How much will be saved to the Government was not estimated, but it was pointed out that the land occupied by the 53 posts is valued at $22,000,000.

Twenty-four posts will be disposed of entirely, while 29 will be disposed of in part. About 5,000 officers and men will have to be transferred to new billets.

Of the posts that are to be abandoned entirely, four are in Virginia. They are Fort Hunt, Fort Eustis, Camp Lee, and a coast defense post on Fisherman's Island, near the entrance to Chesapeake Bay. None of the posts in Maryland are listed for abandonment.

Fort Hunt Can Not Be Sold.

Fort Hunt, built during the Spanish-American War, and located on the Virginia side of the Potomac River, about two miles north of Mount Vernon, can not be sold.

Under terms of the Capper-Cramton act, Fort Hunt, once it is abandoned by the Army, becomes a part of the George Washington Memorial Parkway, which will skirt either bank of the Potomac from Washington to Mount Vernon and Fort Washington.

The Capper-Cramton act also provides that if Fort Washington and Fort Foote on the Maryland side of the river are abandoned, they, too, will become part of the memorial parkway. There is no present intention of abandoning Fort Washington. As for Fort Foote, it is now being leased to the War Department Welfare Association and to the Girl Scouts. The lease, however, is revocable.

Fort Hunt has 197 acres. The eight officers and 57 men stationed there probably will be transferred to Fort Washington, where there are 18 officers and 515 men.

Meade May Get Eustis Force.

Fort Eustis, the largest of the posts listed for disposal yesterday, is located on the Virginia peninsula, and lies between Williamsburg and Newport News. A World War cantonment, it is sprawled over 7,000 acres of land.

Today there are 86 officers and 1,446 enlisted men stationed at Fort Eustis. They probably will be moved to Fort George Meade, Md., a permanent post.

Fort Eustis has been an important citizens military training camp in the Third Corps area, comprising the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania. Fort Meade probably will take over that function, too.

Camp Lee is in a caretaker status, which means that it is being guarded by a half dozen or so soldiers. Fishermans Island, near Cape Charles, is in the same status.

Other Posts Included.

Other large posts which, according to yesterday's announcement, are to be disposed of in the interest of "efficiency and economy," follow:

Fort Brown, Tex., 9 officers and 74 enlisted men; Camp Harry J. Jones, Ariz., 12 officers, 319 men; Fort Lincoln, N. Dak., 16 officers, 319 men; Camp Stephen D. Little, Ariz., 28 officers, 478 men; Miller Field, N. Y., 7 officers, 154 men; Fort Missoula, Mont., 14 officers, 333 men; Fort D. A. Russell, Tex., 35 officers, 563 men, and Chanute Field, Ill., 117 officers, 837 men.

Some of these posts have long and colorful histories, as, for example, Fort Brown, at Brownsville, Tex. It was from here that Gen. Zachary Taylor's cavalry took off to engage in the first real combat of the Mexican War. The fort also was the scene of a less creditable event—the bloody riot in which Negro cavalrymen and white citizens participated during President Roosevelt's administration.

Protests Are Expected.

Publication of the list of doomed forts is expected to be followed by an avalanche of protests from the communities in which they are located. It always has been thus; hence the term "political forts." That

League Votes Geneva As Arms Parley Site

Scheme to Aid European Farmers Approved; Credit Looms.

Geneva, Switzerland, May 20 (A.P.).—A scheme designed to relieve distress of European farmers, involving organization of an international agricultural credit company which would lend money to needy growers and take as security mortgages on their farm property was approved tonight by the Pan-European commission.

Hailed as the "first child" of the commission's labors for the economic reconstruction of Europe, the project received the support of a majority of representatives of European members of the League of Nations, but the voice of Russia was lifted in dissent.

Under the proposal an international credit company would be launched with paid-in capital of $5,000,000 and it would be authorized to borrow $50,000,000 in the open market.

The plan will be embodied in a draft convention to be presented to the council of the League of Nations at its present session for approval

Conference to Be Held in February; Provision of Treaty Aired.

Geneva, Switzerland, May 20 (A.P.).—The League of Nations council today decided that the general disarmament conference next February would be held in Geneva, and then debated provisions of a projected general disarmament treaty.

Today's discussion involved the principle of limiting trained reserves and war materials and arose over the form of questionnaire which individual states would be asked to answer preparatory to next year's conferences. The purpose of these documents would be to disclose the present state of each country's armaments.

Further consideration of the matter was postponed until Friday, after it was learned Italy no longer supported Germany in the matter.

The German view, as outlined by Foreign Minister Julius Curtius, was that the status of war materials on hand and trained reserves should be covered in the questionnaire form. Arthur Henderson, British foreign

BANKERS PRESENTED TRADE REVIVAL PLAN

Julius H. Barnes' Program Touches Business and Foreign Relations.

(Associated Press.)

An eleven-point program for the improvement of Government, business and international relations and trade was submitted yesterday to the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the board of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The association opened its eleventh annual conference.

Mr. Barnes sought to outline team play between the Government and industry. He said his recommendations are soundly based for the Government's contribution in the effort to secure stabilization and recovery from this depression.

Briefly his program suggested the following:

"Legislation to lift restrictions which prevent insurance companies from proposing in private contracts security against unemployment.

"Framers of tax laws should seek advice and take recommendations from those skilled on the subject, particularly the capital gains provision.

"An end to senatorial disparagement of men nominated to Government posts by the President.

"Congress should follow the recommendation of President Hoover, organized business and other organizations in respect to joining the World Court.

"Reconsideration of the antitrust laws.

"Resurvey of the banking laws.

"Restudy of railroad regulation to permit the carriers to meet competition of new transportation means.

"Treatment of tariff as an economic and not a political issue.

"Respect for recommendations of responsible administrative officials as to economy in public expenditure.

"Disposal of Muscle Shoals.

"Keep the Government out of business in competition with private industry."

Mr. Barnes said, "I have every confidence that the brains which built America are still alive and that they will find the answer to the situation.

"Nine out of ten of the captains of industry today rose from the ranks," he continued. "They do not forget the problems and anxieties of the men whose strata they have left. They are not changed in nature of habit, of thought or aspiration by the fact that their native ability or fortunate chance has lifted them to higher places in industry."

He asked for a "sober study by all American industries of the problem within their own scope, as they relate to the broader problem, and thta they will try to find the answer and

HOOVER TO BE HOST TO COL. ROOSEVELT

News of Visit Arouses Talk of Vice Presidential Race in 1932.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, governor of Porto Rico, will spend the week-end with President Hoover at the latter's Rapidan camp, it was announced at the White House yesterday.

The announcement had the effect of renewing talk about the possibility of Col. Roosevelt being made the Republican vice presidential nominee in 1932.

Col. Roosevelt, who is on his way from San Juan to New York on personal business, notified the White House that he would stop off in Washington Saturday. As the President will be at his camp that day, arrangements were made to have an automobile transport Col. Roosevelt thither.

The suggestion that Col. Roosevelt be President Hoover's running mate in 1932 was heard for the first time while the President was visiting Porto Rico. When the colonel himself heard it, he was quite surprised.

A month or so later, The Washington Post conducted a poll among delegates and alternates to the Republican convention of 1928. When the returns came in, it was found that Col. Roosevelt was the runner-up in the vice presidential race.

An overwhelming majority—247—said that Vice President Curtis could again get the nomination "if he wants it."

Sixty delegates and alternates suggested Col. Roosevelt for the nomination. This was nearly twice the number of "votes" that any other politician received. Next to Col. Roosevelt came Senator Dwight Morrow, of New Jersey, who was suggested for the vice presidential nomination by 34 delegates and alternates. And next to him was Secretary of War Hurley. Thirteen thought he would be a good man for the job.

The poll and political logic indicate that Vice President Curtis can again be the vice presidential nominee in 1932 "if he wants it." The question of whether he wants it or not remains unanswered. The Vice President says he has not yet made his plans for 1932. If he does not run for a second nomination he will seek to recapture his seat in the Senate.

The big business at Rapidan this week, however, will not be the vice presidential nomination, but the deficit in the Postoffice Department. The President will have as his guests Postmaster General Brown and several of that official's assistants.

The Postoffice Department this year is facing a deficit of $140,000,000. In the end Congress will have to decide how to solve the problem. If it asks Postmaster General Brown for advice he will recommend that the postage for first-class mail be increased from 2 cents to 2½ cents.

McNamee's Wife Files Suit; 'Ideal' Marriage Collapses

GRAHAM M'NAMEE

Radio Announcer Does Not Know What Charges Mate Is Making.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Graham McNamee, widely known radio announcer, said today he had been served in a suit for separation by his wife, the former Josephine Garrett.

Mrs. McNamee filed the action several weeks ago, McNamee said. He added that he did not know where his wife was, but that the separation was not by mutual consent.

"I was served about the first of May with papers in a separation suit brought by my wife," he asserted. "I don't know what charges she makes. I have not seen all of the papers."

The papers were filed in Supreme Court and have been sealed, it was learned. Close friends of the announcer did not know of his alleged marital difficulties. It had been reported the McNamees had separated, but the supposition was that Mrs.

CROSBY DENIES GANGSTER FOOTHOLD; 3,304 GUNS SOLD, 3 PERMITS EXIST; MAN IN CAFE SHOOTS LABOR EDITOR

Pistol Traffic Unabated and Acquisition Costs Little Effort.

Other Weapons Shipped Here Bring Total to 10,000; Remedies Fail.

Only three private citizens are authorized to carry pistols in the District, but thousands of the easily concealed weapons which have been spitting leaden death in the recent outbreak of shootings have been sold to Washington residents in the last sixteen months.

Traffic in pistols is unimpeded and legal acquisition of one is merely a matter of a few dollars and a few moments, and, if concealment is desired, possession of sufficient imagination to give a false name and address to the dealer from which it is purchased.

Though each dealer is required by law to ascertain the name and address of each person buying a pistol in the District and to report each sale to the police within a month, these reports are little more than a joke so far as identifying pistol purchasers.

Reports filed with the Police Department by local dealers show that 3,304 pistols were sold in the calendar year 1930 and the first four months of this year.

Of this total, 2,456 were sold in the last calendar year and 848 in the four months ending with April 30.

Others Are Shipped.

Investigations by police and Federal officials in the past have shown that for every pistol sold by a local dealer to a resident of the National Capital, at least two others are shipped to purchasers here through the mails or by express.

This would bring the number of pistols sold in the National Capital in the last 16 months to approximately 10,000.

There is no law against ownership or possession of a pistol in the District, though there is a law punishing the carrying of concealed weapons whether the weapon be a pistol or other gun or weapon such as knives, blackjacks and others.

Special permission to carry a pistol is authorized, but Frank A. Sebring, clerk of the District Police Court, has issued but three permits this year and does not remember when the total number ever reached as many as a score at one time.

Those who have special permits to carry pistols at this time are Charley Soo and George Wen, Chinese, and Wash B. Williams, a coal merchant.

Issued on Application.

Permits are issued by Mr. Sebring on application with the approval of the presiding judge of the Police Court. Applications must be accompanied by supporting affidavits of three reputable citizens and the posting of a real estate bond of $300, which must be renewed each 30 days. Permits are issued for a three-month

Frank Langdon, 72, Is Hit by Two of Eight Bullets From Two Pistols.

Intruder Flees After Firing Six Times in Building and Twice in Street.

Internal troubles in a labor union are believed by police to have come to a head in a Washington restaurant yesterday when a roughly clad man whipped out two pistols and sprayed the place with lead, seriously wounding Frank Langdon, 72, assistant to the general secretary of the International Union of Operating Engineers and editor of its trade journal. The man escaped.

Six bullets were fired at three officials of the union, which has figured in the courts here and in Chicago recently, as they sat lunching in the Robin Hood Cafeteria, 945 K street northwest, directly across the street from the headquarters of the organization.

Two of the bullets struck Mr. Langdon, one passing throughh is left eye and another cutting his cheek. Another bullet struck Arthur M. Huddell, of Massachusetts, president of the union, directly over the heart, but a bulky notebook he carried in an inside breast pocket saved his life. His only wound was caused by a pencil, which gouged his flesh with the impact of the slug.

The third member of the luncheon party escaped injury. He is John Possehl, of Cleveland, general secretary of the union, who attempted to battle with his assailant before he was routed by the rain of slugs.

Shortly After Noon.

The three labor officials entered the cafeteria for lunch shortly after noon. They picked a table a short distance from one of the two doors to the basement restaurant and started their meal.

A short time later a man about 50 years old, dressed in blue denim overalls, entered the place, selected some dishes, and then walked over to a table directly behind the one at which the union officials were seated.

Instead of sitting down to lunch he suddenly whipped out a pistol and began firing almost point blank at the men at the next table.

He fired twice with the pistol when it jammed, and with an oath he threw it aside, drew another and kept up the fusiliade. In all he shot six times in the cafeteria and took two additional shots at Possehl on the street.

At the first shot Mr. Possehl said he leaped up from the table and picked it up for a shield. The table bears evidence of the man's marksmanship, for it bears a hole directly through the center.

Picked Up Chair.

"The fellow tried to come around beside me as he fired," Mr. Possehl said, "but I edged against the wall. Then I picked up a chair and tried to hit him with it, but he kept firing, and I was forced to run out the front door.

"I thought I would go around to

Police Chief Cites Effort Being Made to Oust Criminals Here.

STATEMENT IS FIRST SINCE TAKING POST

Declares Underworld Had No Part in Most of Year's 27 Murders.

The notorious gangster of organized crime has no foothold in the National Capital, and "Washington can rest assured that no effort is being spared to keep the city clear of the gangster," Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, retired, District Commissioner in charge of police, declared yesterday in his first formal statement since he assumed office more than a year ago.

Gen. Crosby's statement was made at the end of four days of shootings which have claimed nine victims, some of whom have been killed outright and others of whom are in hospitals with varying chances of winning their fights for life.

The importance of the gangster element involved in some of the shootings was derided by the Commissioner, who described Tally Day, one of the men killed, as "a watchman employed to watch cars outside a rambling place in a neighboring State, who was killed as a result of a quarrel with an acquaintance." The shooting yesterday afternoon, he said, grew out of a labor dispute in other cities.

Of the 27 persons murdered since January 1, Gen. Crosby said, only two were innocent citizens shot down by persons engaged in the commission of crimes. One of these, in which Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes was shot in the course of a hold-up of a tea shop, is unsolved. In the other two men have been arrested, indicted and are in jail awaiting trial for the shooting of James H. Lane, street car employe who resisted efforts to rob him of his fare receipts.

Cites Police Dismissal.

Taking up criticism of policeman for alleged connection with unlawful activities, Gen. Crosby said that no effort would be spared to bring such men to justice and cited the dismissal of 63 men from the force for failing to maintain department standards of conduct.

Gen. Crosby concluded a brief analysis of the killings in Washington since January 1, with the statement:

"This brief analysis demonsttrates that these killings are not the result of gang warfare. Washington can rest assured that no effort is being spared to keep the city clear of the gangster. He is not here now."

Commissioner Crosby's statement follows:

"The recent succession of shootings that have occurred in Washington is of great concern to me and to our Police Department, as well as to our citizens.

Succession of Events.

"My investigations and those of the Police Department show that these shootings are in no sense an expression of gang warfare, but are a succession of unrelated events that have occurred over a brief period. One of them, for instance, was a watchman employed to watch cars outside a gambling place in a neighboring State, who was killed as result of a quarrel with an acquaintance. Another grew out of what now appears to be a labor dispute which originated in another city.

"If, as is alleged, a policeman is involved in one of the shootings, the public may be assured that every effort will be made to secure the necessary evidence to secure a conviction. This statement holds true with reference to any member of the police force who may be involved in any manner with law violators or law violations.

"As evidence of the determination of the department to rid itself of such members as have failed to maintain the required standard of service and conduct, 63 have been dismissed from the service in the last two years. It is my personal opinion that we have an efficient and honest police force. Of course, there are exceptions, but I know of no walk in life in which this is not true.

Activity of Police.

For example, the percentage of arrests for murders is an evidence of the activity of the police. All but two of the 27 murder cases occurring

Attorneys Ask Jurors' Dismissal and Accuse Justice Agent of Influencing Witness in Calhoun Case; Mistrial Sought.

The trial of three men and two women on an indictment charging them with conspiring to blackmail Capt. and Mrs. C. C. Calhoun slipped into a critical stage late yesterday, when defense attorneys argued strongly for the withdrawal of a juror and a consequent mistrial on the grounds that a Government witness had been intimidated by a Department of Justice agent.

Justice Jesse Adkins took the request under serious advisement. He asked attorneys for both sides to send to his home, last night, briefs relating to mistrials occasioned by intimidation of a witness. Justice Adkins will rule on the mistrial question this morning, with strong indications pointing to its granting.

The witness, Mrs. Emma Crouse, said that a Department of Justice agent had told her "this case must be won." Further, she said, she had been told that she would get herself in trouble if she didn't testify as she had indicated she might testify before the trial.

Mrs. Crouse was recalled to the stand, and she denied that any portion of her testimony was untrue. She said that she did not remember some of the questions which were in the record as having been answered by her, but she said that she had told the truth in those disputed questions.

A bitter wrangle, in which personalities flew thick and fast, enlivened the trial for two hours. Defense attorneys, strove to prove that Mrs. Crouse's testimony was certain to be influenced by the alleged statements made to her. Assistant United States Attorney Irving Goldstein, at one point shouted: "Mr. Rover knows all about my conduct in this case, and he had told me that he approved everything I did."

"Does he know everything you did?" Charles Arth, defense counsel, asked.

At another point, Mr. Goldstein charged the defense was attempting to force him to take the witness stand "so that he could not argue this case to the jury." Richard L. Merrick, another defense counsel, denied this.

Another exchange between the attorneys was brought up when Mr. Goldstein, commenting on a proposal to "straighten out the record" said "I have nothing to straighten out, but I think some others do." His remarks went out under a barrage of angry voices from opposing lawyers.

Mrs. Crouse testified that on the afternoon when she testified, she was nervous and nauseated. She declared she had been called to the district attorney's office, where she was asked: "What are you trying to do, spin me?" At this point Justice Adkins attempted to question the witness about all her testimony, but upon objection of Mr. Merrick, he desisted.

Mrs. Crouse reiterated several times that regardless of the so-called "intimidating remarks" she had told only the truth on the stand. Here the mention of a "mysterious name" was referred to by Justice Adkins. He implied that this name, "which isn't to be mentioned here," might have had some bearing on testimony. The name was never mentioned in open court.

Mrs. Crouse further said yesterday that she went to Paul Sedgwick's

DAY FUNERAL RITES ENLIVENED BY FIGHT

"The Boys," Honoring Gambler, Attack Cameraman; Woman Injured.

"The Boys" who accompanied Talley Day's body to its grave in Cedar Hill Cemetery yesterday showed their respect for the small-time gambler by starting a fight as the body was being lowered in the grave. A group of "the boys" attacked O. B. Troup, a photographer, and destroyed a picture he had made of the burial. An unsuccessful attempt also was made to intimidate a Post photographer in front of the church.

Mrs. L. E. Vining, of Seventeenth street near S street southeast, who was attending another funeral, was slightly cut on the hand by a piece of glass or brass knuckles as she was caught in the midst of the melee.

The mother of Talley Day, Mrs. Annie Day, was restrained from throwing herself into the grave of her son by bystanders. She collapsed as the body was lowered.

The services were held in St. George's Syrian Greek Orthodox Church, 1009 Eighth street northwest, of which the Rev. Job Sollom is pastor. In all, there were about 150 persons in the church, of whom 100 were women. With the exception of a short sermon, all of the services were said in Syrian and Greek.

Benjamin Hoffiz, a chanter in the church and a restaurant owner, delivered a brief sermon. "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth," he said, looking toward "the boys."

If there was any sympathy to be shown at the ceremony it might have been directed to the family of Day, who, fasting for hours, sat alongside his bier, inhaling the pungent odor of incense and watching the dead face of their kin as it was illumined by two flickering tapers.

Day's father, Nicholas, is proprietor

CUNNINGHAM HATED, FEARED MIDDLETON

Police Attempting to Link Patrolman to Slaying Recall Warning.

A hatred and fear of Patrolman Wallace J. Middleton by Jack Cunningham is the link with which police hope to connect the policeman with the slaying of the hi-jacker and police informant.

It was Cunningham who told Shocky Yudelevit, police said yesterday, that Middleton was the man who stole fifteen cases of liquor from Yudelevit's place on I street near Twelfth street on May 8.

The slain hi-jacker, it also was learned, told Lieut. Frank Varney and Detective J. A. Mostyn of the First Precinct last October that Middleton forced him to go on a hi-jacking expedition.

On this occasion, Cunningham brought the policemen to his apartment and showed them a gun which he said he was going to use on Middleton if he "tried anything funny." Cunningham said he was just telling them "in case anything happened."

Relatives of Middleton last night employed Charles E. Ford, attorney, to take the policeman's case.

Mr. Ford, after interviewing his client said: "It will be proved conclusively that Patrolman Middleton had nothing to do with the shooting of Cunningham." Meanwhile, he has advised his client to answer no questions.

Capt. Edward J. Kelly and Detective Sergeant John A. Flaherty last night questioned Mrs. Helen Cunningham, widow of the slain man, regarding Middleton's relationships with her and also to determine whether she knows the identity of the killer.

Capt. Kelly last night denied Cunningham had actually named Middleton as the man who shot him. The

Staff Members, However, Deny Calling Detectives; Blame Neighbors.

Informed by an anonymous telephone call that a woman was screaming at 1706 Massachusetts avenue northwest, which is the Turkish Embassy, headquarters detectives last night sped to that address to be met by members of the embassy staff, who denied they called for police.

A member of the embassy household, who said he was the nephew of the Turkish Ambassador, Ahmed Muhtar Bey, said a woman, whose identity he would not reveal, was ill and in a highly nervous condition and that she had made outcries a few minutes previous. Possibly this occasioned some neighbor to communicate with police, he suggested, but he told both the headquarters detectives and reporters who arrived simultaneously, that nothing untoward had occurred.

A return to strong-arm methods is what is needed to cope with Washington's new crop of gun fighters and petty racketeers before the situation is beyond police control.

Force is the weapon that must be brought into use in dealing with criminals, says Frederick A. period, presumably on a showing by the applicant of his need for carrying the weapon.

Night and other watchmen and guards in banks and other places who are issued commissions as special police officers are authorized to carry pistols or other weapons while actually on the property they are designated to guard, but the authorization does not extend beyond the boundaries of their guardianship and they may not carry the weapons to and from their places of employment.

The current outburst of shootings is expected to give added impetus to the efforts of District police officials and the Commissioners to have Congress enact the firearms bill introduced in Congress more than two years ago.

This measure would prohibit delivery of a pistol to a purchaser until 48 hours after application is made for its purchase. The name and address of the purchaser would, in the meantime, be checked by the police to make certain the weapon was going into proper hands.

At present pistols are sold without delay. Dealers are required to get from the purchaser his name and address. But they accept any name or address and no effort is made to check on the truthfulness of the purchaser's statements. In this respect, the monthly reports made to police are lightly regarded by them as a source of information. The reports are studied as they are received, but their principal value lies in checking the numbers of pistols used in crimes in an effort to trace the ownership but this is a fruitless task whenever a criminal is involved because the name and address on the list probably is fictitious.

Opposition to Measure.

Opposition to the measure proposed by the Police Department prevented the bill getting serious consideration in the last session of Congress. This opposition came from various quarters, including the manufacturers of firearms and the national rifle organizations.

Changes in the phraseology of the measure probably will be made by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, after conferences with representatives of those groups and interests and most of the opposition is expected to be cleared away in the next session of Congress.

Enactment of this measure, however, would not cover the interstate shipment of firearms by mail or express and the flow of weapons into the National Capital through those channels of supply would not be affected. There was pending in the last Congress a national measure regulating interstate shipment of weapons which probably will be reintroduced in the new Congress.

In the meantime there is nothing more to be done, Maj. Pratt said. The law merely requires dealers to get a name and address from a purchaser and does not hold the seller responsible for the accuracy of the information given. Dealers are observing the present law, which is inadequate, he said.

Hyattsville Men Renamed to Posts

New Administration Meets and Reappoints Three Town Employes.

The new Hyattsville town administration last night reappointed the electrical inspector, the health officer, and the town engineer on the occasion of the second meeting of the new body. E. P. Maddox will continue to serve in the electrical post, Dr. Leonard Hays will continue as health officer, and William R. Snyder will keep office as the engineer.

The council took no action last night toward appointment of a building inspector, and Herbert J. Moffat will continue in this post for the time being. The possibility of doing without this officer after the new Park and Planning Commission code goes into effect was discussed. The bill under which the commission is drawing up a code provides for a building inspector for the park and planning district, who may be able to take the place of the town official.

A committee to represent the town at a hearing before the District Public Utilities Commission on May 25 was also appointed. The hearing will be held on the petition of the Potomac Electric Power Co. to make nearby Maryland and Virginia equal with the District when electric rates are set.

LABOR EDITOR SHOT BY CAFE INTRUDER

Man Flees After Firing Six Times in Building and Twice on Street.

the side door and get him as he came out, but he still had some bullets in his gun and I ran across the street. I saw a man across the street and yelled at him to stop the fellow as he came out the side door. When I did the man turned and fired at me twice again."

It was probably the fifth and sixth shots fired inside the eating place which struck Mr. Langdon, felling him.

Miss Iranell Jester, who operates the cafeteria, probably saved her life by dropping behind the counter during the battle. Three bullets found a mark at the base of the counter behind which she was lying, and two others were imbedded in the walls of the place. A piece of sheet iron which reinforces the wooden base of the counter stopped one of the bullets which struck directly at the spot where Miss Jester dropped.

"I noticed the man particularly when he came in," Miss Jester said, "because we have never had anyone come in here dressed in overalls."

Dressed In Overalls.

She described the man as being about 50 years old, dressed in blue overalls, blue shirt, and wearing a cap. He was about 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighed about 180 pounds, she said.

"He gave me a dollar to pay for his food, and when he got his change he walked over to the table behind Mr. Possehl and his friends.

"I didn't pay much attention to him, and then I heard the shot. I saw Mr. Possehl try to hit him with a chair, and it's a wonder he wasn't killed. The man was shooting right at him, just a few feet away.

"I ran and dropped behind the counter and I don't remember much more about it, until a little later I saw Mr. Langdon lying on the floor. I was so excited I could hardly call for the police."

The only occupants of the cafeteria at the time of the shooting beside these principals were the chef, Henry Neal, 49, who served the gunman, and two women. At the first shot the young women ran out the front exit.

Highly Nervous State.

Neal said that the gunman appeared to be in a highly nervous state, trembling, his lips quivering. He kept turning to look at the table where his intended victims sat.

Several persons, attracted by the firing, saw the gunman leave the cafeteria. One of them, a counter clerk at a drug store directly across the street, said he saw the man leave and run into an alley across Tenth street. The young clerk said he followed the man up the alley, until he was stopped by another man, who warned him that the gunman still had several bullets in his gun.

Mrs. Herbert Braham, of 1002 Massachusetts avenue, said she heard the shots and as she looked out of her window she saw a man run through the alley, gain Massachusetts avenue and then leap into an automobile occupied by a second man. This car then turned north on Tenth street at high speed, without waiting for a green light.

She was unable to describe the man very clearly, however, but said the car was a coupe.

A set of fingerprints was obtained from dishes and the tray used by the assailant of Mr. Langdon. They will be photographed and will be held with the gun the man threw away, for evidence.

License Number Given.

A man on the street gave police the license number of a coupe in which the gunman is believed to have escaped. Police said they believe the license plates were stolen from J. Claude Keiper, grand secretary of the Masons, the whom they were issued.

Mr. Huddell and Mr. Possehl were positive that they had never seen the men who fired on them before yesterday.

Police believe Mr. Langdon was an innocent victim of the shooting and that the bullets were intended for Mr. Huddell.

Mr. Huddell himself admitted that an attack on him was not unexpected. His theory was that the attack was caused by his attempts to "eliminate racketeering in many respects in our union." He said he knew he had created enemies.

"We have asked for police protection," he said, "because we knew there would be an uprising from this element. We have expelled more than 40 members in various parts of the country recently because they refused to abide by our by-laws, and we defeated court cases in which they sought to be reinstated."

Mr. Huddell classified the expelled members as "Communists" and "bolshevists."

President Eight Years.

"I have been president of this union for eight years," he said, "and I know there are many who do not like my administration. Without doubt, I'm the man they were after."

When asked whether he thought that the attack had its inception through the bitterness of some disgruntled member of the union, Mr. Possehl was noncommittal.

"I don't know," he said. "I have had fights all my life. This guy got the drop on me, though."

Police were at work last night on a theory that the assailant of the union officials may have been a Chicago gunman imported by some dissatisfied members, or former members, of the organization. It is understood that the union has lately had troubles in Chicago.

Its affairs have received official notice in Washington twice in recent months. One time a woman horsewhipped one of the officials of the organization at its local headquarters, 1003 K street northwest, because she said the union had kept her husband out of work.

At another time police had a report that a man had been beaten by members of the union, allegedly because he had taken work in an open shop.

Both of these cases, however, were settled out of court.

Another theory of the shooting was that the assailant of the union officials was a person out of work, a man made desperate through months of searching for a job, who suddenly ran amuck.

GEN. DUNLAP'S BODY TAKEN FROM DEBRIS

French Farmer Also Killed and Wife Baldy Injured by Avalanche.

Tours, France, May 20 (A.P.).—Ruins of the Stone Age cavern in which he perished in a futile endeavor to save the life of a peasant woman today gave up the body of Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap, of the United States Marine Corps.

After almost twenty-four hours of digging, rescue workers headed by French army engineers came upon the mangled form of the American officer where he was trapped yesterday by an avalanche which engulfed the cave near Cino Mars, where the woman and her husband made their home. The body of Denis Briant, husband of the woman, who rushed with Brig. Gen. Dunlap to save her as the fall of rock and stone started, also was recovered. Mme. Briant was rescued alive, but badly injured.

Mrs. Dunlap, in a nearby home, broke down when she received news of his death. She left by train for Paris this afternoon. Her husband's coffin, covered with an American flag, lay tonight in a private mortuary chapel here. It will be accompanied to Paris tomorrow by Vice Consul Randolph Harrison, jr.

The body will lie in state in the American Church in Paris until plans are completed to send it to America. Burial probably will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Dunlap, who came to Tours with the general seven weeks ago so that he might complete his studies in the French language, watched horror-stricken as her husband and the Farmer Briant were caught in the slide.

She requested that the French government pay no formal military honor to her dead husband.

"BOYS" AT DAY RITES ROUT CAMERAMAN of a delicatessen store in the Georgetown section. He sat immobile for hours, his hands between his knees, gazing into the coffin. Day's mother moaned plaintively. Neither seemed to understand why so many were at the services. Day's wife and his mother wailed convulsively as the casket was closed, after the priest had sprinkled ashes and holy oils on the corpse.

Then they took the body to the cemetery where "the boys" made their assault on the photographer. The grief-stricken parents were led away past the grave of their son Basil, who was killed in an accident two years ago.

An inquest into the death will be held today. Elmer "Bulldog" Sweeney is charged with shooting Day. Another man is still being sought.

Justice Jennings Bailey yesterday signed a temporary padlock injunction against the premises at 1523 M street northwest, where Day was shot.

The action, taken upon a petition submitted to Justice Bailey by Capt. Harold W. Orcutt, assistant United States attorney, enjoins use of the first and second floors of the building as a "saloon and speakeasy."

The order also temporarily restrained William Cady, alias "Bill Cady," and George Carleton Williams, from further conducting the alleged trade. Mrs. George Harding was named as the alleged lessee of the premises, while two others were named as owners of the building.

The petition shows that the Government had had the place under surveillance since April 1, for the statement was made that it had been constantly in illegal use since that date. It is also charged that on May 18, 456 bottles of beer, 144 of alleged ale, and a small quantity of other liquor was found in the place.

The petition recites that the place had a fully equipped bar, that the windows were barricaded, and there were electric locks, push buttons, and a slot "commonly known as a peep hole."

FEAR, HATRED OF MIDDLETON HELD LINK IN SLAYING CASE

exact conversation, as repeated by Capt. Kelly, is:

"Did Middleton shoot you, Jack?"

"Right in the guts."

"Did Middleton shoot you? Tell me the truth!"

"You ought to know the kind of a car he has."

"Did Middleton shoot you, yes or no?"

"I hate to say anything about a policeman."

Lieut. Varney, who was present with Capt. Kelly, at Emergency Hospital, where the questioning took place, also denied that Cunningham actually had named Middleton.

Earlier, however, Detective James A. Mostyn had told Cunningham that Middleton was under arrest, to which he replied, "Good, keep the --- -- ----- there."

Flaherty searched Middleton's room yesterday in the Ambassador Hotel, and found only cartridges that would fit a .38-caliber police revolver. A .45-caliber slug was taken from Cunningham's body.

The night before Cunningham was shot, he told Lieut. Varney that a policeman had hi-jacked the liquor from the I street speakeasy. Lieut. Varney said he never placed much credence in anything Cunningham said.

Hijacked Liquor Returned.

Police believe that Middleton was angered at Cunningham for returning the liquor which they are said to have taken from the speakeasy.

On that night, according to Capt. Kelly, Middleton and Cunningham hired Charles E. Wilson, a taxicab driver, to haul liquor. They represented themselves, he said, as owners of a speakeasy, and had him cart fifteen cases of ales and liquor from the I street speakeasy to Cunningham's house.

The owner of the speakeasy learned the identity of the hijacker from a man who had drank with Cunningham in his apartment. The man, whose name was not given by police, exacted a bribe from the owner to inform him where the liquor was being kept.

The owner called Cunningham, who admitted he had the liquor but said it was "dumped" in his apartment by Middleton. Cunningham then returned what was left of the liquor.

Driver Identifies Middleton.

The taxicab driver returned to the speakeasy a few days later for "a job." He explained he had been employed to cart liquor from the place and had been promised a job by the two men who represented themselves as the owners.

The cab driver described the men and they tallied, police said, with descriptions of Cunningham and Middleton. The cab driver yesterday identified Middleton as one of the men, and then identified Cunningham's corpse as that of the second man.

Middleton, the police said, became angered at Cunningham and accused him of selling the liquor and "not cutting him in' 'on the proceeds.

The policeman, questioned yesterday by detectives, denied complicity in the hijacking, denied any ill-feeling between Cunningham and himself, and denied participation in the shooting.

Monday night, he said, he left the precinct at midnight and went to the Ambassador Hotel, where he changed his clothes and went to a delicatessen nearby.

Claims Alibi Witnesses.

He was in front of the delicatessen reading a paper when he saw people running toward the alley on I street near Fourteenth street where the shooting occurred. Middleton told police he could produce three witnesses who would testify that he was in front of the delicatessen. He called the First Precinct upon learning of the shooting, police said. This is substantiated by police records.

Detectives were not inclined to attach much significance to the interview with Cunningham at the hospital. They said he was sinking rapidly when questioned and may have been delirious.

Capt. Kelly and Lieut. Varney took Middleton from his post Tuesday night with the intention of bringing him to the hospital and confronting him with Cunningham, but the victim died before they arrived.

Lieut. John H. Fowler, of the Tenth Precinct, was given the bullet taken from Cunningham's body for a ballistics examination. There may be a connection, they said, between Cunningham's death and the attempted hi-jacking of the El Salvadoren legation, in which .45-caliber bullets were fired at Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, charge d'affaires of the legation.

Detectives also were considering the possibility that the killing may be connected with the assault upon Harry N. Douthitt, who was beaten several weeks ago in his apartment. Douthitt, editor of an unofficial police publication, is in Philadelphia. A grand jury is awaiting his testimony here regarding an alleged "ice bill" to keep things "cool" for gamblers in the First Precinct.

Future Farmers Plan 1931 Rally in Virginia

C. Groseclose, professor of agricultural education at V. P. I., and one of the founders of the organization which now numbers more than 50,000 throughout the country, announced today.

Teams from all sections of Virginia will be entered in the various judging, public speaking, and athletic contests which have been arranged for the three days. Nearly a thousand boys were expected for the rally.

U. S. BEAUTY SLAYER IS FREED BY FRENCH

Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger's Tale of Self-Defense Wins in Nice Court.

Nice, France, May 20 (A.P.).—A French jury required only ten minutes this evening to acquit Mrs. Charlotte Nash Nixon-Nirdlinger, beauty contest winner, formerly of St. Louis, of the slaying of her husband.

The jury upheld her contention that she shot her husband, Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, wealthy Philadelphia theater operator, in self defense after he had attacked her in a jealous frenzy last March.

The trial opened only this morning in assizes court and the jury's speed in reaching a verdict set a record for Riviera tribunals of justice. So hopeless was the prosecuting attorney of obtaining a conviction, even on a charge of manslaughter, which he asked, that he decided at the last minute not to call any witnesses for the state.

While the prosecution delivered its summation to the jury the defendant's mother, who came from St. Louis to testify, collapsed at the counsel table from the heat which was stifling within the small courtroom.

(Associated Press.)

The assistance of Senator Lewis, of Illinois, and other unidentified senators, as well as that of the American consul at Nice, had been sought by Missouri relatives of Mrs. Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger in the fight for her acquittal.

This was made known at Senator Lewis' office yesterday shortly before news of the St. Louis woman's acquittal reached Washington. The senators were asked to request the Federal Government to render any possible assistance in her defense.

ARMY POSTS SLATED FOR AX ARE LISTED

there will be a fight in Congress over the Army's abandonment program is certain.

Anticipating this, President Hoover appointed a committee to try to devise some means whereby the posts to be disposed of may be used for other purposes by the Federal and State Governments. It has been suggested, for example, that Chanute Field, Ill., might be used as a Federal prison farm.

The list given out by the War Department yesterday was prepared by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, at the suggestion of Secretary of War Hurley.

In a memorandum, Gen. MacArthur points out that the War Department has been engaged in selling its properties ever since the World War. Since 1919, he said, 55,774 acres have been sold for $12,643,269, and 245,111 acres worth $88,422,000 have been transferred to other departments of the Government. In addition, he said, $10,000,000 worth of buildings had been sold and negotiations are under way for the sale of other real estate valued at $1,097,060.

Cites Military Efficiency.

Reiterating a statement made by President Hoover, Gen. MacArthur pointed out that the abandonment of Army posts is dictated by military efficiency as well as Governmental economy. The posts that are being abandoned, he said, have lost their strategic value because of changed transportation conditions.

The harbor defense posts, camps and landing fields that are to be disposed of entirely are Fort Dade, Fort DeSoto and Key West Barracks, Fla.; Fort Ward and Willapa Bay, Wash.; Camp Upton, N. Y.; Fort Morgan, Ala.; Camp Eagle Pass, Tex.; Camp Furlong, N. Mex.; Park Field, Tenn.; Carlstrom Field and Dorr Field, Fla.

Other Posts Are Listed.

In the case of the 29 remaining posts, it will be necessary to retain the portions on which are located the fortifications and guns, so that they might be used in time of necessity. What remains will be disposed of. The posts in this class are as follow:

Fort Levett, Maine; Fort Stark, Fort Foster and Fort Constitution, New Hampshire; Fort Heath, Fort Andrews, Fort Revere, Fort Ruckman, Fort Strong, Fort Warren and Fort Rodman, Massachusetts; Fort Getty, Fort Greble and Fort Wetherill, Rhode Island; Fort Schuyler and Fort Terry, New York; Fort Mott, New Jersey; Fort McRee, Florida; Fort San Jacinto and Fort Travis, Texas; Forts Baker and Barry, Fort Rosecrans and Fort Miley, California; Fort Casey, Fort Canby, Fort Columbia, Fort Whitman and Fort Flagler, Washington.

15 Are Injured in Polish Riot.

Warsaw, May 20 (A.P.).—Fifteen persons were injured today in a melee which occurred when 3,000 farm laborers at Wielun started a march on Lodz after they were denied passports which would permit them to enter Germany to work for the summer.

REMORSE IS BLAMED FOR BARTON SUICIDE

Caricaturist Kills Self Because of Failure to Appreciate Love.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Ralph Barton, ironical caricaturist, shot himself to death in his penthouse apartment early today and left behind him a 500-word obituary telling of melancholia and remorse over failure to appreciate Carlotta Monterey, his former wife.

Barton called Miss Monterey, now the wife of Eugene O'Neill, the playwright, "the only woman I ever loved."

"Since early childhood," Barton wrote, "I have suffered from melancholia, which for the past five years had begun to show definite symptoms of mania-depressing-insanity. * * * I have run from house to house and from country to country in a ridiculous effort to escape myself. * * *

Asks for Forgiveness.

"In particular my remorse is bitter over my failure to appreciate my beautiful lost angel, Carlotta, the only woman I ever loved and whom I respect and admire above all the rest of the human race. She is the one person who could have saved me had I been savable. She did her best.

"No one ever had a more devoted or more understanding wife. I do hope that she will understand what my malady was and forgive me a little.

"No one thing is responsible for this and no one person except myself. If the gossips insist upon something more definite and thrilling as a reason, let them choose my pending appointment with my dentist or the fact that I happen to be painfully short of cash at the moment. * * *"

The document was unsigned, but bore seven "X's" at the end. Barton called the manuscript an "obit," so describing it in four letters typewritten in red.

The body, seated on a bed, was found clothed in red and white striped pajamas. In the right hand was a revolver. In a note Barton left to his Negro maid $35—all the cash he had with him, he explained—and thanked her for having been a good servant.

Barton was widely known for his drawing pillorying America and Americans. He illustrated several books, including "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," wrote a few books himself, and sketched for Puck, Life, Liberty and recently the New Yorker.

The suicide took place exactly a month after Barton's divorce from his fourth wife, Germaine Mary Tailleperre. His other marriages, including that with Miss Monterey, who was the third Mrs. Barton, all ended in divorce. He was the father of two children, both daughters.

Barton was born in Kansas City, Mo., August 14, 1891.

the solution by which 5,000,000 people in this country can be put back to work."

Tells of Savings Increases.

The president of the national association said yesterday that while other branches of industry and business have been suffering from depression, the savings baks have been witnessing a record inflow of money. Thomas F. Wallace, of Minneapolis, the president, said that not since the immediate postwar period have savings banks seen such an influx of currency.

He said the delegates were representatives of $10,000,000,000 in savings deposits belonging to 13,000,000 depositors, and they should consider the stewardship of such a vast sum with sober thought.

"Savings banks and savings depositors should unite in an insistent and positive demand that the legislative bodies of our respective States and Congress," he continued, "enact such legislation as will compel the segregation of savings and commercial deposits.

"The invasion of the savings bank field by commercial banks and trust companies, while now an accomplished fact, was never justifiable from a sound economic standpoint, unless accompanied by legislation which would give to savings deposits in all such institutions the same protection that depositors in mutual savings banks now have."

Labor Struggle Foreseen.

Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, told the delegates, "American labor is probably in for the fight of its life."

"The demand for the cutting of wages," he said, "is a part of a campaign which is now only beginning again and which has been planned as a part of the program of the international control of capital, manufacture, of markets, of prices—and of labor, by those who would master the world in the interests of a few."

Henry Bruere, of New York, president of the Bowery Savings Bank, said, "The disillusionments of this period of depression will yield only future profits, if we who are the responsible managers of business have the wisdom to remember that, next to bread and shelter and the love of their fellows, men need and want nothing so much as they need and want security."

Rome C. Stephenson, of South Bend, Ind., president of the American Bankers Association, in speaking on promoting thrift, said: "Until world stability in production and distribution shall have been achieved, the industrial and financial world will be in turmoil."

The 600 delegates from seventeen States called upon President Hoover before opening their three-day meeting.

VIRGINIA U. STUDENTS ACCUSE 2 OFFICERS

Warrants Charging Unlawful Assault Are Sworn Out After Encounter.

Charlottesville, Va., May 20 (A.P.)—Warrants charging unlawful assault, unauthorized search of a vehicle and persons, and use of profane and abusive language were sworn out today by two University of Virginia students against State Prohibition Inspector J. Warren Davis and State Motorcycle Officer J. Aldine Smith.

The complainants were Sam R. Baker, of Montgomery, Ala., and Robert Dew, of Fredericksburg, Va., students in the law school.

The incident which is basis for the complaint occurred Saturday night about 8:30 o'clock when the students, accompanied by two young women, said to be from Washington, D. C., were driving along the highway between the university and the University Aviation Club.

The cases are set for hearing in magistrate's court Friday afternoon. The students, prominent in campus activities at the university, said they were acting on advice of counsel. They stated their intention of complaining to Attorney General John R. Saunders, director of prohibition enforcement, and T. McCall Frasier, director of the State division of motor vehicles.

After the encounter on the highway the students and their girl companions were brought to Charlottesville, where they were released without bond over protest of the arresting officers.

No charge was placed at the time against any one except Baker, who was accused of reckless driving. The officers said he passed their car on a curve.

DE LA VEGA FREED IN DROWNING CASE

Jury Holds Gregory's Death in Plunge From Boat Was Accidental.

Monte de la Vega, Washington speedboat driver, last night was freed of a charge of manslaughter when a coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental death in the drowning of Irving D. Gregory.

Those testifying at the hearing identified themselves as Paul P. Walsh, of Chevy Chase, Miss Dorothy Sammon, of S street northwest near Twentieth street; Miss Helen Schifton, of Sixteenth street northwest, near R street, and de la Vega. All were aboard the boat from which Gregory was drowned near Fort Foote, Md. De la Vega asked permission to testify, which was granted.

All those questioned told the same story, that the entire party was in the cabin when Gregory went overboard except Miss Schifton. She had just come on deck and was in the after cockpit when he fell off.

Those in the cabin stated that they heard a scraping noise on deck, followed by a splash. They attempted to save Gregory, but were unable to see him as the body did rise to the surface. The drowning took place about 5 a. m., May 10.

Miss Schifton said Gregory apparently was trying to raise the anchor when he fell over the side. De la Vega was charged with manslaughter by Deputy Sheriff Tom Garrison, of Prince Georges County, after being held for several days after the death. He was free on bond of $500 when he appeared at the hearing.

The hearing was held before Justice of the Peace John J. Fainter at Hyattsville. The jury was composed of W. M. Brewer, foreman; G. L. Harrison, Ben Gray, Oscar K. Hiser, B. Harrison, Walter Wiseman, R. A. Garrison, H. M. Flechman, L. E. Livingstone, W. J. Davis, W. B. Taylor and A. Wilcoxen.

MEN ARE SELECTED FOR SCHOOL SURVEY

Second Study at Alexandria to Cover Three Days Next Week.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Meeting of the city school board last night was given over largely to discussion of the recent school survey made by Dr. W. S. Y. Critchley, who was employed to survey the high school system only. It was stated that when the report was sent to the State superintendent of education, Sidney Hall, at Richmond, it was not satisfactory, mainly in that it covered only high school work, and Supt. Hall wrote the city school board advising a survey of the entire school system by three disinterested Virginia educators.

The school board yesterday afternoon telegraphed Dr. Hall asking him to select the men he considered fitted for the work, and at the meeting last night Dr. Hall's reply was read. He selected Henry Ellis, superintendent of schools, Petersburg, Va.; Raymond V. Long, of the Virginia Board of Education, and Dr. Hoke, of William and Mary College. May 27, 28 and 29 were dates selected for the survey.

Joseph Hickman, 13-year-old Negro boy, had a naimost miraculous escape from death or serious injury yesterday when, on his first attempt at diving an automobile, he drove a truck at full speed through the heavy cast-iron guard rail of the oPtomac Yard bridge and plunged 40 feet to the railroad tracks below, practically demolishing the truck, but escaping with a fractured arm and numerous bruises. Sergt. Edgar Sims, investigating the occurrence, was told by Henry Petty, owner of thetruck, that the boy took the machine without his permission.

A large delegation of Scottish Rite Masons from Alexandria, headed by Percy E. Clift, went to Woodlawn last night to attend a social meeting arranged by Scottish Rite Masons in that vicinity, held in the Community Hall there. A dinner, at which Edmund H. Allen, of Newington, presided, was served and an entertainment program was presented. Next Tuesday the Alexandria Scottish Rite Masons will go to Winchester to attend a meeting for which elaborate plans are being arranged.

The spring reunion of the organization will be held here June 8 to 11, inclusive, and rehearsals of the various degrees will be held beginning Saturday and extending through Thursday, June 4.

The home committee of the Children's Home and Day Nursery has submitted a report of activities covering the last two years, together with plans for further development. The purpose of the home, as indicated in the report, is to take care of children whose parents, for various reasons, can not care for them at all times. To date 152 such children have been cared for. The report gives these reasons:

No home worthy of the name because of indifferent parents, 9 children.

Children whose mothers were ill, 19.

Those under their father's care alone, 15.

Those whose mothers wished to leave them for only a short time, 16.

The largest group, 93 children, were left at the home so that their mothers might go to work either to support the child or to contribute to its support. In this way the home has aided mothers who do not wish to leave their children in the care of an unsupervised girl, and can not afford to pay for the services of a nursemaid.

There are now 26 children in the home, 12 of whom remain overnight, and since January 28, 1929, when the home was established, no dependent child has been sent out of Alexandria to be cared for. The home has eight homeless children, fourteen whose mothers are working, two whose mothers were called out of the city unavoidably, one whose mother is ill, and one whose father is left with its entire care.

Next week the home will be moved into new quarters at 411 Prince street, the house at that address having been purchased and put in proper condition by the aid of friends of the nursery. Support of the home is by contributions from organizations, by individual donations from citizens, money paid by those entering children in the nursery, and by giving various affairs to raise money, such as card parties, teas, lawn parties, benefit shows and sales.

Mayor Edmund F. Ticer will speak at the Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting at 12:30 today in the George Mason Hotel, and will talk on "The Tax Dollar." Elliott F. Hoffman, past president of the club and clerk of the corporation court, is program chairman and will introduce the speaker.

An announcement has been made that the Citizens' Band is planning a campaign to raise funds for new uniforms, and all contributions may be sent to City Treasurer Roger C. Sullivan, who is business manager for the band.

The Citizens' Band is a civic organization and donates its services at all times for public affairs. The bingo committee of the local Elks Lodge will stage a party for this benefit Wednesday, May 27, in the Elks' Home, with Howard D. Carter in charge.

Vice Councilor S. T. Park has returned from Winchester, Va., where he attended the State council, Order of Fraternal Americans, and stated that Alexandria was chosen as the meeting place for the twenty-third annual meeting in May, 1932. The State council of the Daughters of America will meet here at the same time.

Five hundred girls and boys will participate in the annual May Day procession at St. Mary's Catholic Church at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The girls will be dressed in white and carry flowers. The procession will form at 2:30 o'clock at Lyceum Hall, the usual march from St. Mary's Academy being omitted owing to the torn-up condition of Washington street.

Dr. D. N. Rust, who died last week in Laurel, Md., left an estate of approximately $24,000, of which $22,000 was in personal property and $2,000 in real estate, and his son, David N. Rust, jr., yesterday qualified as administrator, giving bond in the sum of $4,000.

KENSINGTON VOTING CANDIDATES NAMED

Annual Meeting Is Held to Make Council Choices; Election Set June 1.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4208.

The annual town meeting to nominate candidates to fill vacancies when terms of two members of the town council expire was held last night at Kensington National Guard Armory. The meeting was well attended and was presided over by Mayor Frederick W. Brown.

A. R. Woodwell and Alfred Geiger, the incumbents, were nominated for reelection. Three other candidates were named: Raymond Burgdorf, William F. Walker and Louis C. Beall.

Elections will be held June 1 at the National Guard Armory. Polls will be open from 6 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock in the evening.

A committee of the Kensington Board of Trade will meet Monday night with the mayor and council to discuss location of the approaches to the new overhead bridge over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks at Lincoln avenue, Kensington. Members of the trade board are anxious to have the town council commit itself to the routing of traffic through Connecticut avenue to Howard avenue and left on Howard one block to the new bridge.

The State Roads Commission plans call for the cutting through of a new street from Baltimore street to Lincoln avenue, which will necessitate condemnation of about six property areas. The Board of Trade members adopted a resolution at its last meeting claiming that this is an unnecessary expense and in addition will contitute a traffic menace, especially to the children who must attend the Kensington School.

The trade board committee will be headed by K. W. Simpson, president.

The Gaithersburg-Washington Grove Volunteer Fire Department will hold its annual supper June 17 and 18 at Gaithersburg High School. Douglas Diamond, chairman of the finance committee, is in charge of arrangements. Personnel of the various committees will be announced within a few days. Ernest C. Gartner is president of the department.

Homemade fudge and cakes are needed by the Chevy Chase branch of the Montgomery County Red Cross Chapter for its second card party for the patients at the U. S. Naval Hospital Monday night from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock. Contributions will be received by Mrs. Roger Whiteford, 101 Leland street, or Mrs. James H. Defandorf, 4501 Leland street.

With all of its branch committees making last-minute efforts to clean up their quotas, the annual drive for funds of the Montgomery County Social Service League will close tomorrow. According to W. B. Armstrong, chairman of the finance committee, it is expected that the quota of $8,000 will be reached.

Residents of the county are urged to contribute to the league, as it is the only organization authorized to care for social service work in the county. The league receives no aid from the Washington Community Chest and must depend on contributions of residents of the county for about half of its annual budget. The Montgomery County Commissioners contribute $11,100 to the budget, which is approximately $24,100 for the next year.

Residents of Silver Spring can make their contributions direct to the Silver Spring National Bank, it was announced yesterday by Frank Davis, Silver Spring chairman. The Takoma Park committee, under J. Dann Faber, also is making an intensive drive.

Gaithersburg has contributed more than half of its quota, and the committee there is making a special drive to clean up before Friday, according to Mrs. Lawson King, chairman.

Residents of the county who wish to contribute and have not been approached by workers can send their contributions direct to the Social Service League headquarters in Rockville.

More than 250 women from all sections of Montgomery County are expected to attend the annual meeting of the Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs tomorrow morning at the clubhouse of the Women's Club of Bethesda. Mrs. B. ePyton Whalen, of Alta Vista, will preside.

Reports will be given for the following committees: Mrs. E. G. Baursfeld, of Bethesda, education and scholarships committees; Miss Annie Wilson, Kensington, fine arts; Mrs. George A. Chadwick, Gaithersburg, conservation; Mrs. George Shinn, Forest Glen, public welfare; Mrs. George Furzer, Dickerson, American Home; Miss Lavinia Engle, Forest Glenn, legislation; Mrs. William Gamble, Cabin John, international relations; Mrs. E. The Bethesda Women's Club will present the play, "Fourteen," for which the club was awarded first honors in the recent one-act play tournament of the county, at the afternoon session.

The Ladies Aid Society of Epworth M. E. Church, Gaithersburg, will serve a ham and chicken salad supper tonight from 5 to 7 o'clock. Mrs. Lawson King is president of the society.

Education Trend Declared Turning

Influence of Church Being Gradually Thrown Off, Cooper Affirms.

Richmond, Va., May 20 (A.P.).—Public school education in America is gradually throwing off the influence of the church and is slowly developing into a new type of schooling, William John Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education, told delegates at the convention of the National Association of Public School business officials here today.

The church started the schools, but the education of children soon developed into a public problem, Commissioner Cooper said.

"American education," he continued, "is not concerned in developing any one type of civilization or catering to the peculiarities and prejudices of one or more groups. We are only interested in finding what are the capacities of the American boys and girls and present to them opportunities for developing these talents."

MANY SEEK PRIZE FOR DISTRICT FLAG

Designs Submitted, but Time Still Remains in Which to Win $25.

Have you submitted a design in The Washington Post's contest to determine an appropriate design for a District of Columbia flag, something the District has been without since its formation?

If not, now is the time to do so. The Post is offering $25 as a prize for the design selected by a number of judges as the best suited to represent the District, but in addition to the cash award there will be the great satisfaction to the winner of seeing his or her design floating in the breeze over District buildings or being carried by District organizations in parades.

Many designs have been submitted already. There is still time for many more to be drawn and submitted. Judges will be persons familiar with flag designs, including the commanders of various patriotic organizations and persons prominent in the civic life of the Capital.

Their selection will be submitted to District officials with the recommendation that it be adopted officially as the District's flag. It will be a honor well worth earning.

All designs must be submitted in pen and ink so that they may be reproduced in The Washington Post during the period of the contest. Your idea may find favor with the judges and you may see your emblem officially sanctioned by the District.

Send in a design as soon as possible. Public buildings, shields, stars, stripes and pictures have been used in flag outlines submitted, but the field has not been covered.

Baltimore, Md., May 20 (A.P.).—More arrests in the cleanup of the Chesapeake Bay liquor smuggling base at Taylor's Island were forecast today by customs officials, who said that two Federal investigators and two stenographers were at work on the Eastern Shore taking testimony of residents.

The investigators were sent to take testimony relative to activities of the gang which officers said had been bringing liquor ashore from ships for two years, loading it on trucks and sending it to Philadelphia and New York.

GRAHAM M'NAMEE IS SUED BY HIS WIFE

McNamee had gone somewhere on a visit. She had not been at their Riverside Drive Penthouse Apartment recently.

Their romance had attracted wide comment in radio broadcasting circles since the marriage in May, 1921. McNamee met Miss Garrett, who was the daughter of a wealthy Bronxville, N. Y., family when he was an obscure barytone soloist and she a soprano in the Bronxville Dutch Reformed Church Choir.

The marriage was termed "ideal" by their friends. McNamee often said that his wife was his "severest critic" and that she used to sit at home and listen to her husband broadcast important events and tell him, when he came home, of his mistakes.

It was her assistance, he said, which helped him most in his climb to prominence.

McNamee was born in Washington in 1889, son of a legal advisor to Judge Lamar, Secretary of the Interior in President Cleveland's Cabinet. His father wanted him trained for the law, but his mother, a skilled pianist, had him thoroughly grounded in music.

When he was a boy his family moved to St. Paul, Minn., where he grew up and was a star athlete at high school. His love of music continued, however, and in 1912 he came East and became a choir singer in a New Jersey church. He subsequently earned a living with various musical organizations before entering radio work.

office because "she had been treated shabbily" in Mr. Goldstein's office. The "shabby treatment" was not brought out. Later on she said in response to a question by Justice Adkins that "she had a feeling she shouldn't say anything at all." This was in reference to her appearance in the case.

In discussing a possible mistrial Justice Adkins said that he could not assure the defense of a hearing before next fall.

Other developments yesterday were arguments for a directed verdict by the defense attorneys. They cited lack of a general conspiracy, if one there was, and in support of their motions cited many authorities.

An attempt by K. K. Spriggs to have the testimony of a Government witness stricken out on the grounds of perjury was overruled by the justice. He said that he did not believe the witness had perjured himself and, in addition, said that such a question was one for the jury itself to consider.

Schoolgirl Operated Upon for Appendicitis After Court Presentation.

London, May 20 (A.P.).—Miss Virginia Dawes, 17-year-old school girl, daughter of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, was operated upon for appendicitis at her home here this morning.

Miss Dawes, who was presented at court in Buckingham Palace last night, was reported resting comfortably tonight, and her convalescence is expected to be rapid.

It was said at the Ambassador's residence that the operation did not result from a sudden attack, but had been planned for some time and postponed until after the royal reception. The American girl was the youngest to make her bow before the king and queen last night.

Britons Predict Slump Will Benefit America

London, May 20 (A.P.).—Substantial and material gains for the United States are likely to result from the depression she is now experiencing, says Sir Joyce Broderick, commercial counsellor at the British Embassy in Washington, and Arthur J. Pack, commercial secretary at the embassy.

They issued a joint report today, in which they pointed out that the slump offers an occasion for economists and producers to take stock of the situation and to search for ways of checking overdevelopment, which they said characterized the recent history of most of the industries they studied.

Kentucky Miners Are Refused Bail

Seven Men Denied Bond After Hearing on Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Harlan, Ky., May 20 (A.P.).—After a hearing here on a writ of habeas corpus, seven men charged with murder growing out of recent mine disorders in Harlan County were denied bail today by Circuit Judge D. C Jones.

The petitioners were W. H. Hightower and W. B. Jones, president and secretary, respectively, of the Evarts Miners Union; Asa Cusick, Evarts chief of police, and his assistant, A. L. Benson; Joe Cawood, Evarts town clerk, and Floyd Murphy and Jim Reynolds, miners.

Judge Jones, who Tuesday overruled a motion by the defendants to vacate the bench, announced the decision on the bail action after hearing arguments by State's and defense attorneys on a writ of habeas corpus secured by the defense last Saturday in Whitley County.

Alleged Refusal to Wed Causes $25,000 Suit

Because Herbert H. McFarren has "neglected and refused to marry her," Bertha Berthier yesterday sued him in the District Supreme Court for $25,000.

The suit alleges that she had been ready and willing to marry the defendant, and the failure of the wedding to materialize has cost her not only mental anguish, but loss of time and money. She lives in New York.

Proposal to Drug Woman Dropped

Officials Abandon Plans to Restore Her Memory by Use of Narcotic.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Plans to use a drug which would restore to Miss Louise Schwarz her memory of events on the night she is alleged to have killed her brother were abandoned by officials at Mineola, Long Island, today.

Her brother, Edward, 55, was killed by two bullet wounds fired into the top of his head. When she was arrested, Miss Schwarz, who is 57, said her brother had committed suicide, and told a fantastic story of a suicide cult to which both belonged.

Alienists, who have examined Miss Schwarz, said the use of a drug might revive her memory of her brother's death. Her counsel, however, refused to consent to the plan.

The jurors will view the site and will make a recommendation before the summer recess of court. Assistant Attorney General H. H. Glassie and Assistant United States Attorneys Arthur G. Lambert and Alexander H. Bell, jr., will represent the Government.

Seattle Awaiting Federal Workers

Federation Planning for Biennial Convention in September.

The eleventh biennial convention of the National Federation of Federal Employes, whose headquarters are in Washington, will be held in Seattle, Wash., beginning September 7, it was announced yesterday.

Important in the business to be taken up will be consideration of enactment of legislation providing salary increases with a minimum compensation of $1,500 per annum for every adult Federal employe working full time. The need will also be discussed for adequate appropriations for personal service to be equitably distributed on the basis of a sound classification for both departmental and field services.

Consideration also will be given the need of establishing a qualified central agency to administer classification (and other personnel legislation; optional retirement after 30 years service; right of the employe to designate a beneficiary under the retirement law and abolition of the average restriction in appropriation bills.

John K. Lambros, owner of an allegedly vicious dog, yesterday was sued for $25,000 damages in the District Supreme Court by the mother of James Pinto, a minor.

The mother, Mrs. Rose Pinto, alleges that her son was severely bitten November 9, 1929, near Tenth and H streets northeast. The charge is made that the dog was unmuzzled.

60 PER CENT OF HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES ENROLL IN COLLEGE

Western Sends 256 of 282 to 77 Universities and Other Institutions.

PLAYGROUND PROJECT IS INDORSED BY BOARD

Langley Junior High Will Be Given Improved Recreation Area.

An average of more than 60 per cent of the graduates of the four principal Washington high schools entered college last year, it was revealed by Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou in a report submitted yesterday to the Board of Education.

One school alone, Western, sent 90 per cent of its graduates last year to college. At this school, 282 were graduated and 256 were certified to 77 different colleges, schools of technology and universities.

Approximately 50 per cent of the graduating class of Central went to college. At Eastern, out of a class of 280, college certificates were made out for 198, a percentage of 70.7 per cent on the total number of graduates. These students went to 32 different schools and colleges.

Between 50 and 60 per cent of the graduates of McKinley entered college. All these figures were based on the graduating classes of June, 1930. Two of the schools were unable to give detailed figures because many of the students do not go on to college for a year or so after graduating, it was pointed out.

Playground Projects Approved.

Acting on recommendation of the buildings and grounds committee, the board indorsed the proposal to improve ground adjoining the Langley Junior High School, at First and T streets northeast, for a playground and recommended purchase of other property at the same location for playground purposes. Senator William H. King, of Utah, inspected this property last week and spoke in favor of the proposed improvements, declaring they are needed to accommodate several schools in the community.

A heated discussion followed receipt of the proposal of the Livingstone Academy, of this city, that public school art students enter a contest for a free scholarship for a summer course at the school. Henry Gilligan made a motion that the proposal be accepted, whereupon Dr. Ballou opined that such short notice was unfair to the public schools, as it did not give students sufficient time to prepare creditable entries.

Dr. Ballou added that he thought it was "a cheap way to get advertising." The discussion resulted in the adoption of a substitute motion, offered by Daniel C. Roper, giving the superintendent the privilege to use his own judgment in the matter and to inform the Livingstone school that consideration would be given their proposition next year if sufficient notice is received.

Business High Conversion Planned.

Receipt of a petition from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People of the District, urging the board to plan for provision of a new twenty-room school in the neighborhood of Tenth and U streets northwest, to dispense with thirteen portables and twelve part-time classes, was met with the statement by Dr. Ballou that "other arrangements" are being made to take care of the situation. The "other arrangements" are understood to include the conversion of Business High School into a colored school when the new Roosevelt Business High is completed.

Requests for increased appropriations for the Community Center Department were received from nine different organizations. Dr. Ballou paid tribute to Miss Sybil Baker, who has resigned as director of the Community Center Department to become superintendent of District playgrounds.

Miss S. I. Daniel was reappointed a member of the board of examiners to take the place of W. M. Brewer, resigned. Dismissal of Miss E. N. Barker, teacher at the Stevens School, for alleged insubordination, was approved, and Mrs. R. S. Woodson was reinstated to fill the vacancy.

AID FOR EUROPEAN FARMERS IS VOTED BY COMMISSION

and then opened for signature.

By it the commission hopes to relieve burdens freighting farm production in various countries, decrease operating expenses which absorb too much of farm profits and increase the buying powers of farmers. Thus, its sponsors hope to promote at the same time well-being among industrial States and communities which depend largely on markets created by agriculturalist demands.

Readiness to sign the instrument was expressed by spokesmen for France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, Roumania, Jugoslavia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Hungary, Latvia, Switzerland, Holland, Luxembourg and Sweden. Arthur Henderson, British foreign minister, gave the proposal his general approval, but said some difficulty must be adjusted before his government could sign.

Ruchdi Bey, Turkish representative, asked that the convention be modified so that nonmembers of the league might enter and his request was received favorably.

Maxim Litvinoff, commissar for foreign affairs or Soviet Russia, sounded the only open opposition to the scheme. He said it was worthless in its present form because it would aid only landowners and prosperous farmers and give no support to the great mass of peasantry, which is in dire need because it either has no farm property or already has mortgaged it. He advocated a plan by which credit would be extended upon agricultural products themselves as security.

Meanwhile the Pan-European commission's subcommittee toiled tonight to devise some common program of general European economic rehabilitation.

The subcommittee of the commission, which sat two hours tonight without concluding its work, based its discussions on proposals made by the French delegations and decided, in general, to refer the different issues to various expert committees.

These special committees will meet during June and will report to a coordination committee which will endeavor to draw up definite proposals for submission to the Pan-European commission at its next meeting in September.

Most of these special committees are already in existence, but a new committee on industrialization was appointed today. It will consist of representatives from Belgium, Great Britain, France, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Italy, Poland, Sweden and Holland, together with the expert committee of five which is already working on the subject.

On the wheat question the proposal of the British representative, that overseas producing countries should be heard, was immediately accepted.

The French memorandum, proposing special preferential treatment for Austria, was suppressed at the request of the Austrians themselves, who suggested that Francois Poncet, French undersecretary of national economy, and Herr Schuller, of Austria, should meet to formulate an acceptable proposal.

Italy's proposal to resume discussion of tariff truce questions met with a lukewarm reception, and it was decided the conference would meet again if the circumstances for such discussion became more propitious.

Russia's suggestion for a policy of economic nonaggression, it was decided, should be returned to the full commission for decision. The probability was, however, that the ministers would decline to discuss it on the ground they had not had previous notice.

The subcommittee planned to meet again tomorrow.

GENEVA GIVEN NEXT ARMS CONFERENCE

minister, recalled that this principle was rejected by the preparatory arms commission.

Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, asserted that the question should not be reopened. He supported Mr. Henderson, who had suggested a tabular form harmonizing with provisions of the draft convention produced by the preparatory commission. Previously Italy had backed the German stand at the preparatory commission.

Aristide Briand also voiced France's support to Mr. Henderson, and opposed limiting of trained reserves.

In confirming Geneva as the site for the forthcoming disarmament the council decided guarantees for accommodations were adequate. Some quarters had favored other locations on the ground that Geneva lacked sufficient hotel space and that prices here were too high.

Antinoise Drive Is Launched Here

Hospital Officials Request Cooperation of Public in Campaign.

A conference between traffic officials and officials of Emergency Hospital yesterday resulted in a campaign to rid the District of unnecessary noises, especially in the vicinity of hospitals and sanitariums.

The conference, held at the Emergency Hospital yesterday morning, was attended by W. A. Van Duzer, newly appointed traffic director; Inspector E. W. Brown, of the Traffic Bureau; M. O. Eldridge, and the executive committee of the hospital.

"Emergency Hospital, doing its great volume of emergency work, recognizes only too well the criticisms of the public from time to time of the noise from its own ambulances, and is only too willing to curtail the blowing of sirens as much as possible, and we hope the public will cooperate with us and respect the quiet zones around the hospitals, as quiet is essential to the health and recovery of all hospital and sanitarium patients," Dr. Harry M. Kaufman, a member of the executive committee of the hospital and B. B. Sandidge, superintendent of the hospital, said in a statement.

Circus Proceeds Go to Milk Fund

Parent-Teacher Congress Decides on Placing of $100 Profits.

The entire net proceeds from the indoor circus given by the District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers will be turned over to the emergency milk fund administered by the congress, it was decided at a conference held at Wilson Teachers College.

Originally it was intended the $100 proceeds would be partially devoted to the organization's budget, but economy in convention expenditures has made this unnecessary, it was stated.

It was announced at the conference that proceeds from an entertainment presented by the Seventh Division Association at Hine Junior High School also will be added to the sum. Mrs. Guy S. Parsons, chairman of the emergency milk fund committee, will receive both contributions.

Fire Set by Tar Still Blast Burns Six Hours

Birmingham, Al., May 20 (A.P.).—A 10,000-gallon by-products distillery exploded today at a plant of the American Tar Co. near Fairfield, a Birmingham suburb, and started a fire that burned six hours.

Company officials and firemen declined to estimate the damage. Included in the loss was 100,000 gallons of tar and pitch. Firemen from Fairfield, Bessemer and the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co. battled more than six hours before bringing the flames under control. The cause of the blast was not determined.

Edward D. Adams, 85, Industrial Chief, Dies

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Edward Dean Adams, 85, member of a family which gave two Presidents to the United States, and himself a dominant figure in engineering, banking and industry for more than half a century, died today in his Fifth avenue home.

Mr. Adams was engaged actively in his diverse business affairs until a few months ago. In his long career he was closely associated with the elder J. P. Morgan in finance and railroad organization, with Thomas Edison in electrical development and with leading engineers and scientists in Europe.

Vallee Loses Suit Over Song.

Chicago, May 20 (A.P.).—The authorship of the "Vagabond Lover" song that brought fame and money to Rudy Vallee was decided in circuit court today. Judge Philip L. Sullivan ruled that Vallee, his agent, Leon Zimmerman, and Leo Feist, Inc., must account for profits from the ballad to Jesse Brown, an attorney. Brown said he composed the song and that Zimmerman copied it.

Firm Here Enters Low Bid on Razing

Hechinger Company Seeks Contract to Clear Building Site.

The Hechinger Engineering Corporation of Washington was low bidder on the contract of tearing down all old buildings now standing on the site of the future Interstate Commerce Commission Building, bounded by Constitution avenue, Twelfth, Thirteenth and C streets. Work is expected to start within a few days after the contract is awarded.

The bids were opened at the Treasury Department yesterday afternoon and it was found that Hechinger was low bidder with an offer of $1,233. The job will be completed in 60 days after notice to proceed is given.

Plans for the three-part structure to house the Department of Labor, Government Auditorium and the Interstate Commerce Commission, are being drawn by Arthur Brown, jr., of San Francisco, a member of the Treasury Board of Architectural Consultants, and are about 80 per cent complete. Bids for further jobs will be asked without delay.

Husband Dies After Wife Finds Him Unconscious

Royal George Stedman, 54 years old, of 231 Fourteenth street northeast, died at his home yesterday morning a few minutes after his wife had discovered him lying unconscious on the floor of an upstairs room.

Dr. C. J. Murphy, of 1 Thirteenth street northeast, on arrival, pronounced the man dead, attributing death to heart disease for which, he said, he had been treating Mr. Stedman.

COAL TON TEST CASE DUE IN COURT TODAY

Crosser Charges Merchants Are Confusing Consumers and Reaping Profits.

On the eve of the trial of the test case involving the standard weight of coal in the District, Representative Robert Crosser, of Cleveland, Ohio, yesterday issued another statement in the form of a letter to the District Commissioners. He charged that Washington coal merchants by using the 2,000-pound unit measurement are confusing consumers and are in reality obtaining more profit than under the sale of long ton standard.

William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, who was the only one in the corporation counsel's office believing the coal dealers are guilty of violating the District weights and measure law after they agreed to sell either by the long or short ton, today will argue the case before Judge John McMahon in Police Court.

The case, in which James E. Colliflower was the willing defendant, will probably go to the Court of Appeals following the court's ruling on a motion of the coal dealer's counsel to quash.

Mr. Roberts is prepared to put up a stiff fight on the issue, however, and is confident that his interpretation of the law is right despite the view of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, his chief.

Representative Crosser stated in his letter to the Commissioners that mine prices of egg-stove chestnut size of anthracite coal are considerably lower this spring than they were last year this time, while the prices on pea and buckwheat sizes have slightly advanced.

"Washington consumers have not, however, received the full benefit of the mining companies' reductions and on the other hand have been compelled to pay considerably more for pea and buckwheat than the increases charged by the mines to Washington coal sellers," he said.

"We see, therefore, that the seller pays to the mine for egg coal 68 cents less this year than last, while the consumer in Washington receives only 9 cents reduction.

3 Workers Freed In Accident Death

Eyewitness Says Victim Stepped Into Path of Falling Stone.

Death of a Negro laborer yesterday morning on a repair job at Mount Alto Hospital, termed accidental by a coroner's inquest, led to the detention of three fellow workmen and their subsequent release by police.

The dead man is Joe Salters, 40 years old, of 1416 Thirty-sixth street northwest. He was instantly killed when he was struck on the head by a large piece of granite tumbling from the third story of a hospital building, now being remodeled.

The three men released are Louis P. Smith, 30 years old, of Kilbourne place near Seventeenth street northwest; Orlando Rawles, colored, of Dix street near Fifty-second street northeast, and Jacob E. Fox, colored, of O street near Twenty-seventh street northwest. Ole Smith, foreman, said as the piece of slab feel some one shouted: "Look out below." He said that Salters, standing out of danger, jumped in the way of the stone.

Site of Children's Hospital Selected

Lengthy Discussion Ends When Commissioners Reach Accord.

The special committee named by the District Commissioners to make preliminary preparations for the proposed Children's Tuberculosis Hospital yesterday afternoon selected a site following a prolonged discussion.

While the tract had been purchased nine months ago, the exact location of the institution had not previously been agreed upon. There were differences of opinion as to whether a hilltop or a slight valley was preferable; the committee finally agreed upon the former so that the children may get the benefit of summer suns and winds.

The three-and-a-half story hospital, as now designed, would have 163 beds, but it may have to be reduced in size to come within the $500,000 appropriation as no more money will be asked for the project, according to Maj. H. L. Robb, Assistant Engineer Commissioner. The hospital site is 15 miles from the Capital on Defense highway.

$100 Reward Posted For Youth's Body

Dragging River Fails to Recover John Walsh, Drowned From Canoe.

A reward of $100 was posted last night for recovery of the body of John J. Walsh, 18 years old, Central High School student, who was drowned Tuesday night when the canoe in which he was paddling with two companions capsized at Three Sisters Islands in the Potomac River near Key Bridge.

The reward was announced by David Walsh, an uncle of the boy, engaged in the hardware business at 3430 Fourteenth street northwest.

Resuming the search at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, Harbor Precinct policemen worked in vain until 4 o'clock in the afternoon when they were relieved by another police pair who searched until midnight.

The youth, supposedly an expert swimmer, was pitched into the water when a member of the trio in the canoe stood up and reached for a cigarette. The two companions, Thomas Russell, 16 years old, of 1775 California street northwest, and Philip Fries, 16 years old, of 1626 Hobart street northwest, swam to safety. Walsh disappeared beneath the surface after making several strokes.

District Clubs Oppose Plan for Merger; Richmond Given '32 Meeting.

Herbert B. Nevius, past president of the Washington Optimist Club, yesterday was reelected governor of the Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and District of Columbia district of Optimist International, at a business session at the Hamilton Hotel.

Other officers named were James W. Burch, of this city, secretary-treasurer; Wash B. Williams, this city, lieutenant governor; Douglas Morrison, Baltimore, lieutenant governor, and L. C. Jones, Richmond, Va., lieutenant governor. Fenton Leith, Washington, was elected District nominator to the international convention. Richmond was named as the 1932 district convention city.

Delegates unanimously opposed the proposal of Optimist International that the local district be merged with a district comprising the New England States, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware. The twelfth annual convention closed last night with a dinner dance at the Congressional Country Club.

Deportation Stay Granted by Court

Young Armenian, Man Without Country, Claims Entry Here Was Legal.

Haroutin Kabadian, 24-year-old Armenian, of Detroit, who claims that 30 of the 36 members of his family were wiped out in Turkish massacres in 1918, yesterday obtained a ruling from Justice Jennings Bailey citing the Secretary of Labor to show cause why deportation proceedings against him should not be terminated.

The Armenian says that he is a man without a country, and that he entered the United States legally. He also said in his petition that he had come to this country as a student in 1926, and that he has always pursued that occupation. He is represented by Attorney Raymond M. Hudson.

Another ruling was issued against the Labor Secretary yesterday. Mahomed Abraham, 30 years old, also of Detroit, a native of East India and a subject of Great Britain, says his entry was legal and that he is permanently employed in the Ford Motor factory at Detroit. Both rules are returnable in the District Supreme Court June 10.

Two Youths Held On Wife Complaint

Pair Charged With Attacking Her on Lonely Road in Virginia.

Police yesterday held for Virginia authorities two youths arrested on complaint of a 23-year-old woman, that the pair had attacked her on a lonely road in nearby Virginia. They are Sheridan E. Brockwell, 20 years old, of Massachusetts avenue near Fourteenth stret northwest, and Morris Lanox, 20 years old, of New Hampshire avenue, near Varnum street northwest.

The woman, Mrs. Mary Flood, of N street near Twelfth street northwest, was quoted by police as declaring that the pair forced her into an automobile the previous night, at Massachusetts avenue and Twelfth street northwest, and carried her to Virginia.

She claimed that they took her home, where her husband, Emmett Floyd, obtained license numbers of the car. The numerals which police received led to the arrests.

WASHINGTON CRIME.

Washington is shocked by the orgy of crime that has developed in this city during the last few days. Seven deaths by violence have been recorded by police, accompanied by a number of other vicious crimes. Apparently the city is in the grip of what has long been known as a "crime wave."

Because Washington is the National Capital and because law enforcement is usually effective here news of this sudden outburst of crime is being advertised throughout the country. It is suggested that racketeers from Chicago have set up shop here and begun to do business, and that Washington can now be numbered with those cities which harbor organized gangs of malefactors. Some of these recent murders certainly were committed by methods common to gangsters, but there is nothing to indicate that any Chicago talent was employed. If there is a definite connection between any of these crimes, it has yet to be established. Indications are that the so-called crime wave is only a coincidence of separate atrocities.

A series of disconnected crimes is less ominous than an attack by criminal gangs. Nevertheless, it is serious enough to cause the city grave concern. The police are actively at work in pursuit of the perpetrators, but the aim of all law enforcement is prevention of such crimes. Apparently there is need for a tightening up in the personnel and methods of the Police Department as well as in the law. Maj. Pratt calls attention to the urgent need for a vagrancy law that would allow the police to pick up bad characters before they have a chance to plan murder and pillage.

Greater care should be taken to prevent criminals from getting on the police force. It is well known that some criminals use every effort to get into a uniform in order to carry on their depredations under cover of the law. Too much caution can not be exercised in the selection of men for this service.

Washington will never tolerate the operations of criminal gangs here. There are no politicians at the head of the District government. Even the police could not guarantee immunity from prosecution if they were so disposed. Gangsters who attempt to operate in the Capital will find it the most unhealthful place they were ever in; for the Federal Government will swoop down upon them, if necessary. No other city in the United States can resist so effectively and so certainly the encroachment of organized criminal gangs. But if the police are vigilant no such drastic measures will be necessary.

THE GREAT HOME MARKET.

Many a farmer has discovered that intensive cultivation of ten acres yields a better return than expenditure of labor on hundred-acre crops. It is often so with trade. No country, no continental group of nations, can offer a field to compare with that of the United States. The advantages to the manufacturer in every line in thorough exploitation of the home field before venturing abroad are many and valid.

To embark in export trade usually requires first of all the necessity of doing business in a different language. Printed matter must be translated and reprinted, and correspondence conducted in a foreign tongue. Too often this is done so poorly as to be a hindrance rather than a real aid to business. The differing tastes of other nationalities must be considered, besides the manifold laws, shipping regulations and tariff rates of various countries. Special export discounts and larger commissions are exacted, while satisfactory credit ratings of customers may be difficult to secure.

These are a few of the complications immediately encountered in the export trade that are almost entirely lacking when the American producer does business in the United States. Looking at the map of South America a manufacturer sees the great country of Colombia occupying the northwest corner fronting on both oceans. He discovers that it has a population of about 8,000,000, and figures that it should be a rich field for him. It may be, but of the total population, no matter what this prospective exporter's wares are, less than 1,000,000 Colombians can be counted upon as possible customers.

Has he cultivated well the home gardens of Kansas or the State of Washington? Either one has twice the potential buyers for his products that Colombia or any other South American country possesses. Americans ask no special designs, they require no campaign of education in the use of patent plows or complicated radios. Evidence of what it means to do business with English-speaking people who are all buyers of imported goods is seen in trade with Canada. The Dominion has about the same population of Colombia, but it imports American goods every year equal in value to all our exports to all the republics of South America.

Canada's imports from the United States equal all the foreign goods imported by China from all the nations of the world. Imports by China do not average $2 per capita; imports into Canada from the United States alone are over $100 per capita. It should be plain to every American producer that if there is one American State he has not thoroughly canvassed, he should do so before going overseas to strange lands. If he must go abroad let him practice first on Canada, where foreign entanglements at least are not so complicated.

NO WHEAT PANACEA.

Samuel R. McKelvie, of the Federal Farm Board, offered no solution for the problem created by the world-wide overproduction of wheat in his address before the international wheat conference in London, but his suggestions may prove to be the most practical of any that are presented at this gathering. The American delegation discounts all hope of evolving "a grand magical scheme" that would dispose of the wheat surplus simply and easily. But the European delegates expect the conference to adopt a panacea of some kind to control exports and regulate prices. The American business viewpoint comes into sharp conflict with the European notion of political remedies.

Poland suggests that wheat-exporting nations organize an international pool. Each country would be given a definite quota beyond which its exports of wheat might not expand. A reserve of 30,000,000 bushels would be held by the pool for emergency needs. When the price of wheat fell quotas of the exporting countries would be reduced by order of the international organization, and when prices rose quotas would be increased.

This plan is similar to that set up for the control of sugar exports. It has the support of most of the wheat-growing nations of Europe. But it is not acceptable to the United States. Soviet Russia has agreed to the general principle of an international pool, but if the conference ever gets down to the business of allotting quotas there is certain to be widespread disagreement between the Soviet and other European countries. Since the Soviet is unalterably opposed to a reduction of acreage, as suggested by Mr. McKelvie, it no doubt expects to dictate its own quota on a threat of breaking up the conference if the other countries object.

Prospects for the success of export limitation, even if that method should be approved at London, are extremely dark. Wheat can be produced in many regions. If the exporting countries raise prices, the importing countries will plant wheat fields of their own. The result of such limitations may be larger instead of smaller crops.

The reasons why the United States can not participate in such an international pool are obvious. The Government can not guarantee that wheat acreage will be reduced, nor that American growers will curtail their shipments abroad. The Farm Board is engaged in a campaign to reduce the wheat crop to domestic demands, but thus far farmers have not responded. Until farmers become well enough organized to bring wheat production under control, this country has no means of limiting exports.

The real test of the sincerity of the various nations in wishing to cooperate for the general welfare will come when they attempt to divide the world wheat market among themselves. Inasmuch as the United States is attempting to withdraw from the wheat export field, the refusal of this Government to participate in the pool should not prove a stumbling block to the conference. But with each country reaching out for a larger market, and Russia standing by ready to outdo them all, there seems to be little hope that even an impractical panacea can be agreed upon.

ARCHITECTURE IN AMERICA.

American architecture has received recently widespread recognition abroad. Exhibitions such as Ettore Cordoni inaugurated have done much to interest Europe in the art of the United States. Mr. Cordoni arranged a series of mutual exhibits backed by the Brooklyn Museum and the Italian government. Although an Italian, he has lived for eight years in New York and has a high respect for American creative genius. He says:

> I consider American architects the best in the world, and some of their buildings are real specimens of modern style. As a sculptor I admire much of the modern sculpture here and find in this department that the women are as strong as the men. Art is developing at the same rate as the progress of industry and commerce.

One American genius, Frank Lloyd Wright, orginated a school of thought in architecture that has gained world-wide recognition. This brilliant adapter of new ideas in architecture had to become famous in Japan and France before he was accepted at home. Though his ideas have influenced Le Corbusier in Paris and his plans are studied for the building of the great new tenements in Germany, America tends to cling to the old types of dwellings. Commercial enterprises still build cottages of old English, French farmhouse or colonial architecture rather than risk innovations.

It is in office buildings that the true American note is to be found. America's many striking examples of commercial architecture led Leon Bakst to remark:

> It is this dare-devil originality which has made the one art which is America's specific contribution to the art of our century—something superb and unique, which the world has never seen; and but for America may never have seen—I mean American architecture.

It is gratifying to know that the architects who have produced America's wonderful cities are appreciated not only by their friends at home, but, perhaps even more by colleagues and rivals across the sea.

MACHINERY AND EMPLOYMENT.

Following a long conference with President Hoover, Secretary of Labor Doak appointed a committee of economists to study the effects of machine production on employment. This is a significant move which is undoubtedly connected with the administration's campaign to maintain existing wage scales. The committee should have no trouble in assembling data that will conclusively prove the folly of reducing wages because the cost of living is lower than it was before the depression.

The determined efforts of President Hoover to keep the remuneration of labor up to a high standard marks the acceptance of a new theory of wages. In the past emphasis has been laid on "a living wage." But the "living wage" is no longer the slogan of organized labor. It is the shibboleth of bankers and others who are trying to drive wages down. The cost of living has been reduced, they say, and wages must be cut to match it.

To cling to that obsolete theory of wages is to display ignorance of the present economic system. With the use of machinery labor has become so efficient that it earns far more than the mere cost of existence. Far-sighted employers have recognized this and are attempting to pay their workmen according to their productive capacity, rather than the minimum necessary to keep body and soul together. If wages do not increase in proportion to the productive capacity of workingmen there is always a piling up of surplus goods that no one can buy. Having recognized this condition as one of the causes of the depression, it is not surprising that the administration should stand firm against wage slashing.

American industry can not continue to operate on a mass production basis unless labor is paid higher wages as its efficiency increases. Sufficient research has already been done in this field to show that the purchasing power of labor has not kept pace with the ability of men to produce. Secretary Doak's committee will do the country a great service by bringing these facts to public attention and laying the groundwork for a wage scale based, not on the cost of living, but on the capacity of human beings to supply their own wants.

Philip Snowden denies that he is going to resign as chancellor of the British exchequer. If that may be translated into American, Premier MacDonald had better start looking for a successor.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., May 20.—One of our greatest business associations estimates the national wealth according to the latest returns for 1929 at $361,000,000,000. Of this great sum it is well known that a generous proportion depends on order and security. Perhaps those are the chief assets of the Nation.

It is for that reason that it is forever necessary to guard the honor and integrity of the Government from the top to the bottom. Much of our property is intangible, consisting of credits and contracts. These would become valueless without the support of law and order, and would leave the country prostrate with only the empty and useless shell of commerce and industry. Russia passed through that experience.

When the law fails of execution, when the conduct of the Government is hampered by dishonesty and corruption, when crime is prevalent, the value of property is reduced, the area of the slums is widened, ignorance becomes more dense, and the poverty of the people is increased. We are a rich Nation, but our citizens can not afford to be complacent about violations of the law or laxity in their Government. Our whole credit structure rests on the general power to enforce the law. CALVIN COOLIDGE.

DO CRIME PICTURES PAY?

From the Christian Science Monitor.

Does crime pay? This is a question some producers of motion picture films purport to answer in the negative. They seek to justify the showing of crime on the screen by assertions to the effect that justice is shown as following swiftly upon the heels of criminals. Now, however, the producers of film entertainment are confronted with a new application of the question, "Does crime pay?"

Not so long ago Will Hays, president of Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Inc., declared theatergoers were tired of crime pictures. Since then, however, there seems to have been a greater determination than ever on the part of producers to educate their audiences down to an admiration of the criminal as a dramatic figure. Does the run of crime pictures lately seen in American picture houses represent merely the unloading of a number of such films that were made before Mr. Hays' remarks?

For those waiting for better pictures it is encouraging that attendance at the "talkies" has been falling off. Evidently crime does not pay—as a subject for motion picture plots. Earning power of motion picture companies has shown a sharp decline this year. A number of stock issues of this industry are now selling at prices so low that it is felt dividends on them are none too secure. Of course, the decline in earnings and in share prices must be attributed in part to general business conditions. But in part also they are attributed to a waning popularity of the talkies.

The talkies made a good beginning. Plays like "The Last of Mrs. Cheney" and "Disraeli" encouraged theatergoers to believe that the talkies might not only raise the artistic standards of the motion picture industry, but might stimulate the writing of better plays.

To compensate for lack of beauty producers evidently depend upon the element of excitement. It appears they have miscalculated. In Worcester, Mass., a police order was issued the other day barring all crime pictures from exhibition in that city. It is to be expected the only protests, if any, against this order will come from picture distributors. There is evidence of a growing public sentiment against such exhibitions of gangster practices.

An industry that depends as much upon public good will as does the motion picture industry can not well afford to sacrifice that good will to save a few thousand dollars here and there on its productions. Recent developments in the entertainment field may emphasize the fact that crime does not pay—even in pictures.

POST HASTE.

If Missourians want any of Mabel Willebrandt's grape concentrate they will have to show her that they have no preconceived prejudices about what course nature will take under certain circumstances.

With cooled air supplied to New York trains this summer there will be some place to go after the frigid movies close.

Today's cheer leader: Dr David Friday, noted economist and investment trust manager says low prices and depleted stocks will increase industrial output 25 per cent by December.

Anyhow, it is amusing for those of us standing on the curb to see money walking the street looking for something better than 3 per cent.

The United States Treasury preparing to return to taxpayers $100,000,000 that has already been collected is something some people and some nations just can't understand.

Honorary college degrees are often quite an advertisement. Will Rogers gets more display by declining one.

Armaments, war debts and tariffs contributed to the depression, says Secretary Henderson to the league council. Yes, Arthur, and the world has always had them. They were there during prosperity and will still be there when prosperity returns.

If your ambition is to lie in a gold-plated coffin under a $500 blanket of orchids, recent lessons in the news are rather demoralizing.

Two big movie companies will now bar disguised advertising, an ethical move adopted by all respectable newspapers years ago.

If there is anything the Japanese prince and princess missed during their tour of the United States or the world, Hollywood will now give them a synthetic sample of it right off the bat.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

GARDEN EXPERIENCE.

It was difficult to work with; it was stuborn yellow clay,
So we dug it from the garden and threw it all away
And we bought a load of top soil, very rich and very black,
Which, with scarcely any effort, would with blossoms pay us back.

Yellow clay is dull and heavy and it
bakes beneath the sun,
And the man who has to fight it knows his work seems never done,
So we threw it in the alley, for impatient folks are we
And we wanted flowers in summer without such a costly fee.

But our roses failed to flourish and we saw them pine and die,
And we called upon a gardner who knew to tell us why.
He looked the bushes over in his wise and kindly way
And said: "If you want roses what you need is yellow clay."

In our ignorance we'd fancied only richer soils were good,
That the heavy clay held virtue we had never understood.
It had seemed so dull and stubborn that we found to our dismay
We had had the stuff for roses, but had thrown it all away.

Men Make Tools to Fit a Job—Not Jobs to Fit Their Tools.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

AMERICA is becoming a nation of writers.

Old and young, unschooled and learned, rich and poor, doctors, lawyers, preachers, mechanics, laborers, successful men and school boys, married women and shop girls—by tens of thousands they besiege the public prints and clamor for recognition.

Most of them are prompted by a desire for easy money. They wish to write because they have heard that writers make fortunes. It is a means to an end, like writing life insurance or prospecting for gold.

And their motive explains their failure.

One need not be a great and wise man to understand why they fail. The truth is clear to the humblest of "those who are called philosophers or men of speculation, whose trade it is not to do anything, but to observe everything."

The first essential in writing is to have something to say.

The great writers of any age are not men who learn the art of phrase-making and then cudgel their wits for something to write about. They are men who have something within them that clamors for expression.

The ability to construct sentences does not make a writer, any more than the ability to lay brick makes an architect.

It isn't the ability to write music that makes a Beethoven. It is the soul filled with melody that can not rest until its riches are given to the world.

The orator and the prophet are not great because of rich vocabularies or polished phrases. Their greatness is measured by the greatness of their message.

If success in writing depended only on the ability to write well, any high school student might become immortal.

Many writers win fame with one book and never again strike twelve for the simple reason that they have no more to say.

Robert Louis Stevenson worked hard to learn his trade and became the greatest of stylists, yet near the end his matchless skill was barren and profitless for want of ideas.

If you have a message or a story worth telling, you can find an audience despite awkward phrases.

If you have nothing worth while to say, mere skill in writing won't make your message important.

Nobody "learns to be a writer." The natural-born story-teller must learn the technique of his trade; but learning the tricks of the trade won't make him an O. Henry if he isn't a born story-teller.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Rating the Hoover Administration.

Topeka Capital.

An engineering review of the accomplishments of an engineer President ought to be appropriate, and this seems to be what the World's Work has attempted in charting President Hoover's administration to date. The reader may be surprised to discover that Hoover committed himself to "40 principal projects," which the magazine writer classifies under six divisions. The six divisions are foreign affairs, reform of administrative bureaus, social measures, law enforcement, business regulation and tariff and farm relief.

According to the World's Work writer, the President has completed the projects of the last named, six in number. In foreign affairs, he has completed all but two out of a total of seven. He has put through four projects of administrative improvement. Of seven proposals related to law enforcement only two have been brought through—the Wickersham report and transfer of prohibition to the Department of Justice. Four out of six proposed social measures have been put into effect, and four out of nine in the relations of government to business.

Economy For the Other Fellow.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Already there is opposition to President Hoover's plan to abolish useless Army posts, the members of Congress in whose districts the posts are being up in arms against the proposal. Of course, of course. The President will not succeed in putting through any measure of economy without provoking the resistance of those congressmen whose districts enjoy the sops which the President would withdraw.

Hoover's Only Hope.

Atlanta Constitution.

About the only hope that now chirps in the bosoms of Republican leaders was told by Senator Jim Watson in an interview at Chattanooga on Tuesday. He said, "You can always depend on the Democrats to find something to make fools of themselves over."

This is a repetition of the old President Grant wheeze, and it has been a true bill against the Democratic leaders too often. Forewarned now that the Republicans are hanging Hoover's chances in 1932 on that lone hope, it is clearly up to every influential man in the Democratic party to make sure that the "fool act" does not happen. The business condition of the country, as Senator Watson frankly admits, has given the Democrats a tremendous advantage over the Republicans. The voters of the larger part of the country are manifestly turning to the Democratic party for new leadership to conduct them out of the political and economic Sargasso Sea of stagnation into which Republicanism has steered the Nation.

Reducing Armament at Home.

Minneapolis Journal.

When Europe sent its business leaders to the meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce at Washington to cry, "Cancel the war debts, or we perish," President Hoover forestalled them by the advice of his opening address, "Disarm, and save yourselves."

The implication was that when the States of Europe quit their mad competitive race to outbuild each other's war machines—a race that is costing $5,000,000,000 a year—it would be time enough for the United States to consider war debt cancellation. And it would.

Mr. Hoover a few days later gave evidence of his good faith when he called the chiefs of the War Department together to devise means of cutting expenditures. Already there is a great stirring among senators and congressmen who fear discontinuance of Army posts in their own States or districts, and who are preparing to checkmate the President's plan in Congress, if possible.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Ohio Man Doesn't Know How Easy It Is for Uncle Sam to Perform Miracles.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: About the most interesting bit of news that has come from Washington since the "Wickershamble" report, and an incident that will tickle the followers of Al Smith, has just come to light.

It seems that Uncle Sam is about to become a first-class bootlegger. It all came about because some pesky thieves ransacked the "licker" supply of Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, charge d'Affaires of the Salvadorean Legation at Washington, and "went south" with seventeen cases of the doctor's choicest hooch. This liquor was exempt from duty, prowling constables, and the prying eyes of the Federal Prohibition Department at Washington.

In accordance with international law and diplomatic custom it is the duty of Uncle Sam to furnish protection for the Salvadorean's "cough sirup," and due to the lack of such protection Uncle Sam will be compelled to make good the loss.

Now the question arises, how is Uncle Sam going to get seventeen cases of liquor for the Salvadorean charge d'affaires without violating the Volstead act and becoming a plain garden variety of bootlegger? They probably will turn the matter over to Chairman Wickersham and let George write a 50,000 word treatise on the intricacies of international law, which, after being boiled down, would mean another loophole in the Volstead act. If this should fail they might call in Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former federal dry enforcer, and let Mabel perform some of her sleight-of-hand tricks. One of Mabel's famous tricks is to take a glass of pure water, and with a touch of a magic wand turn the water into 20 per cent grape concentrates. Believe me, brethren, it has wallop. CHARLES A. Experienced Gun Handler Warns Against Pistols—Get a Sawed-off Shotgun.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A 3-year-old finds paw's pistol under maw's pillow and shoots its little self while playing bad-man with the gun.

For more than 30 years I have watched for such news items dealing with pistols. I lived in a wild country. I have been a cowboy, a city policeman, a direct student of crime and confined criminals.

The other day I stood and watched two little Washington boys about 7 and 9 years of age playing on an H street sidewalk. One had two toy pistols, the other one. They were yelling "stick 'em up," and were menacing each other as gunmen bandits. Their fool parents had supplied the goodsize toy pistols which the kids snapped menacingly.

In all my experience I never have known a man, not a peace officer or a qualified guardian of treasure, who was a gun-toter and other than a personal coward, always wanting the best of it before any possible fight started.

And in all my observation and crime reading of current news I have listed many domestic killings done in quarrels where a pistol was ready to hand. Not one time in 70 does the homeowner make successful use of the pistol as against the burglar.

Magazine advertising makes it appear that one's home is safely protected by investment in an automatic or a revolver. That is the demonstrable bunk. If any one wants real gun protection that will get his man and not wing some innocent a block away, let him keep a nice handy little sawed-off shotgun with 16 buckshot to the load and a short-range scatter that will satisfactorily drop but not kill the crook.

Bank Messenger Who Foiled Robber Deserves Reward for Bravery.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Bravery in the face of the enemy seldom fails to receive a reward. Civilian heroes who risk their lives in brave deeds get no medals, but the action of such a trusted messenger as William Mitchell, colored employe of the Park Savings Bank, deserves recognition.

Returning from the Washington Clearing House with several thousand dollars in savings bank funds, the car he was driving was boarded by a bandit, who pressed a gun against Mitchell's side and ordered him to drive on and keep quiet. Mitchell passed the bank, but was unable to attract attention. Nearing a gasoline station, he swerved the car suddenly into the runway and called loudly for help.

The highwayman was so taken by surprise at this display of bravery and quick thinking that he sprang from the car and made his escape as the employes of the station appeared. Mitchell saved the bank funds and demonstrated trustworthiness that deserves a reward.

Bandits do shoot these days, and insurance protection as a rule obviates the necessity of excessive risk. Nevertheless, it is always inspiring to witness brave acts in the performance of duty, and it is doubly gratifying when a gunman is foiled in his attempt. P. H. J.

Taxpayer Protests Against Destruction of Trees at Gallinger Hospital.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am appalled to read in this morning's Post of the ruthless destruction of trees at Gallinger Hospital.

Is it possible that one person has the authority to so desecrate publicly owned property and that it is too late to restrain him?

An individual who wantonly or needlessly causes even one good tree to be destroyed is morally defective and should be removed from a post of public responsibility.

SOVIET MAY FAVOR WHEAT QUOTA PLAN

Delegates Indicate Proposal of American Will Not Be Approved.

London, May 20 (A.P.).—The Russian delegation to the world wheat conference today indicated that the Soviet Union would favor the "quota plan" of Poland and the Danube countries as a solution of the world wheat problem, rather than the proposal of Samuel R. McKelvie, of the American contingent, for restriction of acreage.

Exposition of the Russian position created a minor impasse in the conference which developed into an issue on which the meeting finds itself unable to agree.

The Americans have repeatedly voiced opposition to any quota plan or international export restrictions, on the ground it would be against sound marketing policies. Observers do not believe this attitude will be changed.

Might Expect Aid.

In addition to Russia's approval of the "quota plan," there was an indication she might expect some one to finance her grain held off the market, at present estimated at approximately 190,000,000 bushels.

After reception of the Russian views the conference was adjourned until Friday morning, but the committees will continue their work tomorrow.

During the discussions the Russians mentioned the 1909-14 average exports as a basis for any future plan to fix export quotas. This is expected to bring considerable opposition from Argentina, Canada and Australia.

Five-Year Average.

For 1926 to 1930 the five-year average of Canada's export was 304,000,000 bushels, against 94,000,000 for the prewar period of 1909-14; Argentina exported 174,000,000, against 85,000,000, and Australia exported 86,000,000, against 50,000,000.

The United States' prewar export averaged 108,000,000 bushels, against an average of 172,000,000 for the last five years.

The American view is that had other countries taken reduction measures eighteen months ago, there would be no need for the London conference, inasmuch as the United States was out of the export market for four months and on reentering it stated what amount of wheat would be exportable.

Former Ohio Senator Indicted on Two Counts

Cleveland, Ohio, May 20 (U.P.).—Former State Senator George H. Bender, who when 14 stumped in the Bull Moose campaign to become the political protege of the late President Roosevelt, today was indicted on charges of perjury and embezzlement in connection with his political activities.

Bender was charged with diverting to his own use more than $20,000 of the funds raised in 1927 by the Constitutional Law Enforcement League of Ohio in agitating the repeal of the Marshall bill, which would have restored the right of magistrates to direct liquor raids on a salary-fee basis not exceeding $250 monthly.

PLANES ARE PRIMED FOR CHICAGO 'FIGHT'

More Than 650 Ships Fly Into City From Ohio to Await Jubilee Today.

Chicago, May 20 (A.P.).—Hundreds of Army war birds clustered about Chicago tonight ready to show the city and its environs what they could do if the city were threatened by a hostile army.

More than 650 planes flew in from Dayton and Cleveland, Ohio, today, most of them in formation, and there was not a serious mishap despite the soggy condition of several Chicago fields.

The demonstration which had been planned for today as the climax to Chicago's jubilee and which was postponed because of bad weather, was scheduled for tomorrow, to be followed immediately by the flight back to the division's base at Dayton.

Forming over the west and northwest suburbs, the division was to start a parade down the lake front at Evanston at about 11 a. m., pass a reviewing stand in downtown Chicago, continue down the shore line to Gary and then strike off for Dayton.

The first group left Dayton, where the corps had assembled and rehearsed for its two weeks' demonstration at 12 a. m. and was sighted over the Chicago loop at 2:25. In all 568 ships left Dayton for the Chicago concentration.

The legend surrounding the old song, "Robin Adair" will be recounted during the Story of a Song program tonight (WJZ), 9 o'clock). Harold Sanford conducts the orchestra.

Another radio debut will be made during the Radio Home-Makers' Club this morning (WMAL, 10 o'clock). This timt it will be Rupert Hughes, novelist.

AS musical director of Station WTIC, Hartford, Conn., Christian Kriens has become a widely known radio figure. As a lad of 14, tutored by the late Eugene Ysaye, he conducted the Amsterdam Symphony in Holland.

Kriens came to America to direct the French Grand Opera Co., but stayed on to become first violinist under such directors as Walter Damrosch and Arturo Toscanini. He is a composer of note and now devotes all his energies to the creation and presentation of radio programs.

WHEN Billy Hughes, exclusive tenor in the NBC pleasure hour, concludes his work with that program on May 27, he will go into rehearsal for Ziegfeld's "Follies."

Delegates to the first assembly of the National Advisory Council on Radio Education, meeting in New York, will see a special demonstration of television in the NBC studio this afternoon. The educational possibilities of television will be closely studied as the art develops.

A light comedy from the pen of St. John Ervine, "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary," will be presented by the Radio Guild tomorrow afternoon. (WRC, 3:15 o'clock).

OVERHEARING a strange woman in a New York restaurant advising her friend to tune in on the Jesters, Wamp Carleson, one of the trio, turned and asked in his best Swedish dialect, "How'd you like to come up to the studio and hear us?"

The woman was dumbfounded for a moment, but finally caught her breath and accepted.

Dare Interprets the Mode

New York, May 20.

"DEAR DARE," writes one of my young and interested readers. "What do you suggest as the minimum wardrobe a bride of moderate means should gather together? I suppose you get this request millions of times, but as clothes differ each year, so I fear, do the requirements of how many constitute a minimum."

My dear, I am very glad to tell you about a minimum wardrobe, and even though I do give this every year, there are always new brides, and I love 'em all, if you see what I mean—and I think this year's crop should get just as much attention as last year's. Of course, this minimum can be increased or decreased in accordance with your own particular plans—you may for, instance, be a devotee to some particular sports that would require some special clothes or accessories—but mine is a good general budget.

You would need, then, at least two morning or street dresses, one probably a little suit of wool tweed, and the other a well-tailored woolen or silk crepe street frock, in some dark color that is particularly becoming to your own particular type. You would need too, one semiformal dress—one you could wear to luncheons, you know, or for receiving casual callers in your own home—one formal afternoon frock, one Sunday night frock, two lounging pyjamas, and two evening gowns with an evening wrap that will serve for both of them. Then, you'll need one warm sports coat and one more elaborate afternoon or dress coat. And these, I think with the requisite accessories, lingerie and a few smart house dresses if you plan to do some of the work in the little home yourself, will be about all you need.

Buy these with careful thought, and see that your accessories are well matched and smart, and there you are. And, good luck!

A high leap for the dancing ball on the tennis court—a steady stance for the deciding drive in the golf tournament—you can't possibly give all your mind to these things if, beneath your smart sports clothes, you have undies that just arn't comfortable! I have been asked by several of my sports-loving readers to design for them some special lingerie that would be both chic and utterly comfortable to wear. And I have designed just the very things—a combination vest, brassiere and shorts suit that is unlike any you've seen before, and a matching petticoat to wear when the frock you use is very thin. Yes, and I wrote the directions very carefully in this week's leaflet, which you may have by sending your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. These two garments are absolutely all you will need for summertime sports or any other summertime occasion.

• • • •

It's just too bad you can not see the color of this silk organdie afternoon frock which is one of my favorites of those I designed my very own self! It is that pale reddish violet that isn't exactly fuschia or mauve—the color that does such marvelous things to lovely ladies of medium complexion. Anyhow it seemed lovely enough to use for this dress I designed. Don't you love the incrustations and the way they contrast with the pleats? By the way, the waist is sleeveless—probably just so there would be frequent opportunities to wear the short-sleeved and cunningly pleated bolero!

• • • •

Something cunning in summer blouses is what I've illustrated in the corner today, with the collar and tie in contrasting darts. Or, if you prefer a much tucked blouse, let's chose something like the other one.

• • • •

And then there's the weekly Dare fashion letter. You'll always find it in the big Sunday Washington Post.

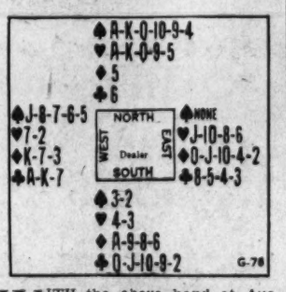
WORK ON BRIDGE

A DOUBLE THAT HELPED THE DECLARER.



WITH the above hand at Auction Bridge, the bidding might be: South and West pass. North three Spades which would obtain the contract, or North one Spade, South two Clubs, North two Hearts, South two No Trumps, North three Spades.

It was played in the Detroit contract pair championship, and the bidding at one table was: South pass, West pass North two Clubs (artificial), East pass; South two Diamonds (denying the Ace and King), West pass, North two Spades, East pass; South two No Trumps (keeping it open for North), West pass, North three Hearts, East pass; South three No Trumps, West pass, North five Spades, East pass; South pass, West double.

South's three No Trumps on the fourth round announced that he was weak in and had no preference between two suits of his partner, but had enough strength in the minor to play a No Trump declaration. North's five Spades was a slam invitation. North thinking a slam very probable if South had one minor Ace; but, although holding such an Ace, South did not consider his hand strong thought to accept the invitation. With five Spades in one adverse hand it was fortunate that South was cautious.

In the play East led the Queen of Diamonds which was won by South's Ace. South then led a trump, and in view of West's double North finessed the Ten. When that won, North led the Ace and King of Hearts, and then a small Heart, South ruffing with his other trump, but being overruffed by West. West then led the King of Clubs which won; but when he followed it with the Ace of Clubs, North took the remainder of the tricks and made his doubled declaration.

Declarer's success was made possible by West's double; without it North would not have made the Spade finesse. A double who is sitting under a trump Declarer and doubling because of honors other than the Ace or long trumps, always takes the chance of giving too much information; but it would hardly be human for a player to refrain from doubling a five-bid when he held an Ace-King and a King and five trumps to the Jack.

Wives of Tomorrow

—FRANCES M'DONALD—

The Joys of Jealousy.

LOTTIE wants her husband to break the dishes and otherwise show that he is a loving husband. Remember Lottie's letter bemoaning a husband who simply would not lose his reason when informed by friend wife that another man had tried to kiss her? Well, a few of those wives who were described by Lottie as "women who have known the joy of a husband in love enough to be jealous" today tell Lottie all about that great and glorious joy!

"Is that girl, Lottie, in her right mind? Has she no mother to stop her from being so utterly crazy as to tell her husband such things as the man trying to kiss her? What is the matter with the girls of today? They seem to have less sense than rabbits. I am one unfortunate that drew one of those husbands whose idea of love is making a wife miserable with insulting suspicions and going so far as to even leave home for weeks at a time for no reason except a fit of unaccountable jealousy.

"If it had not been for my dear mother-in-law who believed in me implicitly and was my stanch friend through thick and thin, I would have been an outcast just through having a husband who was insanely jealous. I was foolish enough to continue working after marrage. And my husband who knew we needed what I made, still insisted that I worked to be near my employer. Two months before my little son was born, I had to go to my mother-in-law and ask her to do something to stop his ill-treatment of me which had been going on ever since my employer gave me a $50 check when I resigned my position. I had been with the firm twelve years since I was sixteen, and had received no wedding present as I had married on the quiet, not telling any one for several weeks. So the $50 was really a belated wedding gift. But not to my "loving" husband. My father-in-law read the riot act to him and I remained with them until my little son was born—dead. If any woman's love could survive such treatment, it would be stronger than mine. I never loved my husband after that. We are now seperated. I live with his people who look upon me as a daughter and who feel that their son ruined my life.

"Lottie may sow the seeds of suspicion in her husband's mind by her efforts to goad him to desperation. Some one ought to tell her a few truths before it is too late. Her husband's trust is the highest compliment he can pay—and lost on Lottie."

And "Lonely" too, passes on some wisdom to the flighty little Lottie:

"Why should any woman want to cause unhappiness to the man who loves her? And is there any unhappiness that can compare with that of believing a loved one untrue? And that is the real fear back of all jealousy. The cruel dread of losing that which is beyond price—the beloved. And Lottie would inflict this upon the husband whose patience and trust seem beyond belief in the circumstances. It is hard to comprehend such a girl.

"I married the only man I ever loved—or ever will love. To me there just were no other men on earth. But he did not believe in me. We are often apart due to business. Every meeting was occasion for bitter quarreling. Finally real dislike replaced his love for me. I was heart-broken but could do nothing. He really believed the things of which he accused me. In the end it was almost a relief when he stopped coming home at all. The misery of it all had aged me, and made me dread each meeting. We parted after nine years that should have been happy but were agony instead. He has never remarried although it is five years, and recently told a mutual friend that he realized now what a terrible thing he has done to me.

"Believe me, there is no joy in the experience that Lottie craves. The sensitive woman shrivels under suspicion. And just as Miss McDonald has said, such a woman actually looks guilty—despite her innocence. May Lottie develop sense?"

LONELY.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

Taurus.

IF May 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a. m. to 10:45 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 3:15 p. m. and from 7:10 p. m. to 9:15 p. m. The danger hours are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.

The planetary aspects of May 21 indicate that some financial losses may be encountered—the result of either extravagance or bad judgment. An opportunity, which if seized may lead to fortunate results, is foreshadowed. In the evening, benign conditions will prevail.

A child born on this May 21 will be shrewd, decisive and positive. It will always know what it wants and when it wants it. Truthfulness and directness will characterize its speech and actions. It will, at a very early age, shed childish illusions, and will become practical and sensible.

Born on May 21, you are a cheerful sort of person, always bright and always humorous, perennially optimistic. No matter how dark the clouds, no matter how drab the outlook, you persistently refuse to be cast down and can always glimpse, over the distant hilltops of time, a gleam of sunshine. In every disaster that comes, you can always sense some spot of humor, and in this way an embarrassing situation never develops into disaster.

You work intelligently and well. On the other hand you play enthusiastically and with keen zest. You love constantly and endow the object of your affection with virtue and gifts far in excess of real merit. You look at everything through rose-colored glasses and get a boundless measure of happiness out of your life. Figuratively speaking, if you lose one leg in an accident, you would comfort yourself with the thought that it might have been worse: you might have lost both. You can count on an army of friends and admirers, and in times of difficulty one and all can gather from you hope and comfort, and oftimes strength to "carry on." Your good spirits are infectious, and you and gloom have not even a bowing acquaintance.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, PH. D.

THE family name "Bagg" (also spelled "Bagge") is of English origin. Its source is the common Anglo-Saxon personal name "Baga," which is sometimes found with the spellings "Bagga" and "Bacga." It means "strife" and "contest." Thirteenth century instances of this name in English records are William Bage, Ketel Bagge and Robert Bagge.

The family name "Bagot" (also spelled "Baggott" and "Bagott") is of English origin. It is a diminutive form of "Bagg," and may therefore be translated "little strife" or "little contest." It was introduced into Ireland soon after the Anglo-Norman invasion, since which time it has spread extensively. In 1260 a certain Robert Bagod obtained a grant of the manor of Rath, near Dublin.

The family name "Bagley" (also spelled "Baguley") has come down to us from two main sources. It is frequently of English origin and means "the meadow of Baga." "Baga" was an Anglo-Saxon personal name meaning "strife" and "contest." There is a Bagley Wood near Abingdon, Berkshire, and a town called Baguley in Cheshire. A former residence in one of these places has frequently given rise to the family name. Fourteenth century instances of this name in English records are William de Bagglegh (1318), Hamo de Baggelegh (1352) and Johannes de Bagley (1379). In Ireland, "Bagley" is generally the modern form of the original name "O Beaglaoich," which means "the descendant of the little hero." However, in a few cases it is the modern shortened form of "O Beigfhile," which may be translated "the descendant of the little poet."

¼ teaspoon paprika

Wash tomatoes. Cut off tops and reserve them. With spoon, scoop out part of inside pulp and seeds. Beat egg and add crumbs, seasonings, egg and bacon. Refill cases. Set upright in shallow pan. Add ½ inch water and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. Baste frequently during baking.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

Please tell me the name of the plant from which I am inclosing a branch. R. G. P.

The specimen reached my desk in the form of powder, so it is impossible to identify it.

Shall I cut my geraniums back to increase their bushiness for next fall? I have had them growing in my living room all winter. They are really seedlings which I started last September. They are now in 4-inch pots. Would you advise transplanting them at this time or will they continue to grow in these pots all summer?

MRS. N. A.

If you intend to keep them as potted plants, I would at this time transplant them into 6-inch pots, but if you inend to plant them outside, this will not be necessary. Pinching the ends out of the shoots will increase the plant's bushiness. These plants will soon begin to bloom.

Please examine the inclosed leaf and then suggest a remedy for the brown condition of all the leaves on the plant. A. H.

Your pandanus is suffering from too little fresh air and too little water. Better set it in a sunny place on your porch or by an open window where it will receive plenty of sunshine. Water it every other day and sponge the foliage with cold water twice a week. Keep the surface soil in the pot quite loose.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed leaf. Also, why it has ceased to grow. It was a gorgeous thing a month ago. Now all the leaves are falling off and the plant is a sight. I give it plenty of water.

MRS. J. M. B.

Your begonia is suffering from too much water and too little fresh air, and perhaps from too much heat. Better place the plant in the open air and water it thoroughly every other day. In exceedingly hot weather you may have to water it every day. The roots of any variety of begonia must be always in cool, moist soil.

Pleses tell me how often and how much water to give a dracena. I also have a snake plant which is not doing well. Should it have much water and how many applications a week does it require? MRS. M. B.

Both plants require at least five hours' sun a day and their roots should always be in moist soil. This means water every other day in the case of the pandanus and water every day in the case of the dracena. Both plants require a great deal of fresh air. They should at this season be on a porch or near an open window. Keep the surface soil in both pots quite loose.

Please tell me if I am likely to succeed with columbine if I plant it where it will only have sun about four hours a day. The rest of the time it will be in partial shade.

MISS MARGARET L. M.

Yes, such an environment should suit columbine.

I have an old honeysuckle which has, due to lack of attention, become matted. I really am at a loss to know what to do with it unless I cut it back to the roots, for it is impossible to untangle it.

MRS. THOMAS T. R.

The best thing will be to cut it back to the roots. Honeysuckle soon sends out a new supply of branches. These must be carefully trained. Tie them out from the roots so that as they grow they will spread.

Please tell me whether pansies that develop seeds cease to bloom. I am asking this question to settle a discussion. MARIE T. L.

Yes.

Please tell me how to keep pansies in good condition. My plants are lovely at this time, but when the warm weather comes they always cease developing large flowers, the leaves begin to turn yellow and finally I have to replace them.

MRS. C. C. P.

If you keep your pansies well watered and each day remove the faded flowers and leaves, they should last the entire season. The thing to do is to prevent them from going to seed. This is done by removing the faded flowers each day.

35 ADS NECESSARY TO WIN $1,000 PRIZE

Story of Each Participating Concern Must Be Told at Least Once.

Have you got that $1,000 idea yet? Here is your opportunity to write that ad which will be so different that it will dance before the eyes of the judges saying, "Forget me if you can," and after all the others are judged they will find themselves coming back to that ad and awarding the writer the $1,000 grand prize.

Remember, all you need is one idea, but you must write at least one ad about each of the 35 participating concerns. The more ads you write the more ideas you express and the greater your chances for winning. If you have not entered this contest before you can start right now and win that grand prize or one of the special prizes some of the concerns are giving. Here are some tips on how to write the $1,000 ad.

New Slogan Is Wanted.

Let your ads about the Fairfax Farms Dairies, Inc., tell about their wonderful rich 'hi test" Jersey milk and cream from T. B. tested cows. Remember their products are obtainable only at the dairies, not at stores. They are Washington owned and operated. They have a fleet of efficient delivery trucks which insures prompt and courteous service. Remember their slogan, "You can't beat our milk, but you can whip our cream." Think up a new and original idea for this concern. That is not such a hard order to fill. Try it. That very ad you send in about this concern may win the $1,000 grand prize. Get busy, every one.

Special Prize Is Offered.

You should write some very splendid ads about D. J. Kaufman, Inc. Besides the material it affords for ads, there is the special prize the firm is giving, a $45 "Beau Geste," hand-tailored, silk-lined, two-trouser suit. Is that worth writing ads for, we ask you? Come on, fellows, get busy. The ladies also have a chance. Think of it, you married folks; if the Mrs. wins that suit she will be entitled to an equal sum with which to purchase herself an outfit at Rizik Bros.

Remember, D. J. Kaufman, or Radio Joe, has everything for men from head to foot. He sacrifices prices, but never quality. The highest quality merchandise at the lowest price. His budget plan is another feature to incorporate in your ads. Be sure and visit this concern for further details and write a real ad and win that special prize and the grand award.

Refrigerator Is Easy Subject.

The Edgar Morris Sales Co. offers you a big opportunity to win the grand award by writing ads about the Westinghouse Refrigerator. In your ads about this newest, most up to date modern refrigerator on the market, list its superior qualities. Give one or more of the 24 reasons why this refrigerator is better than others. Tell about the easy payment plan and feature all those things that go to make up this truly superior refrigerator which are responsible for its increasing sales.

Bakeries Are Home Owned.

All you need to write that prize-winning ad about the Associated Bakery Unions is one loaf of their nationally known bread. Remember, this is the bread with the label. On this label is the name and address of a Washington Bakery. This is your insurance of sanitation and health. The Associated Bakery Unions are Washington owned and operated. Their delicious, health-giving bread is on sale in nearly every store in Washington. Don't delay another day; get a loaf of this locally made, pure, wholesome bread and then write the ad that will win the $1,000 grand prize.

Post-Zain Prize-Winners To Be Published Tomorrow

$100 First Award, With Four Others, Closes Sixth Period Ad-Writing Contest; Seventh Competition Starts as Final Battle.

Tomorrow the secret will be out. The winners of the $100 first prize and the four other big award winners of the sixth period of the Post-Zain Ad Writing Contest will be published in tomorrow morning's paper. Every one is anxiously waiting to see if his name is among those winners. Don't forget Saturday morning's Post will have the entire list of the 280 merchandise prize-winners for the sixth period.

If one or more of your ideas has captured prizes, don't stop writing ads just because you've won, or if you haven't won prizes, don't become discouraged and quit. Now is your real opportunity, whether you have won or whether you haven't, to win that grand award of $1,000. That $1,000 grand prize, which will be given for the best idea submitted during entire contest, will be awarded at the end of the seventh and final week of this campaign. That check, which will be drawn on the Federal American National Bank & Trust Co., is waiting for you.

There is still a vivid picture of the recent derby in our mind. Remember the winner of that race was not in the lead, and suddenly he started gaining, and because he was a thoroughbred he won. Every horse in the Kentucky Derby was a thoroughbred and out to win. Twenty Grand pulled up from tenth position in a field of a dozen steeds to win that derby. That is what you can do. You can win this race and the largest of all prizes in the Post-Zain Contest, $1,000 grand award.

Remember, Twenty Grand in the Derby was second by a couple of lengths at the three-quarters, and many were yelling that he couldn't win—a few seconds later another wild shout went up in the hot dusty air "Twenty Grand on top." Thus it is with you. You may not think you can win; your friends may not think you can capture this $1,000 grand prize, but just get busy and write more and more ads and all your friends will know that you are the winner when you see your name at the top of The Washington Post as the $1,000 grand award winner in The Post-Zain ad contest.

How did Twenty Grand happen to win that Derby? That wasn't his first race. Do you realize that every day he was trained and run. Kept in fit condition for this race. He has been entered many times before, but hasn't always won. The same is true of you. You may have entered many ads in this contest, and haven't won, but keeping on writing more and more ads will make you fit and give you a wonderful opportunity to win this $1,000 grand prize in this final week of the contest.

Remember all those special prizes which the concerns are giving for the best ads during entire contest will also be given at the close of this week.

Forget all the other ads you have written. Start today and write more and more ads. Devote this entire week to writing ads for the grand prize and the special prizes. Then if those other ads you've written don't win, the ads you write this week will increase your chances tenfold to capture that "big prize," or win the "Derby" of The Post-Zain contest.

Here is a great opportunity for you ad writers to win that $1,000 grand prize to be given at the close of this, the final seventh week of The Post-Zain Ad Writing Contest.

Write lots of ads about the Steuart Motor Co., located at Sixth and K. Feature its 24-hour service. This concern has grown by leaps and bounds and is now Washington's largest Ford dealer. With its expert mechanics it is equipped to service completely all Ford cars. It is often referred to as the motor company with the service as dependable as the car it sells.

The service is prompt, efficient and courteous. The firm always as close as the nearest telephone. Its ever-increasing success and popularity is built upon its high quality expert service.

Get busy and write that $1,000 prize-winning ad about the ultra-smart, designed - for - comfort car which the Steuart Motor Co. sells, and its excellent service.

Second Divorce Suit Is Brought by Mother

Mrs. Mary Gay O'Meara yesterday filed suit for divorce from her husband, Arlie P. O'Meara. She asserts that they were married in Baltimore July 9, 1924, and have one child.

The allegation is made that a divorce suit was filed by Mrs. O'Meara in February, 1930, but that she withdrew it on her husband's promise to be dutiful. Despite this, she says, he deserted her last January and has been paying attention to another.

—Pulitzer Prize Novel—

YEARS OF GRACE - - - By Margaret Ayer Barnes

SYNOPSIS.

A big, jolly party, including Jane and Andre, drive off in Mr. Furness' laity-he to visit the World's Fair. They dine on the terrace, visit the streets of Cairo and ride on the ferris wheel in the Midway. Just as they are coming home, weary and happy, they unexpectedly see Flora's mother, Mrs. Furness, who is thought to be away, sailing in a gondola with Mr. Bert Lancaster.

ANDRE—CHAPTER V.

IT was late June and school was over. Jane had just been thinking, under the willow tree, how strange it was that school, incredibly, was over forever. The commencement exercises had been very impressive. Jane and Agnes and Flora and Muriel had sat in a row on a temporary platform at the end of the study hall with seven other classmates, and dressed in white muslin and carrying beautiful bouquets of roses. A clergyman had prayed over them and a professor from Northwestern University had delivered an address on "Success in Life," and Miss Milgrim had made a little speech about the class of '94 and all it had done for the school and had handed each of them a little parchment diploma tied with blue and yellow ribbon. Blue and yellow were the school colors.

Ten days before that Jane had taken her Bryn Mawr examinations. Only last week she had heard that she had passed them. Her mother had received that information with a tolerant smile. But her father had been very much pleased. He had given her a little green enamel pin shaped like a four-leaved clover, for luck, with a real pearl, like a dewdrop, in the center. She was wearing it now at the collar of her shirtwaist.

Jane would see Flora and Muriel, of course, in September, but Agnes was gone for a year and, what was much worse, Andre was leaving for France next week.

Jane was waiting for him now in the afternoon sunshine under the willow tree. She was going on a supper picnic with his father and mother up the lake shore beyond the city limits. Jane was oiling her Columbia Safety in preparation for the fete. Suddenly she saw him pedaling down Pine street, a big picnic box strapped to his handlebars.

"Yo-hoo," she called.

He waved his cap and turned to bump up over the curbstone, then dismounted at the gate.

"Ready?"

"Where are your father and mother?"

Andre pointed.

"Here they come," he said. "Aren't they sweet?"

Jane's glance followed his finger. Half a block away Mr. and Mrs. Duroy were approaching down Pine street. They were mounted on a tandem bicycle. Mrs. Duroy's tall figure rose above the handlebars with a certain angular ease. Her long brown skirts flapped gally against her mudguard and her sailor hat was rakishly askew. Mr. Duroy, behind her, was riding the bumps of the cedar-block pavement with Gallic grace. He wore a gray tweed suit with knickerbockers and he looked very plump and elderly and debonair. When he saw Jane he waved his hand and his eyeglasses fell off promptly. The wheel wobbled perilously as he recaptured them.

"Don't be so gallant!" said Mrs. Duroy. "Hello, Jane."

Jane and Andre bumped down over the curb and swung into line with them.

The lake was very bright and blue as they bowled along up the drive. The park was lovely in fresh June leaf. North of the park the city stopped abruptly.

The road here was so sandy that they had to push the bicycles and there were no more houses. Just clumps of willow trees and groves of scrub oak and stone pine, with wild flowers underfoot. They heard the lake before they saw it. The sound of little waves, breaking and pausing and breaking again, on the long hard beaches. They found an oak wood, crowning a tiny sand dune. The ground was blue with wild geranium and a few late violets, purple and yellow dogtooth, stunted by the cool lake breeze, still lingered in the damper places. Beyond the trees was the great stretch of yellow sand and the stainless wash of blue that was the lake.

Mr. Duroy stretched himself beneath an oak and took out a long black cigar. Mrs. Duroy began unpacking the picnic basket at once. She had brought a little brass kettle, with an alcohol lamp, in which to boil water for tea.

When the water was boiling they all began to eat their supper. The sun sank down behind the oak trees in a saffron sky and a silver glow hung over the eastern horizon. Almost immediately the great golden disk of the moon came up out of the lake. It rose, incredibly quickly, balanced a moment on the water's edge, then floated, free, in the clear evening air. The sky was still quite blue. Jane could see Venus, through the tree trunks, low in the west, paled to a yellow candle in the afterglow. The color faded quickly out of the world. The lake grew gray and the path of the moon more silvery. When Venus vanished in the sunset mists Jane could count seven stars, high overhead, piercing the pale sky.

Mr. Duroy lit his second cigar. Andre produced his cigarette. Mrs. Duroy lay flat on her back, her hands under her head, gazing spellbound at the moon.

"It is a night for a serenade," said Mr. Duroy. And no one contradicted him.

"Sing, Andre," said his mother after a brief pause. "Sing, or your father will!"

Andre smiled a little self-consciously at Jane.

"Do, Andre," she said.

He was sitting cross-legged on the grass beside her. His strong, capable hands, sculptor's hands, she'd heard his mother say, were crossed between his knees. His cigarette trailed negligently from his slender fingers. Without moving, his eyes upon her face, he suddenly began to sing. His light, young tenor soared softly up in the words of the old nursery rhyme.

"Au clair de la lune,
Mon ami, Pierrot,
Prete moi ta plume,
Pour ecrire un mot.
Ma chandelle est morte,
Je n'ai plus est feu,
Ouvre moi ta porte
Pour l'amour de Dieu!"

It was a serenade. Why, it was—it was a love song. Jane had never heard that note of tender entreaty in Andre's voice before. Her eyes fell quickly before his own. His mother was looking at him a little anxiously.

"Magnifique!" said Mr. Duroy. "It is a splendid old song. And it always makes me think of rocking you to sleep." He cast away his cigar. "You inspire me to emulation!"

"Georges!" said Andre's mother warningly.

"Mine," said Mr. Duroy imperturbably, "is a more modern ballad. In tune with the age. And very appropriate to the lady of my dreams." In his booming bass, humming as he started like a great bumble bee, trilling r's as he continued, he slipped into the familiar cadence of "Daisy Bell:"

"Daisy, Daisy, give me your answer, do!
I'm half crazy, all for the love of you!
It won't be a stylish marriage.
I can't afford a carriage.
But you'll look sweet
Upon the seat
Of a bicycle built for two!"

His voice was shaken with mock emotion. Andre's mother and Jane were both laughing uproariously. Andre, however, sat very still, just smiling a little, his eyes on Jane's face. Suddenly he sprang to his feet.

"Come walk on the beach," he said.

Jane looked up at him questioningly. Then quickly at Mrs. Duroy. Her eyes were fastened on Andre and they had again that faintly worried look. Andre's glance followed her own.

"It's all right, isn't it, mother?" he said.

"Yes," she said slowly. "Quite all right, of course. But don't stay long. We must be starting home."

Jane rose to her feet and set off with Andre across the beach. They plodded silently down to the water, where the sand was dark and firm and the little waves broke softly on the shingle.

"Jane," said Andre almost immediately, "do you realize that I'm—leaving you—next week?"

"Yes," said Jane, softly.

There was a little pause.

"Jane," said Andre again. "I can't go without—without talking to you."

"Talking to me?" repeated Jane, stupidly.

"Telling you," said Andre. He was walking quickly along the beach, not looking at her. Jane was hurrying a little to keep up with him.

"Telling me?" she said.

Suddenly he stopped. He stood looking down at her in the moonlight.

"Telling you," he said. "Though of course you know. Telling you that I—love you."

Jane felt her heart jump, as if it skipped a beat. She felt terribly excited. And terribly happy.

"Oh, Andre!" she said.

"I—love you——" said Andre again. She was staring up at him. His face looked very stern.

"Oh, do you?" she cried. "Do you really?"

"Don't you know?" said Andre.

Suddenly he stopped. He stood looking down at her in the moonlight. "Telling you," he said. "Though, of course, you know. Telling you that I—love you."

Jane suddenly began to tremble, tremble uncontrollably, all over. She put out her hands to him, quickly. He clasped them in his own. Suddenly he seemed to realize how she was shaking.

"Jane!" he said, and his voice was suddenly tremulous.

For a moment they stood staring into each others' eyes. Then——

"Jane!" he said again, and took her in his arms.

"My love," said Andre.

Jane clung to him desperately. Why, this—this was terrible. She was utterly shattered.

"Jane," said Andre again, "look at me."

Obediently she raised her eyes to his.

"You're crying!" said Andre. Jane hadn't known it.

"Jane—you do love me," said Andre.

Jane only wept the more.

"Kiss me," said Andre.

She raised her lips to his. The ground fell away from under her feet. The world was no more. Nothing existed but just—herself and—Andre.

"My love," he said again.

She opened her eyes, then, upon his face. And there was the moon and the lake and the beach. The world hadn't vanished, after all.

"Andre!" she said desperately. "What will we do?"

"You'll marry me," said Andre.

She pushed away his arms.

"Andre—I can't. We're too young."

"You're seventeen," said Andre.

"Last month," said Jane.

"I don't care," said Andre. "You'll marry me."

"Andre—I can't." The world was back indeed. Jane was thinking desperately of her mother—and Isabel—and, yes, even of her father. "They'll never let me."

"I'll talk to them tomorrow. I'll tell father tonight."

"And your mother, Andre. They'll never let you!"

"Oh, yes, they will," said Andre. "When I tell them."

"Marry you," said Jane wonderingly. "Marry you—now?"

"If you will," said Andre.

"I—I couldn't—now." The thought of temporizing brought a little hope. "I am too young."

"Well—later, then," said Andre confidently. "In the fall. When your family are used to it. I'll come and get you——"

Suddenly just his saying it seemed to make it true.

"Oh, Andre," breathed Jane. "I—I can't believe it."

"What?" said Andre.

"That we're—engaged."

"You bet we are," said Andre.

"Andre!" It was his mother's voice. "You must bring Jane back. We're leaving, now."

"Kiss me again," said Andre. He took her once more in his arms. This second kiss was not quite so wildly unexpected. And his mother was calling.

"Andre!"

"Yes, mother! We're coming. They turned back across the beach.

"I have you now," said Andre. "I have you."

Jane didn't deny it. She clung to his arm until they were very near the oak grove.

The supper was all packed away. Mr. Duroy still sat beneath his tree, but Mrs. Duroy was erect by the tandem. She looked at Andre still a little anxiously, Jane thought.

They pushed their wheels in silence back to the car tracks.

"Stay with us, children," said Andre's mother. "It's very late." They pedaled slowly home. The park was filled with bicycles. Their myriad lamps glittered like fireflies in its bosky alleys. Jane kept glancing at Andre's face in the moonlight. It was very stern again. But beautiful, Jane thought. He threw her a smile, now and then. A happy, confident smile. Mr. and Mrs. Duroy went with them to her house. Andre, however, walked into the yard. She went to the side door because she had her bicycle. Mr. and Mrs. Duroy were waiting at the curb. As Jane was getting out her key, he pulled her quickly into the vestibule.

"Good-night," said Andre, taking her in his arms.

"Good-night," she breathed, against his lips.

"I'll come—tomorrow afternoon—to see your father."

"Oh, Andre," she whispered fearfully.

"You're mine," said Andre, "and I'll never give you up."

Jane unlocked the door.

"Good-night," she said again, and smiled up at him. He blew her a little kiss. She slipped into the hall. He vanished down the path. Jane closed the door and stood a moment, quite still, leaning against the panels. "I'm his," she thought. "He'll never give me up." It was very late. The family were all in bed. Jane turned out the back hall light. "He loves me," she thought, as she crept up the stairs. "Andre loves me." She paused a moment by her mother's door. She tapped gently on the wooden panels.

"I'm in," said Jane. A sleepy murmur was the only reply. Then, "Did you turn out the light?"

"Yes," said Jane and went on down the hall. "He loves me," she thought, as she opened her bedroom door. "Andre loves me."

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IN skimming through the May issue of Equity, the official organ of the Actors Equity Association, I came upon an obituary notice that will come as a shock to many Washingtonians numbered among his friends. It concerned the recent passing, heretofore unannounced in the Capital, to the best of my knowledge, of Willard S. Robertson.

It will be recalled that it was Willard S. Robertson who appeared in the role of Dr. Herbert Skinner, the father, in Paramount's production of "Skippy," one of the most lauded pictures of the year, but Washington's interest in Mr. Robertson dates far back beyond the production of that admirable phonoplay.

Years ago Willard Robertson was a member of the Columbia Theater Stock Company, later transferring his allegiance, if memory serves correctly, to Poli's. Abandoning the stage for a time, he graduated in law and became an attorney-examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission, in which capacity he served for a considerable period.

Later, again succumbing to the lure of the lights, he returned to the theater and authored several plays in collaboration with Kilbourne Gordon, producer of "The Cat and the Canary," and a former Washingtonian who at one time served as a theatrical commentator on this paper.

Maclyn Arbuckle and Alfred Hickman, in private life the husband of Nance O'Neil, were among others whose passing was cited in Equity.

Yesterday's post brought tidings of the appointment of Caryll N. Odell, former Washington newspaper man, to the publicity staff of the Paramount-Publix organization. He will work under Al Wilkie in Paramount's New York studio, where his close friend, Monta Bell, is directing Nancy Carroll in "Personal Maid."

Mr. Odell's most recent work in Washington was in association with Harry A. Kite, Inc., which terminated following the death of Mr. Kite. He started his newspaper career on the Washington Herald founded by Scott Bone and has since served on the staffs of other local papers, International News Service, Baltimore Sun, New York Sun, New York Tribune and other newsgathering organizations.

After a period of publicity work in this city, Odell became adviser to the government of Guatemala, later occupying the post of publicity director of the five nations of Central America when these governments attempted to unite into one republic.

That ought to equip him perfectly to wrangle some fun out of a movie press agent's job!

There must be something about service at the Metropolitan Theater that promotes a yen for the propagation and perfection of pulchritude.

Fannie Brooke, for many years manager of the Metropolitan, calls up to say that in association with Mrs. Brooke, he has launched into the beauty parlor profession out Fourteenth street way. The new establishment opens Saturday with ten operators in attendance.

Joe Rosner, formerly viola player in the Metropolitan Orchestra, not so long ago also went in for hoisting the chins and pinning the ears back.

If it's next week you are worrying about, the National Theater Players, beginning Monday, will present one of the liveliest comedies of the season in "Up Pops the Devil," a sprightly collaboration by Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich.

The scene of the play is Greenwich Village in New York, where the apartment home of a pair of ambitious young lovers is made a "party joint" by all of their friends, until. . . .

But that is why you will want to see it. Stanley Ridges and Nancy Sheridan will appear in the costellar roles, with the remainder of the cast advantageously assigned, as is their wont.

In the motion picture houses, the line-up will be something as follows: Metropolitan, beginning today, by the way, John Barrymore in "Svengali;" Fox, beginning tomorrow, El Brendel, Sidney Fox, Spencer Tracy and Una Merkel in "Six Cylinder Love," and Fanchon and Marco's "Dance" idea on the stage; RKO-Keith's, beginning tomorrow, Richard Dix, Jackie Cooper and Marion Shilling in "Donovan's Kid;" Rialto, Lloyd Hughes, Lola Lane and Leo Carillo in "Hell Bound;" Earle, Bebe Daniels and Ricardo Cortez in "The Maltese Falcon" and Joe Laurie, jr., heading the vaudeville bill; Palace, William Powell and Kay Francis in "Ladies Man," and Loew's "All Girl Revue," on the stage; Columbia, Norma Shearer, Robert Montgomery and Neil Hamilton in "Strangers May Kiss." The last four open Saturday.

For his fortress of frivolity on Ninth street, beginning Sunday, Jimmy Lake ballyhoos "Rags" Ragland, "Bimbo" Davis and Harry Beasley with the "Parisian Beauties" burlesquers.

A very nice note from Blanche Sweet about that interview. I told you she was like that.

It seems the principal trouble was that too many people addressed the late Mr. Cunningham with, "Hi, Jack!"

Neuritis

There is no pain like Neuritis. There is nothing quite so torturing—so utterly unbearable as Neuritis. It robs life of all joy—and makes people desperate. But Neuritis is not hopeless—it responds to proper treatment. A well-known physician has written us, "Have been drinking Mountain Valley Water for six weeks for Neuritis and am feeling better than I have for two years." Mountain Valley Mineral Water from Hot Springs, Ark., brings relief in Neuritis because it gets at the root of the trouble—it tends to neutralize the acids which are irritating the nerves and retards the further accumulation of these acids by aiding healthy, normal elimination through the kidneys. Renew your hope—learn how Nature can help you. Phone for our booklet today. Met. 1062.

With Maj. Gen. Albert J. Bowley, assistant chief of staff for personnel, War Department general staff, as reviewing officer, the Georgetown University R. O. T. C. unit will hold its twelfth annual military day on the Hilltop campus at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Lieut. Col. Campbell B. Hodges, military aid to President Hoover, will be senior judge of events, which will be featured by competitive company and platoon drills. Staff officers of the military department at the University of Maryland will be other judges.

Directors of the Washington Chamber of Commerce have donated for the fifth time silver cups which will be awarded by President Harry King to four cadets of the Georgetown unit who ranked first in their respective classes in military efficiency during the year. Half a dozen other prizes also are to be awarded to honor cadets.

A Washington boy, Luther W. Grey, is cadet lieutenant colonel in command of the infantry regiment at the Hilltop this year. The program of events will open and close with a regimental review, music being furnished by the R. O. T. C. band. Maj. William H. Hobson, U. S. A., commandant, will be in general charge. Among invited guests are a number of military attaches of various embassies and legations in Washington.

Free Textbooks Urged.

Winchester, Va., May 20 (Special).—Resolutions urging free textbooks for all pupils in Virginia public schools, a reduction in the number of immigrants admitted into the United States and the offer of the State administration to give all possible aid to President Hoover's unemployment commission were highlights in the closing work of the twenty-second annual council of the order Fraternal Americans of Virginia in session here Tuesday and yesterday.

Another Scientist Claimed by Arctic

German Explorer's Body Found by Rescuers in Greenland.

Berlin, May 20 (A.P.).—Arctic rigors have claimed another illustrious explorer and scientist. Word received here today that the body of Prof. Alfred L. Wegener, head of the German expedition to central Greenland, had been found by a rescue party dispelled the last lingering hope that he would be found alive.

Missing since November 1, when he started out with only a native companion for his base on the Western edge of the Greenland ice cap—a journey of about 250 miles—Dr. Wegener's body was found some 90 miles from his central camp at Eismitte, his starting point.

The 50-year-old scientist led his expedition into Greenland in April, 1930, intending to spend eighteen months there studying meteorological and scientific data.

Soldiers, Airplane Used To Locate and Seize Still

Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., May 20 (A.P.).—The Army used its Aviation and Infantry units to detect and seize a still in operation in a thick patch of woods on the reservation here, close by several high explosive storage magazines. Two men were arrested and two escaped.

The soldiers, under command of Col. Edward M. Shinkle, yesterday afternoon were directed to the still by Lieut. Mark Woodward, who flew over the area in which it had been reported by a guard.

The still was discovered by a soldier making his rounds on a motorcycle Monday evening. He reported to his officers the operators had offered him "five dollars a week to keep quiet." The soldier said he accepted the offer to keep the men from fleeing until the arrests could be made.

Those captured identified themselves as Percy Brazil, 21, of Tarboro, N. J., and William Isaac, 26, of Roanoke County, Va. They were taken to a Baltimore police station.

Man Hurt in Tumble of 6 Feet.

From a loading platform on which he had been seated eating his lunch, Edward Mandler, 30 years old, of Berwyn, Md., tumbled headlong 6 feet to the ground to receive critical injuries shortly after noon yesterday at the Guaranty Storage Co., of 401 South Capitol street. At Emergency Hospital he was reported suffering from severe lacerations of the head.

Boy, 14, Accidentally Hanged.

Keyser, W. Va., May 20 (Special).—George Stell, jr., 14, son of George Stell, Baltimore & Ohio freight agent here, was accidentally hanged in the cellar of his home this afternoon. The lad was sent to empty tubs of water in the cellar and in some manner tripped and became entangled in a clothes line suspended above from joists and strangled to death.

WHAT SAY THE TAXPAYERS?

IN the late summer of 1928 the City of Olean, N. Y., had an epidemic of waterborne typhoid. The water supply ordinarily is good, being chlorinated and properly watched over.

They have two sources of water. From one of these water is carried under the bed of a polluted river. The pipe in this river bed broke and polluted river water was sucked in. In a short while the leak was discovered and the pipe was shut off, never to be used again. This story has been told in this column and nothing is gained by repeating it.

However, more than two years after the epidemic, Dr. Dean supplies some additional information which it is well that public officials and taxpayers should have.

It has been established in law that communities that sell polluted water to their cities are financially responsible for whatever disease that water may cause. Olean had a population that year of 21,599. The reporter does not give the values of the taxable property. In order to settle the claims that grew out of the epidemic the city had to bond itself for $425,000. These bonds run for 25 years. Therefore, interest and bonds will run much more than $1,000,000. This figures a bonding of the average citizen of about $20, and a payment by the average citizen of much more than $50, assuming that this bond issue will pay all the bills. They have already paid out $370,000 and 24 claims remain unsettled. Of these one is for a death, and five are chronic carriers, who are asking for damages, one for $75,000.

Assuming that the present bond issue will be sufficient to meet all the bills, the average cost to the community for each case that recovered will be $1,550. One railroad conductor, 49 years old, collected $16,566. The average cost to the community for the cases that died was $3,200. A 72-year-old physician cost the community $714 for nursing, hospital, and funeral expenses. A 56-year-old train dispatcher cost them $11,550. The expense of the cases that died totaled $80,000; of those that lived, $345,000. Twelve chronic carriers have not been settled with.

Since the epidemic, the city has spent $125,000 additional in the water plant. The Chamber of Commerce estimates the direct loss to the business interests as the result of trade diverted, inefficiency of labor, decreased expenditures of residents, as $200,000. There were 248 cases and 25 deaths. Of these, 218 were residents of Olean, and 18 were from the country outside the city. The balance was from more remote places.

These figures do not include the cost of health department work, of work by the Red Cross and other agencies, the cost of service rendered by the State, nor expenses to families and individuals, nor loss of wages, nor earning power except where this has been made a matter of award of damages.

HERPES OF LIPS

B. C.: I have an 11-year-old boy who very often gets blisters on the lower lip. What is the cause? The cure? The child says they are painful.

REPLY.

I presume the boy has attacks of herpes. If so, he should change his habits. How about his bowels and eating habits? Sleeping sickness has been known to follow herpes of the lips or fever blisters.

NATS HELD TO 3 HITS IN 2-0 WIN OVER WHITE SOX

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

EUREKA! An open letter.

Among the assortment of mail that filters in the sanctum of this column there has arrived—yesterday—the lazy scribe's delight, the open letter. Forthwith and almost without further introduction we present the following hand-out "for immediate release."

It is from the magazine Life and, like all regulation open letters, it contains a tirade against the existing order of things. In this case it is addressed to and directed against the United States Golf Association and its new ball, bigger and lighter, which was decreed as the only legal ball for tournament play on and after January 1, 1931. To-wit:

To Wit: Ahem

"Gentlemen:

"We address this letter to you with every reasonable assurance that it represents the opinions and wishes of the great majority of golfers in this country.

"Being very much interested in anything affecting the enjoyment of several million earnest and devoted sportsmen, we believe our representation on their behalf should claim your serious attention.

"For a month or two now the toilers of the fairway have been knocking your new ball around. The greatest body of rule-obeyers in our land have humbly accepted this newest noble experiment and they are working loyally at it. They are thwacking it mightily into the toughest gale, watching it hover and dip and rise again, often to soar away like a homing bird into the trees to some unplayable nest. They are putting it diligently at the cup, diligently and boldly—boy she's in!—oop—a curl and a flip and out pops Big Boy for another try.

Yes, Gentlemen

"Yes, gentlemen, your new ball is in use. Or shall we say it has so far been successfully enforced! It has been tried in the sporting and open-minded spirit that you might well expect from that splendid gentleman-liar, the American Golf Player. But it is a failure. It was a disappointment in May; it will be hated in June; and by July it will be a tyranny. You have literally commanded the player who worked and slaved for years to break 90, to work and slave quite a bit harder to break 100. He watches that ball leave the tee more anxiously than a father ever watched his daughter go out at night. His very backstroke is ordered by an imagination seething with alibis. He sees his caddy reach for his putter with the tortured mind of a patient watching his dentist reach for a new and strange and pain-laden implement.

"The new ball is unjust and unfair, because it widens the gap between the expert and the dub. It may prevent a great player from turning your toughest course in a casual 66, but it will prevent many thousands of others—who make the game, make the galleries, and love the fun—from turning in that joyous 89 that means so much. You simply can not educate these players to accept bad shots they don't deserve. Our own Government has found that out.

You Must Be Aware

"We have asked you to accept what may seem an unproved assertion of golfing opinion as it now stands regarding the new ball. Actually, it is based on carefully gathered reports from all parts of the country, and we omit these only because you gentlemen surely must be aware of the situation and the increasing discontent.

"What will be done about it? Are we going to have an eighteenth amendment in golf, stubbornly adhered to? Bootleggers of the former standard ball? International squabbles about the world's most widely played game? A great body of disappointed players regulated and then ignored?

"Perhaps you disagree with us about the status of golfing opinion. In that case we beg leave to ask one question: If it can be proved to you that the majority of players in this country want the old ball back, will you restore that ball to official standing?

"We are certain that the golfers of America will be very much interested in any reply you think fit to make.

"Sincerely yours,

"LIFE."

Letter Is Liked

I like a lot of things about that letter. The part about "humbly accepting it" and where it says "out pops Big Boy for another try." That line which runs "Yes, gentlemen, your new ball is in use or rather has been successfully enforced" is a corker. That's tyranny for you. Life gets right down to divot level when it refers to "that gentleman-liar, the American Golf Player." Recalls the story of the fourth-rate pug handing himself a doubtful compliment in speaking of another fighter with the assertion that "Why, that Big Bum ain't no better than I am."

Life is going to circulate a petition to every golf club in the country demanding action on the new ball be rescinded. Here's my signature. Big Boy popped out for me on fourteen of eighteen greens at Indian Spring yesterday. Walter Haight, my playing partner and master of the putter before January 1, 1931, subdued his feelings in the matter until after reaching home last night, where he got out Grandfather Haight's musket and put Big Boy "on the spot," using model T balls as slugs.

Voigt Ousted By Youthful Briton

Syd Roper Winner on Last Hole in British Amateur Upset.

American Encounters Hazards After Gaining 2-Up Lead.

By FRANK H. KING.

WESTWARD HO!, Devon, England, May 20 (A.P.).—Syd Roper, a shy young man who learned his golf between shifts in a coal mine, today defeated George Voigt on the home green of Westward Ho! in the fifth round of the British amateur golf championship. Roper thus removed the last American hope to keep in the United States the cup Bobby Jones won last year.

The British amateur crown which Jones wears will rest on some British brow Friday night, for all of the last eight are natives of these islands.

Voigt lost a grim, match to his younger adversary by cutting his iron shot to the eighteenth green into a drainage ditch in front of the close-cropped carpet of the last hole. He had reached the nine-hole turn 2 up on young Roper and had never been behind until he plunged his ball into the watery depths where drowned his hopes of winning the British title.

Plays in Old Cap and Street Shoes.

There is nothing heroic either in the appearance or in the play of the young midlander. Roper played around this afternoon in an old cap, a worn sweater, flannel trousers and hob-nailed street shoes. He plays his game on the public course at Wollaton Park, Nottingham, much as he played it today, grimly and steadily, giving nothing away, not even 6-inch putts, and asking for nothing.

He did nothing dramatic today, for the delicate chip shots around the green he specializes in are not dramatic, but he was pulling them off monotonously, and that, coupled with Voigt's three fatal lapses at the tenth, eleventh and eighteenth holes, was good enough to win.

Tenth and Eleventh Voigt's Bugaboos.

Voigt may be said to have lost his championship chances on the tenth and eleventh holes,—bugaboos to him all week—where he twice drove into the wilderness of great sea rushes, tangles of weeds, tall as a man and with points of needle sharpness. Voigt today sent two tee shots into them and lost the advantage he had fought so hard to gain on the first nine. Both times Voigt got his ball out in one shot, but there was Roper, his old cap pulled down over his eyes, waiting for him on the green with one stroke less, and he won both holes.

George probably will long remember his shot from a clump of bushes at the eleventh. He backed into the pronged mass, which is like sitting down on a porcupine's back—broke off a few and suffered the rest, but his fine recovery was all in vain.

Before falling before Roper, Voigt had eliminated Bernard Darwin, 3 and 2. The cards:

Seven other Britons, none better than Roper, are in the quarter-finals with him. There is John Morrison, the former all-around athlete of Cambridge; John de Forest, son of a baron, who took lessons in the United States last winter from Horton Smith and others; Peter Miller, son of a famous polo player; Capt. H. C. C. Tippet, William Tulloch, a Glasgow business man; Eric Smith, of Cambridge University, and Dr. John MacCormack, a Dublin physician.

They will play the quarter and semi-finals tomorrow at 18 holes, with the 36-hole final Saturday.

Voigt packed up his bags tonight and left for Carmoustie, where he will play in the open next month.

Wethered's defeat was a distinct upset. The gallery was thus stunned when he lost his match with W. Tulloch. Tulloch was one up at the turn, and four up at the twelfth. Wethered then won the thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth, and halved the remaining three holes to give Tulloch a victory by 1 up.

Cyril Tolley lost his match with Capt. H. C. C. Tippet by 3 and 2. His own erratic and wild play cost Tolley his life in the tournament. Tippet is secretary of the Royal Wimbledon Golf Club. He is supposed to have lost his fortune in Florida Real Estate.

Maryland Cubs Bow At Lacrosse, 7 to 2

St. John's freshmen took the measure of the Maryland yearlings, 7 to 2, at lacrosse yesterday at College Park. It was the third loss in four starts for Maryland.

Displaying general superiority the visitors were the first to score and were never headed. At the half St. John's advantage was 2 to 1, Silver scoring a goal for the Old Liners just before the half ended.

Sasscer Ties Morrow for Golf Medal

81 Qualifies for Top Flight in Indian Spring Tourney.

Harvey Wins Place in Play-Off; Match Play Today.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

LEROY D. SASSCER, champion of the Indian Spring Club, yesterday tied with his fellow-member, Charles R. Morrow, for the medal for low gross score in the 18-hole qualification round of the Indian Spring Club's invitation golf tournament. Morrow led the field with 76 last Tuesday, but yesterday Sasscer, out in 38 and back in the same figures, was equally low. The tie will be played off either Saturday or Sunday afternoon.

As Sasscer glanced over his card he recalled many strokes that kept him from winning the medal outright. Although he started with a birdie 3 he missed a 4-foot putt for a par on the second green, saw his ball carried by the wind into a trap on the eighth, was compelled to play out of another trap on the eleventh and, most disastrous of all, took four putts on the fourteenth green. An equally tragic story was told by James D. Herrman, recent Chevy Chase tournament, who came within one stroke of tying for the medal.

Herrman Swamped On Final Holes.

Herrman was out in 37, even with three putts on the sixth, seventh and eighth greens, and although he missed his drive on the tenth and missed putts for birdies on the twelfth and thirteenth, he was happily breezing home when he was swamped on the last three holes. An encounter with a trap on the sixteenth when his ball seemed destined for the green, to drive into a trap on the seventeenth and a missed putt on the eighteenth caused him to finish 6—5—5. The cards of yesterday's leaders:

Out—
Sasscer ...	3	5	4	5	5	3	5	5	3—38
Herrman .	3	4	5	4	4	4	5	5	3—37
In—
Sasscer ...	4	5	3	4	4	5	5	3	5—38	76
Herrman .	5	4	4	4	5	4	6	5	5—40	77

A gale from the northwest, blowing strong across the sixteenth fairway and straight in the teeth of the players on the last two holes, made the finishing holes especially difficult. Harry G. Pitt, for instance, played the first five holes of the inward nine in 3—5—3—3—4 and then finished 7—5—4—6. He had four birdies in his round, but could not break 80. J. Monro Hunter, jr., who also had an 80, was playing indifferently with his wooden clubs, but was saved by nine one-putt greens. Charles N. Agnew was another contestant who found home-coming a hard road to travel, for with five holes to play he needed only to play them in par figures for a 78, and yet he finished with an 87.

Harvey Wins Place In Play-Off.

There were exactly sixteen cards in the rack with 81 and under when Thomas S. Pitt, Argyle announced that he was compelled to withdraw on account of business. This compelled a play-off between J. William Harvey, jr., Indian Spring; Jack Slattery, Georgetown University, and Lindsay Stott, Beaver Dam, each of whom had scored 82. Stott was eliminated on the first hole when he played his third shot out of the rough, and Harvey won from Slattery on the second hole, reaching the green in two strokes and holing out for a par 4, while Slattery failed to be home on his second shot. All the cards of 91 qualified in the fifth and last sixteen except one. Norman J. Hall, Bannockburn, was the one un-

Maryland Freshmen Beat Charlotte Hall

The Maryland freshman baseball team added its tenth win in as many starts this season when it overwhelmed Charlotte Hall, 23 to 1, yesterday at College Park.

After Charlotte Hall had scored its lone run in the first inning on a walk, passed ball and single, the freshmen tallied twice in their half of this frame and then went on to add eight more runs in the second, seven in the third, another in the fourth and their last five in the sixth. The game was called after Charlotte Hall had batted in the seventh.

Physioc, White and Ruble divided the mound task for the freshmen and all were highly effective. Meanwhile, the yearlings pounded two Charlotte Hall pitchers for 20 hits.

Nichols, with five hits out of five tries, one a double, led Maryland's attack.

The freshmen will end their season Saturday against the Navy Plebes at Annapolis.

CHARLES DARWIN did not contend that man descended from monkeys or apes. He contended that man and monkey both had a common ancestor. That is, if man's line of descent is traced far enough back, it will somewhere meet the stock from which our existing monkeys and apes descended.

Darwin was not the first to deal with this subject. Lamarck, Dr. Erasmus Darwin (grandfather of Charles Darwin), Geoffrey Saint-Hilaire and Goethe all practically held the same theories before Darwin. However, Darwin was the first to introduce the principle of natural selection, or survival of the fittest.

NATS FINISH WEST TRIP TODAY

Hadley Faces Chisox; Liska Nearly Fit for Box Duty.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHICAGO, May 20.—The Nats tomorrow complete their most successful Western trip in many, many moons, meeting the White Sox in the final game of a series reduced to two because of rain yesterday. Today's victory gives the Johnson's a record of eight victories in ten starts in this sector and they have won every series thus far and can get no worse than an even break in this one even if they lose tomorrow.

It will be up to Irving Hadley to add another triumph to the Washington record tomorrow while Skipper Donie Bush plans to pin his mound hopes on the broad shoulders of Alphonse (Tommy) Thomas.

Pitcher Ad Liska warmed up for quite a while before today's game with Manager Walter Johnson giving him the "once over" and then took a shift on the hill in the batting practice. From what he showed, it looks as though his arm is about normal again, as he cut loose with both speed and curves and declared after the session that there were no unfavorable after effects. "A little more work to give Ad strength in his arm and I believe he will be ready to start a game for us," said Johnson.

Lou Fonseca, traded to the Chisox by the Indians in exchange for Third Baseman Willie Kamm, is expected to show up here in time for tomorrow's game. A telegram was received from him today stating that he had been delayed at South Bend, Ind., due to the serious illness of his son.

With a southpaw facing the Nationals, Manager Johnson decided to make a wholesale shift in his batting order. Although Myer was ready, Hayes started, in view of the fact that he is a right-handed hitter, while Dave Harris replaced Sam Rice in right field for the same reason. Dave was given the clean-up position in the batting order, with Cronin and Manush moved up a peg. Bluege, because of his exceptional hitting of the last few games, went to the tee sixth in order, with Kuhel, out of action since the Cleveland series, hitting just ahead of the batterymen.

Tris Speaker, former National, is now a loud speaker at the home games of both the Chisox and Cubs. He has been engaged by one of the radio companies to give play-by-play descriptions of the contests.

Just before today's game Sam Rice received word of the death of an uncle, the result of a railroad accident at Valparaiso, Ind.

Berly, Star Giant Rookie Blanks Reds With 5 Hits

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—John Berly, the Giants' star recruit from Rochester, ran his string of consecutive scoreless innings up to 19 today as he blanked the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 0, in the second game of the series.

The young right-hander kept the visitors' five hits scattered over as many innings and was never in trouble.

The last run registered off Berly was a home run by Buzz Arlett of the Phillies on April 25.

GROVE HOLDS DETROIT TO 3 HITS

Macks Boost Winning Streak to 12 Behind Star Southpaw.

DETROIT, Mich., May 20 (A.P.).—Lefty Grove was as effecient today against the Detroit Tigers as George Earnshaw was yesterday and a 3-0 victory brought the Athletics' winning streak to an even dozen.

Grove allowed three scattered hits, one more than the Tigers got off Earnshaw, but Detroit never seriously threatened. His teammates meanwhile got nine off George Uhle, who also passed four batters. Home runs by Foxx in the fourth and Miller in the sixth accounted for two of the markers, while the other came in the third on three singles.

Hartnett Stars at Bat As Cubs Beat Braves

Boston, May 20 (A.P.).—The Cubs scored four runs in the first inning off Frankhouse and McAfee and defeated the Braves today, 7 to 5, in the second game of the series. Gabby Hartnett, Chicago catcher, hit a double, home run and two singles in his first four times at bat.

Frankhouse was greeted with a barrage of hits in the first inning and, retired in favor of Bill McAfee. The Cubs made 14 hits for a total of 24 bases. Bob Smith, Cubs twirler, allowed his old teammates 13 hits but was tight in the pinches.

Pirates 7-Run Lead Wiped Out by Phillies

Philadelphia, May 20 (A.P.).—Trailing 7-0 at the end of the fourth inning, the Phillies rallied in the closing innings to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates today, 11 to 7. A four run outburst off Willoughby in the eighth inning with the score tied was the final blow.

By their triumph the Phils moved in to displace the Pirates in sixth place. Buzz Arlett made his eighth and ninth home run of the season, the latter tying the count in the seventh inning.

Kremer started for the Pirates and was taken out of the box. The same fate befell Bolen who was the first Phils' hurler.

Shields received credit for the victory when he relieved Fallenstein in the sixth and held the Pirates to one hit for the rest of the game. Regan also hit a home run for the Pirates.

Trigg and Hermann Jolt Mitchell and Buchanan.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

WHEN the plink of racquets and the plunk of tennis balls subsided yesterday, as night sat down on the courts at Sixteenth and Reservoir, the tennis committee of the third City of Washington tournament gathered up the remains of three favorite who, an hour or so before, had ben odds-on choices to defeat the players who caused their downfall.

Three virtually positive bets, Bud Markey, Maurice O'Neill and the team of Dooly Mitchell and Bill Buchanan, are today members of the sideline brigade, as a result of yesterday's upset victories.

Frank Shore scored the major upset of the day by defeating Markey, seeded three notches ahead of hi, byt the scores 7—5, 2—6, 8—6, in a match that ran te gamut of thrills. Shore, abandoing all pretense of a drive from the back court, stormed the net throughout, coming in on viciously undercut balls which finally caused Markey's downfall.

Shore Evens Match.

The close ness of the struggle between the smooth driving former Notre Dame player and the young volleying dervish might be had from the fact that each won the same number of games—17. Markey stood at 5—3 in the final set, only to wilt as Shore, volleying with a desperation he has rarely shown in a pinch before, angled his shots acutely to even up the count at 5—5.

Markey went ahead again, to lead at 6—3, but once more Shore took the bit in his teeth to volley his way out of danger and into the match. It was Shore's best performance in a senior tournament in the District. He next meets Ton Mangan, who entered the semifinals Tuesday by defeating Dean Judd. This and other men's semifinal rounds will be played Friday.

Dooly Mitchell and Bill Buchanan, seeded No. 2 in the doubles draw, were defeated in straight sets by the veteran combination of Hugh Trigg and Gne Hermann, 6—4, 6—4, in a match which was the replaying of the impasse of the day before, when the two teams fought to 2-2 in the third when darkness called a halt.

Mitchell and Buchanan were sadly erratic to start with and became more so under the salvo of lobs their soft-stroking opponents sent up. The winners played heady games throughout, taking advantage of the impatience of the Montrose team, and deserved to win.

Elliott Gains Favor.

Bob Elliott's "Dark Horse" nickname took on an extra shade of blackness, so to speak, when he routed the veteran Maurice O'Neill in straight sets, 6—2, 6—1, in a match which came as a surprise to many because of O'Neill's victory over the former Baltimorean last summer. Elliott went out after the big, easy-going Celt from the start, and O'Neill, surprisingly enough, seemed to do little about it. Elliott's volleying was crisp, while his serve kept O'Neill constantly on the defensive.

Contrasted with spectacular play which developed in men's singles and doubles, the women's doubles and that strange hybrid of tennis, the mixed doubles, maintained an even tenor as play advanced a round. Today will be given over to the clearing up of the straggling doubles matches in both divisions.

MEN'S SINGLES.

Quarter-final round—Mitchell defeated Garnett, 6—0, 6—4; Shore defeated Markey, 7—5, 2—6, 8—6; Elliott defeated O'Neill, 6—2, 6—1.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

Second round—Trigg and Hermann defeated Mitchell and Buchanan, 6—4, 6—4. Third round—Mangan and Markey defeated Shoemaker and Haney, 6—4, 6—3.

WOMEN'S DOUBLES.

Tabler and Tabler defeated Miller and Yost, 6—0, 6—3; Stone and Newbold defeated King and Keyser, 7—5, 6—4; Kingsbury and Raver defeated Wagner and Beale, 6—2, 6—4.

MIXED DOUBLES.

Frazier and Hills defeated Butler and Mitchell, 6—2, 6—1; Martinez and Sendel defeated Bender and Griesener, 6—4, 6—0; Tabler and Decker defeated Newbold and Noell, 6—1, 5—7, 7—5; Walker and Garnett defeated Graham and Rutley, 6—3, 7—5. Stone and Maffitt defeated Ryan and Ritzenberg, 7—5, 8—6.

Racing Bills Defeated By N. Carolina Solons

Raleigh, N. C., May 20 (U.P.).—Like a dog toys with a rat before he delivers the last fatal blow, so the North Carolina Senate plays with pari-mutuel race betting bills.

The Senate today killed the McLean bill to provide for a racing commission to supervise pari-mutuel betting at race tracks in Polk County, small, sparsely settled county in the mountainous western district.

Yesterday the Senate passed the bill, but today recalled it from the House and tabled it by a 28-8 vote. Recently like treatment was accorded a similar bill for Buncombe County of which Asheville is the county seat.

The Mount Rainier Seniors will drill tomorrow at 5 p. m on their home grounds in preparation for Sunday's contest with the Franc Jewelry Co., in the Capital City League. All players are requested to report promptly.

—Churchill Downs Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Ky., May 20. Owing to the muddy track condition, only four entries were received in the Henry Clay Purse, an overnight allowance affair, which features the program today. This event, a test over the mile course, brings together an evenly matched set of 3-year-olds and upward to contest the $1,500 purse.

The Dipping Springs, another allowance number, and supporting the main attraction, will have fourteen starters in the 6-furlong sprint. This event carries a purse of $1,300 and is fashioned for 3-year-olds exclusively.

In the select of the feature, fifth event on the card, PLAY TIME, from the Southland Stable and a recent winner over a muddy track, is well suited by the conditions and figures to show the way to his three rivals. THISTLE FYRN, owned by G. Collins, raced consistently in Maryland and is favored for the place award. GALAHAD and KADIAK, coupled as the Watson-Reuter entry, will complete the field.

TOWN LIMIT, in the J. W. Parrish string, is preferred in the secondary feature. This colt appeared short in his last start ano should improve off that effort to gain the major award. CHENE, unsteady Whitneyite, favors the track condition and should force the pace. MARTHA JONES bolted in her previous outing, but with better handling may menace the leaders.

FIRST RACE—The usual list of twenty entries was received in the 5-furlong dash of the opening number. Two-year-old maiden fillies will contest the issue, with SPANISH FLIRT, from the F. Letellier barn, selected to graduate from this contingent of nonwinners. PREFER, owned by H P. Headley, has worked well and is given the place call. ROSA W. showed a sparkling effort to finish second behind Maligned and on that effort may prove troublesome.

SECOND RACE—Another group of twenty platers will start in seven furlongs of the second number. PERCENTAGE has been freshened up and should score at first asking. PERKINS has not raced recently, but a six furlongs spin in 1:16 3-5 as a final conditioner attest to his fitness. MUCKER has shown a liking for muddy going and is selected for the show.

THIRD RACE—A balanced field of twelve juveniles will face the barrier in the five furlongs dash of the third heat. I SAY, from the A. Sabath barn, should improve off her last effort in which she finished second to Butter Beans. PRINCESS A. A. surprised in her last victory but the daughter of John P. Grier is bred for mud and should extend the top one. E. M. May's gelding, MENDELL, appears best of the others for the show.

SIXTH RACE—Eight routers will be dispatched over the mile and a quarter distance. TRENTONION has displayed a fondness for a route and should annex the purse from this field. AIMEE GOLDSMITH is fancied for the place. The Canale filly may falter in the heavy going but should last to save the second award. WHISK ARROW, from the G. V. Barnes' string, is capable of extending the top ones.

SEVENTH RACE—In the final event of the card another list of eight 4-year-olds and upward will be sent over the mile and a quarter route. LIONHEARTED was blocked last start but finished second after much interference. With better racing luck the Conway color-bearer figures to get down in front. BUFFER closed fast to gain the show last out at a mile and a sixteenth and at the added distance is favored for the place. JAMES M. has turned in some fair efforts in mud and should save the show award.

VAN RYN AND LOTT ARE PRESSED

French Youths Extend American Pair in Doubles Play.

AUTEUIL, France, May 20 (A.P.).—Paced by George Lott and Johnny Van Ryn, doubles favorites, all except two of the Americans mustered for the French hard courts tennis championships advanced today, some of them as far as the quarter final rounds.

The American Davis Cup doubles team ran into unforeseen trouble in defeating Georges Glasser and Antoine Gentien, two of the younger Frenchmen, but managed to survive a third set uprising and win, 6—1, 6—3, 11—13, 6—3. Van Ryn was off his game and the Frenchmen broke through his service repeatedly to keep the Americans on the defensive. After failing twice to score the set and match point in the third set, Van Ryn rallied and the Americans sailed through the final set to victory.

Both Lott and Van Ryn wore sweaters during the play because of the cold, but they started out as if to make the match a ten-minute affair. Both became quite irritated in the third set when the Frenchmen forced them into many errors and took great delight from the achievement. Lott and Van Ryn were bothered until the final set by Glasser's fast service.

Split Shirt Makes Appearance.

Senorita De Alvarez, of Spain, donated the play today, but with new style split skirt—which the experts hesitate to call "shorts"—rather than her racquet. The Spanish girl drew the largest crowd of the session an dthe gathering seemed as deeply interested in the split skirt, half hidden by a tunic, as it did in her tennis play. Teamed with Mme. Rene Mathieu, Senorita De Alvarez advanced to the semifinal round of the women's doubles by defeating Mme. Contosavos Nicolopoulps and Mme. Vlasto Serpieri, 6—1, 3—6, 6—4.

While Lott and Van Ryn meet G. Collins and John S. Olliff, British pair, in the men's doubles quarter-finals tomorrow, the real tests of strength will come in the mixed doubles. Helen Jacobs, California girl and George Lott will meet Mme. Rene Mathieu and M. Lesueur, and the winner goes into the semifinals against tomorrow's victor in the match between Elizabeth Ryan and Jean Borotra, Anglo-French pair, and Miss Betty Nuthall and P. D. B. Spence.

Proteus Wins Feature At Churchill Downs

Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky., May 20 (A.P.).—A. Pelleteri's Proteus, champion 2-year-old of the New Orleans winter season, picked up top weight of 125 pounds to defeat twelve of the best juveniles of the West in the thirtieth running of the Bashford Manor Stakes here this afternoon. At the finish of the 5-furlong dash the bay son of Finite had a neck margin over the Threes Stock Farm's Liberty Limited, which in turn beat Van Meter & Caruthers' Tellico a half-length for the place. Jess Howard's Heavy Sugar finished fourth to save his stake.

The race was marred by a long post delay, for which W. F. Kebelkamp's Delivered was responsible. In all Delivered held up the start 24 minutes. On five occasions he ran away and at one time was galloping wildly through a pasture adjoining the track. His future entry was ordered refused by the stewards.

G. U. PREP-SWAVELY TIE.

Georgetown Prep and Swavely fought to a 3-3 tie on the golf course surrounding the Garrett Park School yesterday afternoon. Although the contest developed into an impasse, it was the best brand of golf the locals had displayed this year.

White (S.) defeated Fanjul, 3 and 2; Anderson (S.) defeated Dumler, 1 up; Swavely, best ball, 6 and 5; Nyhoff (G.) defeated Baker, 1 up; Finn (G.) defeated Collier, 8 and 7; Georgetown Prep, best ball, 6 and 5.

NAVY SEEKS SERIES WITH D. C. SCHOOL CHAMPIONS

Yearly Frays For Plebes Sought

Sports Chief Seeks to Book Best Teams in Baseball, Track.

Approval by Capital School Heads Seen; Plan Is Praised.

THE United States Naval Academy Plebe track and baseball teams would meet the winners of the track and baseball championship of the local public high schools on the last Saturday in May hereafter, Lieut. Comdr. Fred C. Reinecke, director of athletics at the Annapolis institution, informed The Post last night. Commander Reinecke today will ask the board of his school faculty advisers to render an opinion on the contention that it is the Navy's wish that the plebe athletic.

Lieutenant Commander Reinecke explained that it is the Navy's wish that the date be a set one and that both track and diamond events would be held on the same afternoon.

The proposed action, which found favorable impression among several members of the faculty board in an unofficial poll last night, will lead to the rearrangement of the Plebes' schedule in so far as local schools are concerned. The one date, the last Saturday in May, will be left open for the reception of the local champions, and present plans indicate that will be the lone spot the local schools will hold on the Plebes' spring athletic calendars.

In expectation of completing arrangements with Washington school heads, Commander Reinecke stated that he has already set aside the last Saturday in May, 1932, and that the academy is prepared to make the date a yearly fixation on the athletic schedule. He explained that it was the Navy's wish that both track meet and baseball game be run off at the same time.

Eastern and Plebes In Meet.

Eastern is slated to engage in a dual track meet with the Plebes Saturday, and, if local faculty advisers concur in the request of the Navy, it promises to be the last of its kind. Tech High met the Pleve diamond team last Saturday.

"This move of the Naval Academy should act as a tremendous incentive to local high school track and baseball players," John Paul Collins, assistant principal of Eastern and a prominent member of the faculty advisory board said last night. "Not only will there be the honor of winning a local championship, but the winning track and baseball teams will have a real extra-added attraction, for a trip to Annapolis, with all its auxiliaries, is a prize worth working for."

Washington-Lee Beats Fredericksburg, 5 to 4

Special to The Washington Post.

Ballston, Va., May 20.—Washington-Lee High School Nine added one more victim to its already long string for diamond conquests this year here today when Fredericksburg High was defeated 5 to 4 in one of the best games played here this year.

A four run skirmish in the third inning gave the Little Generals the game, subsequent scoring proved. In the third, Mortimer, batting hero of the game, singled, followed by Seymour's double and Rosenberger's safety. Abrace of walks aided Washington-Lee measurably in this inning.

Fredericksburg hopped into a two-run lead in the first inning, and threatened seriously in the eighth when two more runs were scored, but the late rally was nipped when Rosenberger's perfect thrown in from center field nipped the last man.

Robins Nose Out Cards On Herman's Single, 5-4

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 20 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Robins narrowed the St. Louis Cardinals' lead over the National League field to four percentage points when they rallied in the last of the ninth to defeat the Red Birds, 5 to 4, today.

Babe Herman's single off Bill Hallahan drove in Fresco Thompson with the winning run after the visitors had rallied to score twice in the seventh and ninth rounds to tie the score. The Robins had taken an early lead off Sylvester Johnson, partially through a wild heave by Jim Bottomley that let in two runs. Luque protected his lead well until the ninth, when he was replaced by Heimach.

Manager Gabby Street and Coach Wares, of the Cards, were banished in the early stages and Burleigh Grimes later was chased from the visitors' bench.

In the junior division the points were divided among nine schools in the following order: Wheatley, 35½; Maury, 32; Pierce, 24; Kingsman, 20; Madison, 7; Webb, 5½; Blow, 1; Edmonds, 1; Kenilworth, 1.

Brown School Easy Winner.

At Georgetown the division of senior points were: E. V. Brown, 96; Murch, 35; Tenley, 19; Fillmore, 12; Grant, 7. Juniors—E. V. Brown, 55; Murch, 27; Tenley, 18; Fillmore, 12. It was first planned to hold the city finals next Saturday, but Mrs. Susie Root Rhodes, supervisor of playgrounds, stated last night that the championship games will be held on June 6, the scene of the tournament to be announced later.

Yesterday's meets completed the annual spring division matches and Mrs. Rhodes announced that the new idea of holding the meets on division grounds instead of conducting all at Plaza, as in past years, had increased the number of competitors 30 per cent. About 2,000 boys took part in the preliminaries and nearly 700 will vie for city honors in the finals June 6.

Army Medicos Bow To Quantico Marines

The Quantico Marines Post Team slugged its way to a 15-4 decision over the Army Medicos on the latter's diamond yesterday. Ed Gorman led the Marine assault on Lewis, Medicos' hurler. For the second time within a week, Locke, second sacker for the Devil Dogs, clouted a home run with mates on base and was called out for his failure to touch third base.

NAVY'S NINE TRIUMPHS, 16 TO 10

Stars of Gettysburg Mound Staff Are Given Rout.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 20.—Neither Haas or Cowell, much-touted twirlers of Gettysburg College, was able to deliver the goods today and as a result the Annapolis Midshipmen pounded out a victory over the Battlefield boys by a count of 16 to 10. Free hitting by both teams relieved an otherwise monotonous contest.

Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Nationals, was among those drawn to Annapolis to see Haas, a southpaw, and ace of the Gettysburg mound staff, in action. If the collegian had an off day is a question, but certain it is his record was lamentably poor. The Middies found him for seven bingles in the second session to send five runs across the rubber.

Loses Control in Fourth.

In the fourth, he seemed to lose control, passing one batsman, hitting another and when Coombs connected for a circuit blow, he gave way to Cowell, a right hander. Cowell was touched for a homer, a triple and a single in the 3 2-3 innings that he toiled and he had little control, passing six men and forced one run home.

The Tars had nothing on the visitors in the hitting line, each team being credited with 14 safe blows, but the locals bunched theirs with greater effectiveness and also profited by Gettysburg's sluggish play in the field.

Navy Netmen Beat Maryland U., 8 to 1

Annapolis, Md., May 20.—Tennis players of the University of Maryland proved soft for the Annapolis Midshipmen today, the latter winning victory, 8 to 1. All of the matches were decided in two sets. After making a clean sweep of the six strings of singles, the Middies used substitutes in the doubles, and carried two of the three matches. Briddell and Wilke eked out a win after a hard match with Bowers and Sampson.

The Navy Plebes and Gilman School of Baltimore played to a draw, each winning three singles and one of the doubles, gathering darkness preventing the third doubles match from being completed.

VARSITY.

Columbus U. Boxers In Elimination Bouts

Coach Harry Allen's Columbus University leather pushers will stage a series of elimination bouts next Tuesday night at 9 o'clock in the Knights of Columbus Hall, to determine the personnel of next year's boxing team. The members of the team have been training industriously for the trials and hard-fought matches are anticipated.

Columbus did not officially sponsor a team in this branch of sport last season. Under Allen's careful surveillance, however, the mittmen have developed into clever and aggressive boxers, and will engage in matches next season with other colleges.

U. S. and Canada Net Teams to Clash Today

Montreal, May 20 (AP.).—The United States and Canada will open their Davis Cup battle for the final honors in the North American zone tomorrow with two young New Yorkers opposing a veteran pair of Canadian players in the opening singles matches.

True to the predictions based on half a week of practice matches here, Bernon S. Prentice, nonplaying captain of the United States Team, selected Frank X. Shields and Sydney B. Wood, jr., while Alan C. Dunlop, who holds the same position on the Canadian Team, chose Dr. Jack A. Wright, of Toronto, and Marcel Rainville, of Montreal. The draw for tomorrow's two matches sends Shields against Canada's No. 1 player, Dr. Wright, and Wood against Rainville.

The matches will continue through Friday and Saturday, the winner of the best three out of five winning the right to meet Argentina, South American zone victor, in the American final.

STOCKS LOSS SLIGHT IN SPOTTY MARKET

Rails and Steel Are Firm After Early Rally; Net Gains Small.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—The Stock Market was spotted with weak issues today, but firmness of the rail and steel shares put some less sombre touches into the picture. Commodities were firm.

Shares opened with a rally that gave promise of an impressive technical recovery, but wearied when signs of special weakness began to appear. Rails marched up 1 to 4 points in the morning advance and although they sagged later the group closed higher, in contrast to the utilities and industrials. The market's average loss, according to the composite, was less than a point in a 2,300,000 share turnover.

Heavy selling of American Telephone proved unsettling during the later hours, especially since that issue had rallied a couple of points earlier in the day. On the break it dropped 5¾ to 164¼, the lowest since 1927, closing 2½ above the bottom for a net loss of 3¼. Directors declared the regular dividend of $2.25. Brokerage house observers attributed the decline to short selling and to liquidation by timid investors. The company's installations showed a larger gain in April than in March and interests close to the management said current earnings were satisfactory.

Other Spongy Issues.

Other spongy issues included Continental and American Can, Coca Cola, American Water Works, Fox Film, Hershey Chocolate, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak and American Ice. General Motors was heavy after the weekly steel reviews had reported a falling off in the demand for automotive materials. Continental Can weakened on the publication of reports that first quarter gross had dropped 20 per cent, although the president said current indications were that the year's results would vary little from 1930. General Electric sympathized with the heaviness of Westinghouse.

Net gains in the rails were small, but the group rallied from its lows of the day when Southern Pacific's directors voted the regular dividend. That issue was up 1½ net. Pennsylvania, which opened at 48, closed at 45, a fractional gain.

It was easy for the bears to find unfavorable news in the batch of midweek statistics. Iron Age estimated steel ingot production at 45 per cent of capacity, a loss of 2 points, and said the construction industry at present offered the most promising outlet. The reviews seemed to feel the seasonal demand for automotive steel had reached its peak.

Earnings Change Not Expected.

The railroads are not anticipating much change in earnings or loadings until the crops start to market. President Storey, of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, indicated that the road's dividend policy hinged on the turn of affairs later in the year, pointing out that the system's big months were from July to November.

Proration in the oil fields especially east Texas, is bearing some fruit, although the price situation remains unfavorable. In that connection, Chairman Sinclair, of Sinclair Consolidate, expressed a belief that the bottom was very near.

Electric power production improved in the past week, as compared with the immediately preceding period, but was 3.3 per cent under a year ago.

Wheat quotations rose fractionally on forecasts of cold weather in Kansas, unfavorable crop reports from Nebraska and absence of moisture in Canada. Corn closed slightly lower, but cotton had a late rally which carried futures up 85 cents to $1.05 a bale.

Foreign currencies were about steady. Sterling cables sagged nominally from yesterday's 1931 high. Shanghai was firm with the narrow recovery in silver.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, May 20 (A.P.).—Active buying with sellers scarce, accompanied upturns in wheat prices today. The market was nervous over unconfirmed rumors of a revolution in Russia and because of predicted frost tonight in Kansas and Nebraska. Crop damage from freezing temperatures in Canada was also a bullish factor and there were advices of crop deterioration in southwestern Kansas owing to lack of moisture.

Wheat closed irregular, ¼ cent off to ⅝ cents up; corn at ¼ decline to ½ advance; oats a shade to ⅝ higher, and provisions varying from 2 cents setback to 7 cents gain.

Wheat closed at the highest prices of the day during the early dealings, an advantage to the bear side resulted from temporary complete absence of any reports of actual damage by frost last night, and because current advices indicated some drought relief in Canada. Subsequently, however, wheat rallied strongly after forecasts were out pointing to freezing temperatures both in winter and spring wheat territory tonight.

Word of disturbed political conditions in Russia did much to accelerate wheat price upturns later, although inquiries developed no basis for rumors that a revolution had begun. Contributing to late advances in wheat were Winnipeg reports that some crop damage had been done by low temperatures in the Canadian prairie provinces. Assertions were also given attention that a serious deficiency of rainfall in Canada was yet to be made up. The total moisture supply for April and May being but little more than half an inch, compared to a normal of 2½ to 3 inches.

Complaints that owing to cold, wet weather the average planting date for corn this season would be no earlier than usual tended to rally the corn market. Spread trading, however, in which corn was sold and wheat bought had an unsettling influence on corn. Oats were under relatively little selling pressure.

Provisions, reflected firmness of hog values.

DEMAND FOR BONDS WIDENS IN MARKET

Strength in Gilt-Edge Issues Is Extended to Other Loans as Prices Rise.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Although cross currents continued in the bond market today, there were indications that the strength which has been concentrated recently in the ultra gilt-edge issues was inclined to spread.

United States Treasury and Liberty loans again showed the most consistent strength, closing generally higher after moderate sales. Most of this group sold either at new high levels for this year or for all time.

Evidence of the extension of the demand for high-grade issues to corporate obligations appeared in new high prices for 1931 or the duplication of old peak levels in such bonds as American Telephone 5s of 1960 and of 1965, Union Pacific first 4s of 1947, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy general 4s, Duquesne Light 4½s, Louisville Gas & Electric 5s, Public Service Electric & Gas 4s of 1971 and Norfolk & Western 4s of 1944. Much of the buying in this group came from banks in this and other American cities.

However, the lack of public preference for many bonds of speculative rating was no less apparent. Net losses of 1 point or more were common among issues of Antioquia, Argentina, Germany, Chile, Brazil, Sao Paulo, Peru, Uruguay and Rio Grande do Sul.

Losses among second-grade domestic corporate bonds were not so severe, but the price movement reflected considerable uncertainty and was irregularly lower.

Halsey, Stuart & Co. and a syndicate will offer shortly $8,000,000 of 6½ per cent first lien and collateral gold bonds of the Dominion Gas & Electric Co. The same banking firm is offering $5,000,000 of Metropolitan Edison Co. first mortgage 4 per cent gold bonds due in 1971 at 95 and interest.

Trio's Killing Laid To Mountain Man

Admits Shooting Woman, Two Sons After Firing Illinois House.

Mattoon, Ill., May 20 (A.P.).—Merle Johnson, 25-year-old Missouri mountaineer, today confessed to killing Mrs. Carrie Bowers, 38, and her two small sons on a side road near Mattoon, after firing the house in which they lived.

"I killed them," he said. "She asked me to. It was the most coldblooded thing I have ever known." Then, police said, he gave a full confession, shot through with discrepancies. He said he fired the house shortly before midnight, carrying the two children, 2 and 5 years old, from the blazing building, putting them in a car with Mrs. Bowers and driving outside town. There he shot Mrs. Bowers, then shot, strangled and clubbed the two children.

It was learned that Johnson had come to Mattoon with Mrs. Bowers from Stuttgart, Ark. He was employed by her on a rice plantation near there—his first "steady" job since he came down from the Ozark hills near Hornersville, Mo.

For a time they operated a filling station, but recently had been engaged in some mysterious occupation which kept them up at all hours of the night.

"Jake the Barber" Held at Chicago

Alleged Swindler Gives Up on Charges Made by England.

Chicago, May 20 (A.P.).—John (Jake the Barber) Factor quietly surrendered to Federal authorities today to face and fight the charge that he swindled Britons of huge sums of money in a stock selling scheme.

Factor appeared flanked by four attorneys, and won an immediate hearing. He denied all charges of fraud laid to him by English officials.

The international promoter served notice he would resist any attempt to extradite him. His attorneys argued for hours attempting to obtain his freedom on bail, but the upshot was a continuance of the hearing until Monday, and "Jake the Barber" was remanded to the custody of two deputy marshals.

Use of Lie Detector Is Opposed by Court

Valparaiso, Ind., May 20 (A.P.).—Judge Grant Crumpacker today ruled against use of a lie detector in the trial of Virgil Kirkland, Gary athlete, for murder because of the death of Arlene Draves at a party last November.

Judge Crumpacker, in ruling against the defense's proposal for such a test, said he did not want to exclude the device arbitrarily, but until the machine was recognized and adopted by scientific bodies he would not permit its use. "Such a step would subject me to ridicule and probably result in a mistrial," he declared.

CITY LABOR AVOIDS SPLIT IN ELECTION

Capital Delegates Support Maryland's Choice for Federation Chief.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 20.—Just when a permanent split in the Maryland State and District of Columbia Federation of Labor seemed inevitable, Washington delegates to the convention here withdrew their opposition to Henry F. Broening, and at the fina session today made his election to the presidency unanimous.

Mr. Boening, president of the Baltimore Federation of Labor, had been named for president of the larger organization by a caucus of Maryland delegates, but when his name was reported out to the general meeting for confirmation a soalition of western Maryland and District of Columbia delegates brought about his rejection.

The Maryland delegates again caucused, only to return Mr. Broening's name after a prolonged conference behind closed doors. In the face of this determination and in answer to pleas for harmony in the interest of a unified State and District of Columbia labor organization, the Washington delegates held a caucus from which they emerged with a motion to make Mr. Broening's election unanimous. Mr. Broening twice before had headed the federation, serving as its president in 1924 and 1925.

The federation promptly confirmed the other caucus nominations on the first ballot. Robert E. Kimble, of Cumberland, was elected treasurer. Frank J. Coleman, of Washington, was reelected secretary. Vice presidents elected were Miss Anna Neary and Charles Ernest, of Baltimore; Newton A. James and R. A. Dickson, of Washington; J. J. Brehany, of Cumberland, and John G. Geist, of Hagerstown.

The convention selected Cumberland as its 1932 meeting place. The session concluded with a banquet at the Emerson Hotel tonight.

Curb Review

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Price trends were mixed in today's curb market, and changes in the bulk of issues were narrow, but on the whole, the market displayed the best resistance to selling pressure so far this week.

The market was fairly active, transfers approximating 400,000 shares, as reduced from yesterday's turnover of about 500,000. Utilities were steady to firm, and oils moved narrowly. Some of the high-priced specialties broke to new lows.

In the utilities, Electric Bond & Share, American Gas & Electric and American Superpower closed slightly higher. Brazilian Traction & Hydro-Electric securities gained a point. United Light "A," however, sagged a fraction to a new low.

Oils eased only in spots. Cities Service sagged a fraction to a new low at 12½, and Gulf declined nearly a point. Standard of Indiana, however, finished ⅛ higher and Vacuum gained ⅛. Mining issues were largely neglected, although Mohawk appeared at 15, off 4¾ points.

In the high prices industrials and specialties, Aluminum Co. dropped 4 to a new low at 127, and in a few odd lot deals, Singer Manufacturing got down to 250, off 5. Great Atlantic & Pacific declined 5, then recovered 3. Parker Rust-Proof, however, gained a couple of points.

American Brown Boveri rallied 2 points to 6½, and City Machine and Starrett Corporation were among lower priced issues gaining a point or so. Ford of Canada "A" sank a fraction to 18, the year's low.

In the investment trusts, United Founders sagged a fraction to 5⅛ and American Founders touched 3, both new lows.

Sinclair Says Prices Of Oil Are Near Bottom

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—H. F. Sinclair, chairman of Sinclair Consolidated Oil Co., said at the annual meeting today that he believed oil prices are getting very close to bottom.

Consumption of gasoline has increased slightly this year over 1930, but the industry as a whole is "not making any money," he said. Regarding proration, Mr. Sinclair said the industry has had proration two years "and while the production has been prorated, the price has also been prorated so that I do not think we have accomplished very much by that system."

Cities Service Income Is $4,538,634 Less

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Cities Service Co. reported today net earnings applicable to common stock and reserves for the year ended April 30 amounted to $32,433,115, compared with $36,971,739 for the previous twelve months' period.

On a per share basis the earnings were equivalent to $1.05 a share on the average number of shares of common outstanding, compared with $1.36 on the showing made in the previous twelve months' period.

"MISSAL" ASSAILED AT CHURCH PARLEY

Bishop St. George Denounces Publication at Virginia Diocese Council.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 20.—Addressing the 136th annual council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Diocese of Virginia, today, Bishop Henry St. George condemned in no uncertain terms "The American Missal," published in Milwaukee by the Living Church Publishing Co.

While it gives the words of the Communion service, he said, the publication adds to that service in a way that has never been authorized by the church and contains introits, prayers and references to masses which are not found in the Book of Common Prayer. "The American Missal is not authorized by the general convention of this church, and it is illegal to place it upon the holy tables in this diocese or to use it in the services of the church," he said.

Bishop Tucker also condemned the new proposed canon on marriage and divorce which provides, among other things, that the marriage of divorced persons may be recognized if performed outside of Episcopal Church.

Discussing the work of the diocese in the past year, the bishop stated that while there had been a great falling off in the amount of money promised, more people had been confirmed than in any other year since he had come into the diocese.

Tribute was paid three clergymen who died during the year—Josiah Richard Ellis, Amherst; Edgar Carpenter, Alexandria, and Dr. William H. Burkhart, Richmond.

Dr. G. MacLaren Brydon, of Richmond, was elected secretary, and the Rev. Lewis Carter Harrison, of Brookhill, as his assistant.

The afternoon session was devoted to a discussion of the proposed budget for 1932, calling for an expenditure of $182,900. The budget was adopted, 90 to 37.

Council members attended the presentation of a memorial tablet in the Virginia Mason Memorial Church, Fifeville. Brief addresses were made by two former rectors of St. Paul's, Dr. Beverly D. Tucker, jr., of St. Paul's, Richmond, and Dr. Noble C. Powell, of Emmanuel Church, Baltimore.

The council tonight heard a sermon by Dr. Wallace E. Rollins, recently elected dean of the theological seminary at Alexandria. He urged council members to accept the hardships and difficulties growing out of the present economic setback as a challenge to heroism.

Robertson, of Baltimore, treasurer general; Richard Hartshorne, Newark, N. J., chancellor general; the Rev. J. R. Danforth, New London, Conn., chaplain general; Dr. H. R. Monument to Pastor Unveiled by Baptists

Special to The Washington Post.

Berryville, Va., May 20.—Five hundred Baptists from various points in the State as far south as Danville gathered here today to unveil a monument to the Rev. James Ireland, who from 1788 to 1806 was pastor of the Buckmarsh Church, the mother of the present Baptist Church in Berryville, in the yard of which the monument has been erected.

Miss Florence Broaddus, whose father, the late Rev. Julius Broaddus, was first to awaken the interest of the Baptists toward erecting such a memorial, and Miss Kate Winfrey, of Culpeper, drew the veil.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

NO MORE YACHT SHELLING.

PRIVATE yacht owners and their guests should suffer less from shell shock this summer. A Federal judge has ruled that the playful Government custom of chasing pleasure craft on suspicion of rumrunning is illegal.

* * * *

Shelling a yacht merely because some first-class gunner doesn't like the skipper's face will hereafter be bad business.

* * * *

The decision has been handed down in the case of Mr. Stuyvesant Fish who sued the Government to determine whether a private citizen out for a summer afternoon's cruise on his own boat had any rights other than those given any naval target.

* * * *

Mr. and Mrs. Fish were lolling along in their yacht Restless, thinking that all was right with the world, when shells began dropping around the wicker furniture. They were still wondering who had renewed unrestricted warfare when a rumchaser came alongside. The crew boarded the Fish yacht in pirate fashion and in the search for liquor left it looking like Scow No. 8.

* * * *

Mr. Fish sued. Judge Knox in his ruling just announced, declares the agents have no right to shell, board or search a private yacht merely for an emotional workout, but must have specific information that the ship is carrying contraband.

* * * *

THIS is going to cramp the Coast Guard and Customs Service style no little. For the past several years it has been the custom to go out during the yachting season and shoot up a yacht a day just to see the skipper and his friends jump.

* * * *

When a yacht owner took his craft out for a Sunday afternoon cruise on the blue waters he never knew whether it was to be a pleasure trip or a restaging of the Monitor and Merrimac battle.

* * * *

It was an open question whether the proper yachting headgear was a linen cap or an iron helmet.

Yachting loses most of its joys when the owner has the cocktail shaker shot out of his hands by persons unknown, and when any guest is in constant danger of having part of his white flannel trousers carried away by a blast of shrapnel.

* * * *

Last summer many yachtsmen sold their boats and spent the season in Nicaragua, where they could get just as much shooting for far less money.

* * * *

The Government now talks of appealing from Judge Knox's decision. Evidently Uncle Sam is determined to fight for the right to shoot a yacht owner on sight.

QUICK, WATSON, THE SMELLING SALTS!

SPEAKING of the stock market, can you imagine the embarrassment of the U. S. Steel executives when they think of their action a few weeks ago in offering employes the right to buy the common on terms of $140 a share?

National Biscuit is one of the conspicuously weak stock issues, possibly on the prospect that people, having been forced to fire their maids, will give up eating crackers rather than go to the trouble of sweeping up the crumbs themselves.

"John J. Raskob in audience with Pope."—headline. You may fire when you are ready, Heflin!

Douglas Fairbanks was a contestant, or nearly so, in the British amateur golf tournament. This goes to show what moving picture glorification will do to a man's sense of proportion.

GLOVES ONLY CLEW IN INTRUDER HUNT

Arlington Police Seek Man Frightened Away by Girl's Screams.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Combing the county, Sheriff Howard B. Fields and his entire police force are searching for a man who early yesterday morning entered the bedroom of Lorraine Hack, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. S. Hack, at their home, 26 Beech street, Clarendon.

The child was awakened about 2:30 yesterday morning to find a man bending over her, holding a can of ether to her nose.

Hearing the screams of the child and the barking of a small house dog, Mr. Hack rushed into the room as the man leaped through a window and escaped.

While the police have no description of the man, some clues have been uncovered which may help identify him.

The girl said she was awakened by the smell of ether. Recognizing the form of a man bending over her, she screamed for her father, asleep in the next room. As she screamed, she said, the intruder went to a radiator under the window, where he sat down, apparently waiting to see if her cries had been heard. As Mr. Hack entered the room, the man leaped from the window.

Mrs. Hack, hearing the screams, ran to the telephone and called the county jail. Deputy Sheriff Harry L. Woodward answering the call, immediately sent Officers Hugh Jones and A. D. Langley to the home, where they were joined by Officers James Scott and Vernon Wilt. Members of the Clarendon Fire Department, sleeping in the fire house a short distance away, aided in the search made by the officers for the man.

The police found a small can of ether on the bed. Beneath the window was a bench, taken from a porch a few doors away, which was used by the man to gain entrance to the window. A man's glove also was found on the bench, and its mate a short distance from the house.

Police believe the man attempted to escape by automobile, as two cars were stolen in the neighborhood during the night. One of the cars is said to have been stolen from the home of Miss Evelyn Burleigh, 56 Chestnut street, and the other from R. A. Warner, on Pershing drive.

With but two weeks remaining in which persons may qualify to enter the Democratic primary August 4, when nominees for the State Senate and House of Delegates will be chosen, indications are, it was revealed last night, that there will be but two candidates in the race for senator, Col. Charles T. Jesse, from Arlington County, a former member of the House of Delegates, and John Rust, of Fairfax.

Although up to last night no candidate had announced for the House of Delegates, it is expected that Hugh Reid, incumbent, will come out for reelection and will be unopposed at the primary.

County Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green announced last night that he or his deputies will be in the drug store at Lyon Park, tomorrow night to assist taxpayers in making their returns. Mr. Green explained that all persons over 21 years of age must make a return either in person or by agent. Persons failing to get their tax returns in the hands of the Commissioner before June 2, face a penalty.

The executive committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation will meet tonight at the home of Grover E. Payne, School street, in Ballston. William D. Medley, chairman of the legislative committee, and Monroe H. Stockett, chairman of the roads and streets committee, will attend the meeting.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Arlington County Bicentennial Council will be held tomorrow night in the offices of the Brumback Realty Co., Wilson boulevard, Clarendon.

Recommendations for work of the council will be made and will be reported to the main body at a meeting Monday evening in the Lyon Park Community House.

There are 23 organizations affiliated with the council, and at the Monday meeting it is expected a definite program and methods of procedure will be laid down.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will meet today at 12 o'clock at Windsor Arms, Glebe road.

Virginia Mitchell Simmerman, of Country Club Hills, Arlington County, well-known soloist, will sing over Station WMAL, featuring the Washington Art Gallery program, Monday evening, at 10:15 o'clock.

Ernest Brooks has been elected president of the Arlington Union of the Epworth League. Other officers are Freddie Taylor, vice president; Mrs. G. Kelly, secretary; Mrs. Ruth Beall, recording secretayr, and Mrs. William H. Loveless, treasurer.

Meeting last night in the Henry Clay School, in Lyon Park, the Arlington County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations voted to make its objective for the year a standardization of Parent-Teacher work. It was decided to take no action on the proposed Community Chest for Arlington County.

The Arlington County Rotary Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting this noon at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

Dr. D. M. Faulkner, of Richmond, Va., will hold his semiannual orthopedic clinic for cripples, Sunday, at the Clarendon Health Center from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. This clinic, free to adults as well as children, is being held under auspices of the Arlington County Health Department.

Close to 200 parents watched children of the John Marshall School at Livingstone Heights perform in a play, "The Winning of Princess Gold Star," Tuesday afternoon.

Outstanding in the performance were the efforts of Martha King Harris, Richard Davis, Tony Puglisi and Richard Brumback. The full cast in addition to the above consisted of Richard Bassett, Anne Draper, Golda Mae Sutton, Mary Lee Brumback, Peggy McFall, Aurelia Hutchison, Don Nikalson, Margaret Anne Elliott, Raymond Wanner, Mary Elizabeth Davis, Beverly Loomis, Evelyn Ferguson, Dick Petty, Arthur Ennis, Robert Brown, Charles Healey, George Campbell, Henry Shepherd, Hugh Niklason, James Harlan, George Oyster, Carl Ahalt, Bill Boyer, George Wire and Garvin Swink.

A series of dances, including "Chimes of Dunkirk," a clap dance and a Swedish dance, were participated in by pupils from different grades. A rhythmic dance by Betty Brown was well received. The entertainment closed with the "Good Night" song by the school.

A report read to the audience showed that 82 of 114 pupils would receive health certificates issued by the county to "Five Point" children. This rating is considered unusually high by the principal, Miss Mary Barbour, who with Miss Beatrice Barber and Miss Louise Shaull, of the teaching staff of the John Marshall School, arranged the entertainment and supervised the preparation of costumes.

Quaker Quarterly Delays Arms Vote

Majority Favors Entire Disarmament, but Minority Wins.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., May 20.—The Society of Friends is not of one mind on the question of complete disarmament, it was learned today, following the quarterly meeting at historic Hopewell Meeting House, near here, where "quarterlies" have been held nearly 200 years.

Daniel Shoemaker brought a resolution from the Washington, D. C., monthly meeting, declaring that "as a society we advocate total disarmament by international agreement if possible, or by national example, if necessary."

The majority of those attending who expressed themselves were in favor of the resolution, but several considered it impractical and objected, so, in accordance with the policy of Friends, it was not passed, but instead held over to be considered at the next meeting, to be held in August at Lincoln, Va.

WOOD FAVORS NEW SLASH IN GAS RATE

Tells Prince Georges Group He Will Urge Further Cut for County.

George A. G. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co., yesterday promised representatives of Prince Georges civic organizations that he would recommend an even lower rate for gas than is contained in the proposed new rate schedule.

Some dissatisfaction with the proposed schedule had been voiced, and Mr. Wood agreed to a meeting with a special committee of the county chamber of commerce, which was held yesterday. The reduction which Mr. Wood will recommend is in rates for less than 2,500 feet of gas, all parties apparently being satisfied with the rate of 90 cents per thousand for more than 2,500 feet.

M. T. May, chairman of the special committee, said last night he thinks it "very probable" that the further reductions will be made. He thinks that the new rate will be ready for filing with the Maryland Public Service Commission by the first of next week.

With an average gas consumption of 2,300 feet per month, the monthly bill under the rates originally proposed would be $3.57. Under the old rate, the average monthly bill was $4.83. The rate which Mr. Wood will recommend was not stated officially yesterday.

Betty Meighan, arrested and convicted for the third time for transportation of liquor in Prince Georges County in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday, will be sentenced today in police court in Capitol Heights. The woman was represented by Attorneys Robert W. McCullough and Thomas J. Luckett yesterday who agreed to withdraw her appeal on the second conviction if only a fine was imposed on the third conviction.

About six weeks ago the woman was arrested by Officer R. E. Brown and fined $200 on a second conviction. She appealed the case on the grounds that the policeman had no reasonable cause for suspicion of her car.

Bruno Quatrone, of Colmar Manor, was fined $100 for setting up and operating a gaming table. He was arrested by Constable Andrew Gasch. B. W. Taylor was fined $1 for contempt of court during his trial for maintaining a nuisance consisting of a barking dog. The case was continued for two weeks to give him a chance to dispose of the animal, but he protested against the continuance, resulting in his fine.

Edward S. Levy, of Connecticut avenue near Nebraska avenue northwest, was fined $100 for exceeding 60 miles an hour, $1 for having no registration card, $1 for reckless driving and $5 for disorderly conduct. He was arrested by Officer Ralph Brown after a chase from Muirkirk to Hyattsville, according to the testimony. The disorderly conduct charge arose when he offered to "take a swing" at Brown.

The Prince Georges County commissioners will hold a public hearing May 27 at 8 o'clock on the choice of a building to house county offices in Hyattsville. The hearing will be held in the First National Bank building in Hyattsville.

During a recent tour of investigation of the three structures offered, which include the First National building, the commissioners spent nearly an hour in that place, considerably more than was spent in either of the others. The two alternate places are the Hyattsville Building Association home and a row of new stores on Rhode Island avenue. After their tour, however, the commissioners stated that they had made no decision.

If the bank building is chosen, the mezzanine floor will be extended across the entire site, giving a second floor for the use of the police court. The Prince Georges Bank, which owns the other building, will pay for alterations. J. Enos Ray is president of the Prince Georges Bank.

The building selected is expected to house offices of the Suburban Sanitary Commission and a full-time police substation. It is likely that a temporary lockup will be established in the basement.

Four more applications for positions on the new county police force have been filed with the county commissioners, bringing the total number of applicants to 44. Members probably will be appointed June 1 at a special meeting of the commissioners.

The four new applicants are Andrew F. Gasch, constable in Bladensburg; Lawrence E. Dayton, sergeant of the couny rescue squad; Robert E. Altemus and Harry Odell Harvey. Former Policeman V. M. Nichols has announced that he will not seek a place on the new force, as has former Sheriff Charles S. Early.

H. C. Byrd, of the University of Maryland, has been named honorary referee of the athletic meet to be held in College Park Saturday, when about 3,500 children of the graded and high schools of the county will compete.

Other officials will be George N. Wells, timer; track judges, Dr. Paul Herring, Henry Morris, Roland Gilbert, J. Frank Dent and W. R. Whipp; judges of the broad jump, Victor E. Peterson, T. Carlyle Moore, Taney Gibson and Cleveland Kerby; judges of the high jump, George Cook, Dr. William Burton Spire, W. B. Posey.

Judges of the shot put, W. F. Mulligan, Cleveland Buck, P. E. Clark; judges of the baseball throw, Julian White, J. Andrew Carrico, sr., Samuel Townshend; inspectors, Elza Job, George Finger; marshals, H. G. Machen, Claude Reese, Ralph Brown; surgeon, Dr. A. B. Hooton. Dr. William Burdick, of the Playground Athletic League, will direct the games.

Representatives of two other bodies will tell the community council of plans for beautification of nearby Maryland for the George Washington Bicentennial in 1932 at the summer council meeting to be held Saturday in Hyattsville.

Maj. Parry D. Williar, jr., chief engineer of the State Roads Commission, will tell what plans that body is making for the celebration, and R. W. Rogers, of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, will outline the preparations of the park organization.

In addition to these speakers, Mark Shoemaker, landscape specialist at the University of Maryland, will report the work accomplished by its own members, and will lay out future plans. The meeting will be held in the Masonic Hall in Hyattsville.
